(2) Whenever the Secretary of Labor, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency charged with the administration of the State law, finds that there is a failure to comply substantially with the requirements of paragraph (1), the Secretary of Labor shall notify such State agency that further payments will not be made to the State until the Secretary of Labor is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure. Until the Secretary of Labor is so satisfied, the Secretary shall make no future certification to the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to the State.

TITLE IV—GRANTS TO STATES FOR AID AND SERVICES TO NEEDY FAMILIES WITH CHILDREN AND FOR CHILD-WELFARE SERVICES

【PART A—AID TO FAMILIES WITH DEPENDENT CHILDREN

【APPROPRIATION

【SEC. 401. For the purpose of encouraging the care of dependent children in their own homes or in the homes of relatives by enabling each State to furnish financial assistance and rehabilitation and other services, as far as practicable under the conditions in such State, to needy dependent children and the parents or relatives with whom they are living to help maintain and strengthen family life and to help such parents or relatives to attain or retain capability for the maximum self-support and personal independence consistent with the maintenance of continuing parental care and protection, there is hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year a sum sufficient to carry out the purposes of this part. The sums made available under this section shall be used for making payments to States which have submitted, and had approved by the Secretary, State plans for aid and services to needy families with children.

【STATE PLANS FOR AID AND SERVICES TO NEEDY FAMILIES WITH CHILDREN

【SEC. 402. (a) A State plan for aid and services to needy families with children must—

【(1) provide that it shall be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State, and, if administered by them, be mandatory upon them;

【(2) provide for financial participation by the State;

【(3) either provide for the establishment or designation of a single State agency to administer the plan, or provide for the establishment or designation of a single State agency to supervise the administration of the plan;

[(4) provide for granting an opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency to any individual whose claim for aid to families with dependent children is denied or is not acted upon with reasonable promptness;

[(5) provide such methods of administration (including after January 1, 1940, methods relating to the establishment and maintenance of personnel standards on a merit basis, except that the Secretary shall exercise no authority with respect to the selection, tenure of office, and compensation of any individual employed in accordance with such methods) as are found by the Secretary to be necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the plan;

[(6) provide that the State agency will make such reports, in such form and containing such information, as the Secretary may from time to time require, and comply with such provisions as the Secretary may from time to time find necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such reports;

[(7) except as may be otherwise provided in paragraph (8) or (31) and section 415, provide that the State agency—

[(A) shall, in determining need, take into consideration any other income and resources of any child or relative claiming aid to families with dependent children, or of any other individual (living in the same home as such child and relative) whose needs the State determines should be considered in determining the need of the child or relative claiming such aid;

[(B) shall determine ineligible for aid any family the combined value of whose resources (reduced by any obligations or debts with respect to such resources) exceeds $1,000 or such lower amount as the State may determine, but not including as a resource for purposes of this subparagraph (i) a home owned and occupied by such child, relative, or other individual and so much of the family member's ownership interest in one automobile as does not exceed such amount as the Secretary may prescribe, (ii) under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, burial plots (one for each such child, relative, and other individual), and funeral agreements (iii) for such period or periods of time as the Secretary may prescribe, real property which the family is making a good-faith effort to dispose of, but any aid payable to the family for any such period shall be conditioned upon such disposal, and any payments of such aid for that period shall (at the time of the disposal) be considered overpayments to the extent that they would not have been made had the disposal occurred at the beginning of the period for which the payments of such aid were made, or (iv) for the month of receipt and the following month, any refund of Federal income taxes made to such family by reason of section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to earned income credit), and any payment made to such family by an employer under section 3507 of such Code (relating to advance payment of earned income credit), or (iv) for the month of receipt and the following month, any refund of Federal income taxes made to such family by reason of section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to earned income credit), and any payment made to such family by an employer under section 3507 of such Code (relating to advance payment of earned income credit); and

[(C) may, in the case of a family claiming or receiving aid under this part for any month, take into consideration as income (to the extent the State determines appropriate, as specified in such plan, and notwithstanding any other provision of law)—

[(i) an amount not to exceed the value of the family's monthly allotment of food stamp coupons, to the extent such value duplicates the amount for food included in the maximum amount that would be payable under the State plan to a family of the same composition with no other income; and

[(ii) an amount not to exceed the value of any rent or housing subsidy provided to such family, to the extent such value duplicates the amount for housing included in the maximum amount that would be payable under the State plan to a family of the same composition with no other income;

[(8)(A) provide that, with respect to any month, in making the determination under paragraph (7), the State agency—

[(i) shall disregard all of the earned income of each dependent child receiving aid to families with dependent children who is (as determined by the State in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary) a full-time student or a part-time student who is not a full-time employee attending a school, college, or university, or a course of vocational or technical training designed to fit him for gainful employment;

[(ii) shall disregard from the earned income of any child or relative applying for or receiving aid to families with dependent children, or of any other individual (living in the same home as such relative and child) whose needs are taken into account in making such determination, the first $90 of the total of such earned income for such month;

[(iii) after applying the other clauses of this subparagraph, shall disregard from the earned income of any child, relative, or other individual specified in clause (ii), an amount equal to expenditures for care in such month for a dependent child, or an incapacitated individual living in the same home as the dependent child, receiving aid to families with dependent children and requiring such care for such month, to the extent that such amount (for each such dependent child or incapacitated individual) does not exceed $175 (or such lesser amount as the Secretary may prescribe in the case of an individual not engaged in full-time employment or not employed throughout the month), or, in the case such child is under age 2, $200

[(iv) shall disregard from the earned income of any child or relative receiving aid to families with dependent children, or of any other individual (living in the same home as such relative and child) whose needs are taken into account in making such determination, an amount equal to (I) the first $30 of the total of such earned income not disregarded under any other clause of this subparagraph plus (II) one-third of the remainder thereof

[(v) may disregard the income of any dependent child applying for or receiving aid to families with dependent children which is derived from a program carried out under the Job Training Partnership Act (as originally enacted), but only in such amounts, and for such period of time (not to exceed six months with respect to earned income) as the Secretary may provide in regulations;

[(vi) shall disregard the first $50 of any child support payments for such month received in that month, and the first $50 of child support payments for each prior month received in that month if such payments were made by the absent parent in the month when due, with respect to the dependent child or children in any family applying for or receiving aid to families with dependent children (including support payments collected and paid to the family under section 457(b));

[(vii) may disregard all or any part of the earned income of a dependent child who is a full-time student and who is applying for aid to families with dependent children, but only if the earned income of such child is excluded for such month in determining the family's total income under paragraph (18); and

[(viii) shall disregard any refund of Federal income taxes made to a family receiving aid to families with dependent children by reason of section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to earned income tax credit) and any payment made to such a family by an employer under section 3507 of such Code (relating to advance payment of earned income credit); and

[(B) provide that (with respect to any month) the State agency—

[(i) shall not disregard, under clause (ii), (iii), or (iv) of subparagraph (A), any earned income of any one of the persons specified in subparagraph (A)(ii) if such person—

[(I) terminated his employment or reduced his earned income without good cause within such period (of not less than thirty days) preceding such month as may be prescribed by the Secretary;

[(II) refused without good cause, within such period preceding such month as may be prescribed by the Secretary, to accept employment in which he is able to engage which is offered through the public employment offices of the State, or is otherwise offered by an employer if the offer of such employer is determined by the State or local agency administering the State plan, after notification by the employer, to be a bona fide offer of employment; or

[(III) failed without good cause to make a timely report (as prescribed by the State plan pursuant to paragraph (14)) to the State agency of earned income received in such month; and

[(ii)(I) shall not disregard—

[(a) under subclause (II) of subparagraph (A)(iv), in a case where such subclause has already been applied to the income of the persons involved for four consecutive months while they were receiving aid under the plan, or

[(b) under subclause (I) of subparagraph (A)(iv), in a case where such subclause has already been applied to the income of the persons involved for twelve consecutive months while they were receiving aid under the plan, any earned income of any of the persons specified in subparagraph (A)(ii), if, with respect to such month, the income of the persons so specified was in excess of their need, as determined by the State agency pursuant to paragraph (7) (without regard to subparagraph (A)(iv) of this paragraph), unless the persons received aid under the plan in one or more of the four months preceding such month; and

[(II) in the case of the earned income of a person with respect to whom subparagraph (A)(iv) has been applied for four consecutive months, shall not apply the provisions of subclause (II) of such subparagraph to any month after such month, or apply the provisions of subclause (I) of such subparagraph to any month after the eighth month following such month, for so long as he continues to receive aid under the plan, and shall not apply the provisions of either such subclause to any month thereafter until the expiration of an additional period of twelve consecutive months during which he is not a recipient of such aid; and

[(C) provide that in implementing this paragraph the term “earned income” shall mean gross earned income, prior to any deductions for taxes or for any other purposes;

(9) provide safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants or recipients to purposes directly connected with (A) the administration of the plan of the State approved under this part (including activities under part F), the plan or program of the State under part B, D, or E of this title or under title I, X, XIV, XVI, XIX, or XX, or the supplemental security income program established by title XVI, (B) any investigation, prosecution, or criminal or civil proceeding, conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program, (C) the administration of any other Federal or federally assisted program which provides assistance, in cash or in kind, or services, directly to individuals on the basis of need, (D) any audit or similar activity conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program by any governmental entity which is authorized by law to conduct such audit or activity, and (E) reporting and providing information pursuant to paragraph (16) to appropriate authorities with respect to known or suspected child abuse or neglect; and the safeguards so provided shall prohibit disclosure, to any committee or legislative body (other than an entity referred to in clause (D) with respect to an activity referred to in such clause), of any information which identifies by name or address any such applicant or recipient; but such safeguards shall not prevent the State agency or the local agency responsible for the administration of the State plan in the locality (whether or not the State has enacted legislation allowing public access to Federal welfare records) from furnishing a State or local law enforcement officer, upon his request, with the current address of any recipient if the officer furnishes the agency with such recipient's name and social security account number and satisfactorily demonstrates that such recipient is a fugitive felon, that the location or apprehension of such felon is within the officer's official duties, and that the request is made in the proper exercise of those duties;

[(10)(A) provide that all individuals wishing to make application for aid to families with dependent children shall have opportunity to do so, and that aid to families with dependent children shall, subject to paragraphs (25) and (26), be furnished with reasonable promptness to all eligible individuals; and

[(B) provide that an application for aid under the plan will be effective no earlier than the date such application is filed with the State agency or local agency responsible for the administration of the State plan, and the amount payable for the month in which the application becomes effective, if such application becomes effective after the first day of such month, shall bear the same ratio to the amount which would be payable if the application had been effective on the first day of such month as the number of days in the month including and following the effective date of the application bears to the total number of days in such month;

[(11) provide for prompt notice (including the transmittal of all relevant information) to the State child support collection agency (established pursuant to part D of this title) of the furnishing of aid to families with dependent children with respect to a child who has been deserted or abandoned by a parent (including a child born out of wedlock without regard to whether the paternity of such child has been established);

[(12) provide, effective October 1, 1950, that no aid will be furnished any individual under the plan with respect to any period with respect to which he is receiving old-age assistance under the State plan approved under section 2 of this Act;

[(13) provide, at the option of the State and with respect to such category or categories as the State may select and identify in the State plan, that—

[(A) except as provided in subparagraph (B), the State agency (i) will determine a family's eligibility for aid for a month on the basis of the family's income, composition, resources, and other similar relevant circumstances during such month, and (ii) will determine the amount of such aid on the basis of the income and other relevant circumstances in the first or, at the option of the State (but only where the Secretary determines it to be appropriate) second month preceding such month; and

[(B) in the case of the first month, or at the option of the State (but only where the Secretary determines it to be appropriate), the first and second months, in a period of consecutive months for which aid is payable, the State agency will determine the amount of aid on the basis of the family's income and other relevant circumstances in such first or second month;

[(14) at the option of the State and with respect to such category or categories as the State may select and identify in the plan, provide that—

[(A) the State agency will require each family to which the State provides (or, but for paragraph (22) or (32), would provide) aid to families with dependent children, as a condition to the continued receipt of such aid (or to continuing to be deemed to be a recipient of such aid), to report to the State agency monthly (or less frequently in the case of such categories of recipients as the State may select) on—

[(i) the income of the family, the composition of the family, and other relevant circumstances during the prior month; and

[(ii) the income and resources the family expects to receive, or any changes in circumstances affecting continued eligibility for, or amount of benefits, the family expects to occur, in that month or in future months; and

[(B) in addition to any action that may be appropriate based on other reports or information received by the State agency, the State agency will—

[(i) take prompt action to adjust the amount of assistance payable, as may be appropriate, on the basis of the information contained in the report (or upon the failure of the family to submit a timely report); and

[(ii) give the family an appropriate explanatory notice concurrent with any action taken under clause (i);

[(15) provide (A) for the development of a program, for each appropriate relative and dependent child receiving aid under the plan and for each appropriate individual (living in the same home as a relative and child receiving such aid) whose needs are taken into account in making the determination under paragraph (7), for preventing or reducing the incidence of births out of wedlock and otherwise strengthening family life, and for implementing such program by assuring that in all appropriate cases (including minors who can be considered to be sexually active) family planning services are offered to them and are provided promptly (directly or under arrangements with others) to all individuals voluntarily requesting such services, but acceptance of family planning services provided under the plan shall be voluntary on the part of such members and individuals and shall not be a prerequisite to eligibility for or the receipt of any other service under the plan; and (B) to the extent that services provided under this paragraph are furnished by the staff of the State agency or the local agency administering the State plan in each of the political subdivisions of the State, for the establishment of a single organizational unit in such State or local agency, as the case may be, responsible for the furnishing of such services;

[(16) provide that the State agency will—

[(A) report to an appropriate agency or official, known or suspected instances of physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment or maltreatment of a child receiving aid under this part under circumstances which indicate that the child's health or welfare is threatened thereby; and

[(B) provide such information with respect to a situation described in subparagraph (A) as the State agency may have;

[(17) provide that if a child or relative applying for or receiving aid to families with dependent children, or any other person whose need the State considers when determining the income of a family, receives in any month an amount of earned or unearned income which, together with all other income for that month not excluded under paragraph (8), exceeds the State's standard of need applicable to the family of which he is a member—

[(A) such amount of income shall be considered income to such individual in the month received, and the family of which such person is a member shall be ineligible for aid under the plan for the whole number of months that equals (i) the sum of such amount and all other income received in such month, not excluded under paragraph (8), divided by (ii) the standard of need applicable to such family, and

except that the State may at its option recalculate the period of ineligibility otherwise determined under subparagraph (A) (but only with respect to the remaining months in such period) in any one or more of the following cases: (i) an event occurs which, had the family been receiving aid under the State plan for the month of the occurrence, would result in a change in the amount of aid payable for such month under the plan, or (ii) the income received has become unavailable to the members of the family for reasons that were beyond the control of such members, or (iii) the family incurs, becomes responsible for, and pays medical expenses (as allowed by the State) in a month of ineligibility determined under subparagraph (A) (which expenses may be considered as an offset against the amount of income received in the first month of such ineligibility);

[(18) provide that no family shall be eligible for aid under the plan for any month if, for that month, the total income of the family (other than payments under the plan), without application of paragraph (8), other than paragraph (8)(A)(v) or 8(A)(viii), exceeds 185 percent of the State's standard of need for a family of the same composition, except that in determining the total income of the family the State may exclude any earned income of a dependent child who is a full-time student, in such amounts and for such period of time (not to exceed 6 months) as the State may determine;

[(19) provide—

[(A) that the State has in effect and operation a job opportunities and basic skills training program which meets the requirements of part F;

[(B) that—

[(i) the State will (except as otherwise provided in this paragraph or part F), to the extent that the program is available in the political subdivision involved and State resources otherwise permit—

[(I) require all recipients of aid to families with dependent children in such subdivision with respect to whom the State guarantees child care in accordance with section 402(g) to participate in the program; and

[(II) allow applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children (and individuals who would be recipients of such aid if the State had not exercised the option under section 407(b)(2)(B)(i)) who are not required under subclause (I) to participate in the program to do so on a voluntary basis;

[(ii) in determining the priority of participation by individuals from among those groups described in clauses (i), (ii), (iii), and (iv) of section 403(1)(2)(B), the State will give first consideration to applicants for or recipients of aid to families with dependent children within any such group who volunteer to participate in the program;

[(iii) if an exempt participant drops out of the program without good cause after having commenced participation in the program, he or she shall thereafter not be given priority so long as other individuals are actively seeking to participate; and

[(iv) the State need not require or allow participation of an individual in the program if as a result of such participation the amount payable to the State for quarters in a fiscal year with respect to the program would be reduced pursuant to section 403(1)(2);

[(C) that an individual may not be required to participate in the program if such individual—

[(i) is ill, incapacitated, or of advanced age;

[(ii) is needed in the home because of the illness or incapacity of another member of the household;

[(iii) subject to subparagraph (D)—

[(I) is the parent or other relative of a child under 3 years of age (or, if so provided in the State plan, under any age that is less than 3 years but not less than one year) who is personally providing care for the child, or

[(II) is the parent or other relative personally providing care for a child under 6 years of age, unless the State assures that child care in accordance with section 402(g) will be guaranteed and that participation in the program by the parent or relative will not be required for more than 20 hours a week;

[(iv) works 30 or more hours a week;

[(v) is a child who is under age 16 or attends, full-time, an elementary, secondary, or vocational (or technical) school;

[(vi) is pregnant if it has been medically verified that the child is expected to be born in the month in which such participation would otherwise be required or within the 6-month period immediately following such month; or

[(i) resides in an area of the State where the program is not available;

[(D) that, in the case of a family eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner, subparagraph (C)(iii) shall apply only to one parent, except that, in the case of such a family, the State may at its option make such subparagraph inapplicable to both of the parents (and require their participation in the program) if child care in accordance with section 402(g) is guaranteed with respect to the family;

[(E) that—

[(i) to the extent that the program is available in the political subdivision involved and State resources otherwise permit, in the case of a custodial parent who has not attained 20 years of age, has not successfully completed a high-school education (or its equivalent), and is required to participate in the program (including an individual who would otherwise be exempt from participation in the program solely by reason of subparagraph (C)(iii)), the State agency (subject to clause (ii)) will require such parent to participate in an educational activity; and

[(ii) the State agency may—

[(I) require a parent described in clause (i) (notwithstanding the part-time requirement in subparagraph (C)(iii)(II)) to participate in educational activities directed toward the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent on a full-time (as defined by the educational provider) basis,

[(II) establish criteria in accordance with regulations of the Secretary under which custodial parents described in clause (i) who have not attained 18 years of age may be exempted from the school attendance requirement under such clause, or

[(III) require a parent described in clause (i) who is age 18 or 19 to participate in training or work activities (in lieu of the educational activities under such clause) if such parent fails to make good progress in successfully completing such educational activities or if it is determined (prior to any assignment of the individual to such educational activities) pursuant to an educational assessment that participation in such educational activities is inappropriate for such parent;

[(F) that—

[(i) if the parent or other caretaker relative or any dependent child in the family is attending (in good standing) an institution of higher education (as defined in section 481(a) of the Higher Education Act of 1965), or a school or course of vocational or technical training (not less than half time) consistent with the individual's employment goals, and is making satisfactory progress in such institution, school, or course, at the time he or she would otherwise commence participation in the program under this section, such attendance may constitute satisfactory participation in the program (by that caretaker or child) so long as it continues and is consistent with such goals;

[(ii) any other activities in which an individual described in clause (i) participates may not be permitted to interfere with the school or training described in that clause;

[(iii) the costs of such school or training shall not constitute federally reimbursable expenses for purposes of section 403; and

[(iv) the costs of day care, transportation, and other services which are necessary (as determined by the State agency) for such attendance in accordance with section 402(g) are eligible for Federal reimbursement;

[(G) that—

[(i) if an individual who is required by the provisions of this paragraph to participate in the program or who is so required by reason of the State's having exercised the option under subparagraph (D) fails without good cause to participate in the program or refuses without good cause to accept employment in which such individual is able to engage which is offered through the public employment offices of the State, or is otherwise offered by an employer if the offer of such employer is determined to be a bona fide offer of employment—

[(I) the needs of such individual (whether or not section 407 applies) shall not be taken into account in making the determination with respect to his or her family under paragraph (7) of this subsection, and if such individual is a parent or other caretaker relative, payments of aid for any dependent child in the family in the form of payments of the type described in section 406(b)(2) (which in such a case shall be without regard to clauses (A) through (D) thereof) will be made unless the State agency, after making reasonable efforts, is unable to locate an appropriate individual to whom such payments can be made; and

[(II) if such individual is a member of a family which is eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of section 407, and his or her spouse is not participating in the program, the needs of such spouse shall also not be taken into account in making such determination;

[(ii) any sanction described in clause (i) shall continue—

[(I) in the case of the individual's first failure to comply, until the failure to comply ceases;

[(II) in the case of the individual's second failure to comply, until the failure to comply ceases or 3 months (whichever is longer); and

[(III) in the case of any subsequent failure to comply, until the failure to comply ceases or 6 months (whichever is longer);

[(iii) the State will promptly remind any individual whose failure to comply has continued for 3 months, in writing, of the individual's option to end the sanction by terminating such failure; and

[(iv) no sanction shall be imposed under this subparagraph—

[(I) on the basis of the refusal of an individual described in subparagraph (C)(iii)(II) to accept employment, if the employment would require such individual to work more than 20 hours a week, or

[(II) on the basis of the refusal of an individual to participate in the program or accept employment, if child care (or day care for any incapacitated individual living in the same home as a dependent child) is necessary for an individual to participate in the program or accept employment, such care is not available, and the State agency fails to provide such care; and

[(H) the State agency may require a participant in the program to accept a job only if such agency assures that the family of such participant will experience no net loss of cash income resulting from acceptance of the job; and any costs incurred by the State agency as a result of this subparagraph shall be treated as expenditures with respect to which section 403(a)(1) or 403(a)(2) applies;

[(20) provide that the State has in effect a State plan for foster care and adoption assistance approved under part E of this title;

[(21) provide—

[(A) that, for purposes of this part, participation in a strike shall not constitute good cause to leave, or to refuse to seek or accept employment; and

[(B)(i) that aid to families with dependent children is not payable to a family for any month in which any caretaker relative with whom the child is living is, on the last day of such month, participating in a strike, and (ii) that no individual's needs shall be included in determining the amount of aid payable for any month to a family under the plan if, on the last day of such month, such individual is participating in a strike;

[(22) provide that the State agency will promptly take all necessary steps to correct any overpayment or underpayment of aid under the State plan, and, in the case of—

[(A) an overpayment to an individual who is a current recipient of such aid (including a current recipient whose overpayment occurred during a prior period of eligibility), recovery will be made by repayment by the individual or by reducing the amount of any future aid payable to the family of which he is a member, except that such recovery shall not result in the reduction of aid payable for any month, such that the aid, when added to such family's liquid resources and to its income (without application of paragraph (8)), is less than 90 percent of the amount payable under the State plan to a family of the same composition with no other income (and, in the case of an individual to whom no payment is made for a month solely by reason of recovery of an overpayment, such individual shall be deemed to be a recipient of aid for such month);

[(B) an overpayment to any individual who is no longer receiving aid under the plan, recovery shall be made by appropriate action under State law against the income or resources of the individual or the family; and except that no recovery need be attempted or carried out under subparagraph (B) in any case, other than a case involving fraud on the part of the recipient, where (as determined by the State agency in accordance with criteria for determining cost-effectiveness, and with dollar limitations, which shall be prescribed by the Secretary in regulations) the cost of recovery would equal or exceed the amount of the overpayment involved;

[(C) an underpayment, the corrective payment shall be disregarded in determining the income of the family, and shall be disregarded in determining its resources in the month the corrective payment is made and in the following month;

[(23) provide that by July 1, 1969, the amounts used by the State to determine the needs of individuals will have been adjusted to reflect fully changes in living costs since such amounts were established, and any maximums that the State imposes on the amount of aid paid to families will have been proportionately adjusted;

[(24) provide that if an individual is receiving benefits under title XVI or his costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made to his or her minor parent as provided in section 475(4)(B), then, for the period for which such benefits are received or such costs are so covered, such individual shall not be regarded as a member of a family for purposes of determining the amount of the benefits of the family under this title and his income and resources shall not be counted as income and resources of a family under this title;

[(25) provide that information is requested and exchanged for purposes of income and eligibility verification in accordance with a State system which meets the requirements of section 1137 of this Act;

[(26) provide that, as a condition of eligibility for aid, each applicant or recipient will be required—

[(A) to assign the State any rights to support from any other person such applicant may have (i) in his own behalf or in behalf of any other family member for whom the applicant is applying for or receiving aid, and (ii) which have accrued at the time such assignment is executed;

[(B) to cooperate with the State (i) in establishing the paternity of a child born out of wedlock with respect to whom aid is claimed, and (ii) in obtaining support payments for such applicant and for a child with respect to whom such aid is claimed, or in obtaining any other payments or property due such applicant or such child, unless (in either case) such applicant or recipient is found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate as determined by the State agency in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, which standards shall take into consideration the best interests of the child on whose behalf aid is claimed; and that, if the relative with whom a child is living is found to be ineligible because of failure to comply with the requirements of subparagraphs (A) and (B) of this paragraph, any aid for which such child is eligible will be provided in the form of protective payments as described in section 406(b)(2) (without regard to clauses (A) through (D) of such section) unless the State agency, after making reasonable efforts, is unable to locate an appropriate individual to whom such payments can be made; and

[(C) to cooperate with the State in identifying, and providing information to assist the State in pursuing, any third party who may be liable to pay for care and services available under the State's plan for medical assistance under title XIX, unless such individual has good cause for refusing to cooperate as determined by the State agency in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, which standards shall take into consideration the best interests of the individuals involved; but the State shall not be subject to any financial penalty in the administration or enforcement of this subparagraph as a result of any monitoring, quality control, or auditing requirements;

[(27) provide that the State has in effect a plan approved under part D and operates a child support program in substantial compliance with such plan;

[(28) provide that, in determining the amount of aid to which an eligible family is entitled, any portion of the amounts collected in any particular month as child support pursuant to a plan approved under part D, and retained by the State under section 457, which (under the State plan approved under this part as in effect both during July 1975 and during that particular month) would not have caused a reduction in the amount of aid paid to the family if such amounts had been paid directly to the family, shall be added to the amount of aid otherwise payable to such family under the State plan approved under this part;

[(30) at the option of the State, provide for the establishment and operation, in accordance with an (initial and annually updated) advance automated data processing planning document approved under subsection (e), of an automated statewide management information system designed effectively and efficiently, to assist management in the administration of the State plan for aid to families with dependent children approved under this part, so as (A) to control and account for (i) all the factors in the total eligibility determination process under such plan for aid (including but not limited to (I) identifiable correlation factors (such as social security numbers, names, dates of birth, home addresses, and mailing addresses (including postal ZIP codes), of all applicants and recipients of such aid and the relative with whom any child who is such an applicant or recipient is living) to assure sufficient compatibility among the systems of different jurisdictions to permit periodic screening to determine whether an individual is or has been receiving benefits from more than one jurisdiction, (II) checking records of applicants and recipients of such aid on a periodic basis with other agencies, both intra-and inter-State, for determination and verification of eligibility and payment pursuant to requirements imposed by other provisions of this Act), (ii) the costs, quality, and delivery of funds and services furnished to applicants for and recipients of such aid, (B) to notify the appropriate officials of child support, food stamp, social service, and medical assistance programs approved under title XIX whenever the case becomes ineligible or the amount of aid or services is changed, and (C) to provide for security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system;

[(31) provide that, in making the determination for any month under paragraph (7), the State agency shall take into consideration so much of the income of the dependent child's stepparent living in the same home as such child as exceeds the sum of (A) the first $90 of the total of such stepparent's earned income for such month, (B) the State's standard of need under such plan for a family of the same composition as the stepparent and those other individuals living in the same household as the dependent child and claimed by such step-parent as dependents for purposes of determining his Federal personal income tax liability but whose needs are not taken into account in making the determination under paragraph (7), (C) amounts paid by the stepparent to individuals not living in such household and claimed by him as dependents for purposes of determining his Federal personal income tax liability, and (D) payments by such stepparent of alimony or child support with respect to individuals not living in such household;

[(32) provide that no payment of aid shall be made under the plan for any month if the amount of such payment, as determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of the plan and of this part, would be less than $10, but an individual with respect to whom a payment of aid under the plan is denied solely by reason of this paragraph is deemed to be a recipient of aid but shall not be eligible to participate in a community work experience program;

[(33) provide that in order for any individual to be considered a dependent child, a caretaker relative whose needs are to be taken into account in making the determination under paragraph (7), or any other person whose needs should be taken into account in making such a determination with respect to the child or relative, such individual must be either (A) a citizen, or (B) an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence or otherwise permanently residing in the United States under color of law (including any alien who is lawfully present in the United States as a result of the application of the provisions of section 207(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (or of section 203(a)(7) of such Act prior to April 1, 1980), or as a result of the application of the provisions of section 208 or 212(d)(5) of such Act);

[(34) provide that both the standard of need applied to a family and the amount of aid determined to be payable, when not a whole dollar amount, shall be rounded to the next lower whole dollar amount;

[(36) provide, at the option of the State, that in making the determination for any month under paragraph (7), the State agency shall not include as income any support or maintenance assistance furnished to or on behalf of the family which (as determined under regulations of the Secretary by such State agency as the chief executive officer of the State may designate) is based on need for such support and maintenance, including assistance received to assist in meeting the costs of home energy (including both heating and cooling), and which is (A) assistance furnished in kind by a private nonprofit agency, or (B) assistance furnished by a supplier of home heating oil or gas, by an entity whose revenues are primarily derived on a rate-of-return basis regulated by a State or Federal governmental entity, or by a municipal utility providing home energy;

[(37) provide that if any family becomes ineligible to receive aid to families with dependent children because of hours of or income from employment of the caretaker relative or because of paragraph (8)(B)(ii)(II), having received such aid in at least 3 of the 6 months immediately preceding the month in which such ineligibility begins, the family shall remain eligible for medical assistance under the State's plan approved under title XIX for an extended period or periods as provided in section 1925, and that the family will be appropriately notified of such extension (in the State agency's notice to the family of the termination of its eligibility for such aid) as required by section 1925(a)(2);

[(38) provide that in making the determination under paragraph (7) with respect to a dependent child and applying paragraph (8), the State agency shall (except as otherwise provided in this part) include—

[(A) any parent of such child, and

[(B) any brother or sister of such child, if such brother or sister meets the conditions described in clauses (1) and (2) of section 406(a) or in section 407(a), if such parent, brother, or sister is living in the same home as the dependent child, and any income of or available for such parent, brother, or sister shall be included in making such determination and applying such paragraph with respect to the family (notwithstanding section 205(j), in the case of benefits provided under title II);

[(39) provide that in making the determination under paragraph (7) with respect to a dependent child whose parent is under the age of 18, the State agency shall (except as otherwise provided in this part) include any income of such minor's own parents who are living in the same home as such minor and dependent child, to the same extent that income of a step-parent is included under paragraph (31);

[(40) provide, if the State has elected to establish and operate a fraud control program under section 416, that the State will submit to the Secretary (with such revisions as may from time to time be necessary) a description of and budget for such program, and will operate such program in full compliance with that section;

[(41) provide that aid to families with dependent children will be provided under the plan with respect to dependent children of unemployed parents in accordance with section 407;

[(42) provide that if, under section 407(b)(2)(B)(i), the State limits the number of months for which a family may receive aid to families with dependent children, the State shall provide medical assistance to all members of the family under the State's plan approved under title XIX, without time limitation;

[(43) at the option of the State, provide that—

[(A) subject to subparagraph (B), in the case of any individual who is under the age of 18 and has never married, and who has a dependent child in his or her care (or is pregnant and is eligible for aid to families with dependent children under the State plan)—

[(i) such individual may receive aid to families with dependent children under the plan for the individual and such child (or for herself in the case of a pregnant woman) only if such individual and child (or such pregnant woman) reside in a place of residence maintained by a parent, legal guardian, or other adult relative of such individual as such parent's, guardian's, or adult relative's own home, or reside in a foster home, maternity home, or other adult-supervised supportive living arrangement; and

[(ii) such aid (where possible) shall be provided to the parent, legal guardian, or other adult relative on behalf of such individual and child; and

[(B) subparagraph (A) does not apply in the case where—

[(i) such individual has no parent or legal guardian of his or her own who is living and whose whereabouts are known;

[(ii) no living parent or legal guardian of such individual allows the individual to live in the home of such parent or guardian;

[(iii) the State agency determines that the physical or emotional health or safety of such individual or such dependent child would be jeopardized if such individual and such dependent child lived in the same residence with such individual's own parent or legal guardian;

[(iv) such individual lived apart from his or her own parent or legal guardian for a period of at least one year before either the birth of any such dependent child or the individual having made application for aid to families with dependent children under the plan; or

[(v) the State agency otherwise determines (in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary) that there is good cause for waiving such subparagraph;

[(44) provide that the State agency shall—

[(A) be responsible for assuring that the benefits and services under the programs under this part, part D, and part F are furnished in an integrated manner, and

[(B) consistent with the provisions of this title, ensure that all applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children are encouraged, assisted, and required to cooperate in the establishment of paternity and the enforcement of child support obligations, and are notified of the paternity establishment and child support services for which they may be eligible; and

[(45) provide (in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary) for appropriate measures to detect fraudulent applications for aid to families with dependent children prior to the establishment of eligibility for such aid.

The Secretary may waive any of the requirements imposed under or in connection with paragraphs (13) and (14) of this subsection to the extent necessary to make such requirements compatible with the corresponding reporting and budgeting requirements by the Food Stamp Act of 1977.

[(b) The Secretary shall approve any plan which fulfills the conditions specified in subsection (a), except that he shall not approve any plan which imposes as a condition of eligibility for aid to families with dependent children, a residence requirement which denies aid with respect to any child residing in the State (1) who has resided in the State for one year immediately preceding the application for such aid, or (2) who was born within one year immediately preceding the application, if the parent or other relative with whom the child is living has resided in the State for one year immediately preceding the birth.

[(c) The Secretary shall, on the basis of his review of the reports received from the States under paragraph (15) of subsection (a), compile such data as he believes necessary and from time to time publish his findings as to the effectiveness of the programs developed and administered by the States under such paragraph. The Secretary shall annually report to the Congress (with the first such report being made on or before July 1, 1970) on the programs developed and administered by each State under such paragraph (15).

[(e)(1) The Secretary shall not approve the initial and annually updated advance automated data processing planning document, referred to in subsection (a)(30), unless he finds that such document, when implemented, will generally carry out the objectives of the statewide management system referred to in such subsection, and such document—

[(A) provides for the conduct of, and reflects the results of, requirements analysis studies, which include consideration of the program mission, functions, organization, services, constraints, and current support, of, in, or relating to, such system,

[(B) contains a description of the proposed statewide management system, including a description of information flows, input data, and output reports and uses,

[(C) sets forth the security and interface requirements to be employed in such statewide management system,

[(D) describes the projected resource requirements for staff and other needs, and the resources available or expected to be available to meet such requirements,

[(E) includes cost-benefit analyses of each alternative management system, data processing services and equipment, and a cost allocation plan containing the basis for rates, both direct and indirect, to be in effect under such statewide management system,

[(F) contains an implementation plan with charts of development events, testing descriptions, proposed acceptance criteria, and backup and fallback procedures to handle possible failure of contingencies, and

[(G) contains a summary of proposed improvement of such statewide management system in terms of qualitative and quantitative benefits.

[(2)(A) The Secretary shall, on a continuing basis, review, assess, and inspect the planning, design, and operation of, statewide management information systems referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B), with a view to determining whether, and to what extent, such systems meet and continue to meet requirements imposed under such section and the conditions specified under subsection (a)(30) of this section.

[(B) If the Secretary finds with respect to any statewide management information system referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B) that there is a failure substantially to comply with criteria, requirements, and other undertakings, prescribed by the advance automated data processing planning document theretofore approved by the Secretary with respect to such system, then the Secretary shall suspend his approval of such document until there is no longer any such failure of such system to comply with such criteria, requirements, and other undertakings so prescribed.

[(C) If the Secretary determines that such a system has not been implemented by the State by the date specified for implementation in the State's advance automated data processing planning document, then the Secretary shall reduce payments to such State, in accordance with section 403(b), in an amount equal to 40 percent of the expenditures referred to in section 403(a)(3)(B) with respect to which payments were made to the State under section 403(a)(3)(B). The Secretary may extend the deadline for implementation if the State demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the State cannot implement such system by the date specified in such planning document due to circumstances beyond the State's control.

[(f)(1) For temporary disqualification of certain newly legalized aliens from receiving aid to families with dependent children, see subsection (h) of section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act, subsection (f) of section 210 of such Act, and subsection (d)(7) of section 210A of such Act. (2) In any case where an alien disqualified from receiving aid under such subsection (h), (f), or (d)(7) is the parent of a child who is not so disqualified and who (without any adjustment of status under such section 245A, 210, or 210A) is considered a dependent child under subsection (a)(33), or is the brother or sister of such a child, subsection (a)(38) shall not apply, and the needs of such alien shall not be taken into account in making the determination under subsection (a)(7) with respect to such child, but the income of such alien (if he or she is the parent of such child) shall be included in making such determination to the same extent that income of a stepparent is included under subsection (a)(31).

[(g)(1)(A)(i) Each State agency must guarantee child care in accordance with subparagraph (B)—

[(I) for each family with a dependent child requiring such care, to the extent that such care is determined by the State agency to be necessary for an individual in the family to accept employment or remain employed; and

[(II) for each individual participating in an education and training activity (including participation in a program that meets the requirements of subsection (a)(19) and part F) if the State agency approves the activity and determines that the individual is satisfactorily participating in the activity.

[(ii) Each State agency must guarantee child care, subject to the limitations described in this section, to the extent that such care is determined by the State agency to be necessary for an individual's employment in any case where a family has ceased to receive aid to families with dependent children as a result of increased hours of, or increased income from, such employment or by reason of subsection (a)(8)(B)(ii)(II).

[(iii) A family shall only be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) for a period of 12 months after the last month for which the family received aid to families with dependent children under this part.

[(iv) A family shall not be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) unless the family received aid to families with dependent children in at least 3 of the 6 months immediately preceding the month in which the family became ineligible for such aid.

[(v) A family shall not be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) unless the family includes a child who is (or, if needy, would be) a dependent child.

[(vi) A family shall not be eligible for child care provided under clause (ii) for any month beginning after the caretaker relative who is a member of the family has—

[(I) without good cause, terminated his or her employment; or

[(II) refused to cooperate with the State in establishing and enforcing his or her child support obligations, without good cause as determined by the State agency in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary which shall take into consideration the best interests of the child for whom child care is to be provided.

[(vii) A family shall contribute to child care provided under clause (ii) in accordance with a sliding scale formula which shall be established by the State agency based on the family's ability to pay.

[(B) The State agency may guarantee child care by—

[(i) providing such care directly;

[(ii) arranging the care through providers by use of purchase of service contracts, or vouchers;

[(iii) providing cash or vouchers in advance to the caretaker relative in the family;

[(iv) reimbursing the caretaker relative in the family; or(v) adopting such other arrangements as the agency deems appropriate.

When the State agency arranges for child care, the agency shall take into account the individual needs of the child.

[(C)(i) Subject to clause (ii), the State agency shall make payment for the cost of child care provided with respect to a family in an amount that is the lesser of—

[(I) the actual cost of such care; and

[(II) the dollar amount of the child care disregard for which the family is otherwise eligible under subsection (a)(8)(A)(iii), or (if higher) an amount established by the State.

[(ii) The State agency may not reimburse the cost of child care provided with respect to a family in an amount that is greater than the applicable local market rate (as determined by the State in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary).

[(D) The State may not make any change in its method of reimbursing child care costs which has the effect of disadvantaging families receiving aid under the State plan on the date of the enactment of this section by reducing their income or otherwise.

[(E) The value of any child care provided or arranged (or any amount received as payment for such care or reimbursement for costs incurred for the care) under this paragraph—

[(i) shall not be treated as income for purposes of any other Federal or federally-assisted program that bases eligibility for or the amount of benefits upon need, and

[(ii) may not be claimed as an employment-related expense for purposes of the credit under section 21 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

[(2) In the case of any individual participating in the program under part F, each State agency (in addition to guaranteeing child care under paragraph (1)) shall provide payment or reimbursement for such transportation and other work-related expenses (including other work-related supportive services), as the State determines are necessary to enable such individual to participate in such program.

[(3)(A)(i) In the case of amounts expended for child care pursuant to paragraph (1)(A) by any State to which section 1108 does not apply, the applicable rate for purposes of section 403(a) shall be the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)).

[(ii) In the case of amounts expended for child care pursuant to paragraph (1)(A)(ii) (relating to the provision of child care for certain families which cease to receive aid under this part) by any State to which section 1108 applies, the applicable rate for purposes of section 403(a) shall be the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1118).

[(B) In the case of any amounts expended by the State agency for child care under this subsection, only such amounts as are within such limits as the State may prescribe (subject to the limitations of paragraph (1)(C)) shall be treated as amounts for which payment may be made to a State under this part and they may be so treated only to the extent that—

[(i) such amounts do not exceed the applicable local market rate (as determined by the State in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary);

[(ii) the child care involved meets applicable standards of State and local law; and(iii) in the case of child care, the entity providing such care allows parental access.

[(4) The State must establish procedures to ensure that center-based child care will be subject to State and local requirements designed to ensure basic health and safety, including fire safety, protections. The State must also endeavor to develop guidelines for family day care. The State must provide the Secretary with a description of such State and local requirements and guidelines.

[(5) By October 1, 1992, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on the nature and content of State and local standards for health and safety.

[(6)(A) The Secretary shall make grants to States to improve their child care licensing and registration requirements and procedures, to enforce standards with respect to child care provided to children under this part, and to provide for the training of child care providers.

[(B) Subject to subparagraph (C), the Secretary shall make grants to each State under subparagraph (A) in proportion to the number of children in the State receiving aid under the State plan approved under subsection (a).

[(C) The Secretary may not make grants to a State under subparagraph (A) unless the State provides matching funds in an amount that is not less than 10 percent of the amount of the grant.

[(D) For grants under this paragraph, there is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary $13,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1990 and 1991, and $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1992, 1993, and 1994.

[(E) Each State to which the Secretary makes a grant under this paragraph shall expend not less than 50 percent of the amount of the grant to provide for the training of child care providers.

[(7) Activities under this subsection and subsection (i) shall be coordinated in each State with existing early childhood education programs in that State, including Head Start programs, preschool programs funded under chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981, and school and nonprofit child care programs (including community-based organizations receiving funds designated for preschool programs for handicapped children).

[(h)(1) Each State shall reevaluate the need standard and payment standard under its plan at least once every 3 years, in accordance with a schedule established by the Secretary, and report the results of the reevaluation to the Secretary and the public at such time and in such form and manner as the Secretary may require.

[(2) The report required by paragraph (1) shall include a statement of—

[(A) the manner in which the need standard of the State is determined,

[(B) the relationship between the need standard and the payment standard (expressed as a percentage or in any other manner determined by the Secretary to be appropriate), and

[(C) any changes in the need standard or the payment standard in the preceding 3-year period.

[(3) The Secretary shall report promptly to the Congress the results of the reevaluations required by paragraph (1).

[(i)(1) Each State agency may, to the extent that it determines that resources are available, provide child care in accordance with paragraph (2) to any low income family that the State determines—

[(A) is not receiving aid under the State plan approved under this part;

[(B) needs such care in order to work; and

[(C) would be at risk of becoming eligible for aid under the State plan approved under this part if such care were not provided.

[(2) The State agency may provide child care pursuant to paragraph (1) by—

[(A) providing such care directly;

[(B) arranging such care through providers by use of purchase of service contracts or vouchers;

[(C) providing cash or vouchers in advance to the family;

[(D) reimbursing the family; or(E) adopting such other arrangements as the agency deems appropriate.

[(3)(A) A family provided with child care under paragraph (1) shall contribute to such care in accordance with a sliding scale formula established by the State agency based on the family's ability to pay.

[(B) The State agency shall make payment for the cost of child care provided under paragraph (1) with respect to a family in an amount that is the lesser of—

[(i) the actual cost of such care; and

[(ii) the applicable local market rate (as determined by the State in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary).

[(4) The value of any child care provided or arranged (or any amount received as payment for such care or reimbursement for costs incurred for the care) under this subsection—

[(A) shall not be treated as income or as a deductible expense for purposes of any other Federal or federally assisted program that bases eligibility for or amount of benefits upon need; and

[(B) may not be claimed as an employment-related expense for purposes of the credit under section 21 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

[(5) Amounts expended by the State agency for child care under paragraph (1) shall be treated as amounts for which payment may be made to a State under section 403(n) only to the extent that—

[(A) such amounts are paid in accordance with paragraph (3)(B);

[(B) the care involved meets applicable standards of State and local law;

[(C) the provider of the care—

[(i) in the case of a provider who is not an individual that provides such care solely to members of the family of the individual, is licensed, regulated, or registered by the State or locality in which the care is provided; and

[(ii) allows parental access; and(D) such amounts are not used to supplant any other Federal or State funds used for child care services.

[(6)(A)(i) Each State shall prepare reports annually, beginning with fiscal year 1993, on the activities of the State carried out with funds made available under section 403(n).

[(ii) The State shall make available for public inspection within the State copies of each report required by this paragraph, shall transmit a copy of each such report to the Secretary, and shall provide a copy of each such report, on request, to any interested public agency.

[(iii) The Secretary shall annually compile, and submit to the Congress, the State reports transmitted to the Secretary pursuant to clause (ii).

[(B) Each report prepared and transmitted by a State under subparagraph (A) shall set forth with respect to child care services provided under this subsection—

[(i) showing separately for center-based child care services, group home child care services, family child care services, and relative care services, the number of children who received such services and the average cost of such services;

[(ii) the criteria applied in determining eligibility or priority for receiving services, and sliding fee schedules;

[(iii) the child care licensing and regulatory (including registration) requirements in effect in the State with respect to each type of service specified in clause (i); and

[(iv) the enforcement policies and practices in effect in the State which apply to licensed and regulated child care providers (including providers required to register).

[(C) Within 12 months after the date of the enactment of this subsection, the Secretary shall establish uniform reporting requirements for use by the States in preparing the information required by this paragraph, and make such other provision as may be necessary or appropriate to ensure that compliance with this subsection will not be unduly burdensome on the States.

[(D) Not later than July 1, 1992, the Secretary shall issue a report on the implementation of this subsection, based on such information as has been made available to the Secretary by the States.

[(PAYMENT TO STATES

[(SEC. 403. (a) From the sums appropriated therefor, the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to each State which has an approved plan for aid and services to needy families with children, for each quarter, beginning with the quarter commencing October 1, 1958—

[(1) in the case of any State other than Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa, an amount equal to the sum of the following proportions of the total amounts expended during such quarter as aid to families with dependent children under the State plan—

[(A) five-sixths of such expenditures, not counting so much of any expenditure with respect to any month as exceeds the product of $18 multiplied by the total number of recipients of aid to families with dependent children for such month (which total number, for purposes of this subsection, means (i) the number of individuals with respect to whom such aid in the form of money payments is paid for such month, plus (ii) the number of individuals, not counted under clause (i), with respect to whom payments described in section 406(b)(2) are made in such month and included as expenditures for purposes of this paragraph or paragraph (2)); plus

[(B) the Federal percentage of the amount by which such expenditures exceed the maximum which may be counted under clause (A), not counting so much of any expenditure with respect to any month as exceeds (i) the product of $32 multiplied by the total number of recipients of aid to families with dependent children (other than such aid in the form of foster care) for such month, plus (ii) the product of $100 multiplied by the total number of recipients of aid to families with dependent children in the form of foster care for such month; and

[(2) in the case of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa, an amount equal to one-half of the total of the sums expended during such quarter as aid to families with dependent children under the State plan, not counting so much of any expenditure with respect to any month as exceeds $18 multiplied by the total number of recipients of such aid for such month; and

[(3) in the case of any State, 50 percent of the total amounts expended during such quarter as found necessary by the Secretary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan, except that no payment shall be made with respect to amounts expended in connection with the provision of any service described in section 2002(a) other than services furnished pursuant to section 402(g); and

[(5) in the case of any State, an amount equal to 50 percent of the total amount expended under the State plan during such quarter as emergency assistance to needy families with children.

No payment shall be made under this subsection with respect to amounts paid to supplement or otherwise increase the amount of aid to families with dependent children found payable in accordance with section 402(a)(13) if such amount is determined to have been paid by the State in recognition of the current or anticipated needs of a family (other than with respect to the first or first and second months of eligibility), but any such amount, if determined to have been paid by the State in recognition of the difference between the current or anticipated needs of a family for a month based upon actual income or other relevant circumstances for such month, and the needs of such family for such month based upon income and other relevant circumstances as retrospectively determined under section 402(a)(13)(A)(ii), shall not be considered income within the meaning of section 402(a)(13) for the purpose of determining the amount of aid in the succeeding months.

(b) The method of computing and paying such amounts shall be as follows:

[(1) The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each quarter, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such quarter under the provisions of subsection (a), such estimate to be based on (A) a report filed by the State containing its estimate of the total sum to be expended in such quarter in accordance with the provisions of such subsection and stating the amount appropriated or made available by the State and its political subdivisions for such expenditures in such quarter, and if such amount is less than the State's proportionate share of the total sum of such estimated expenditures, the source or sources from which the difference is expected to be derived, (B) records showing the number of dependent children in the State, and (C) such other investigation as the Secretary may find necessary.

[(2) The Secretary shall then certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount so estimated by the Secretary, (A) reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum by which he finds that his estimate for any prior quarter was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such quarter, (B) reduced by a sum equivalent to the pro rata share to which the United States is equitably entitled, as determined by the Secretary, of the net amount recovered during any prior quarter by the State or any political subdivision thereof with respect to aid to families with dependent children furnished under the State plan, and (C) reduced by such amount as is necessary to provide the "appropriate reimbursement of the Federal Government" that the State is required to make under section 457 out of that portion of child support collections retained by it pursuant to such section; except that such increases or reductions shall not be made to the extent that such sums have been applied to make the amount certified for any prior quarter greater or less than the amount estimated by the Secretary for such prior quarter.

[(3) The Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon, through the Fiscal Service of the Department of the Treasury and prior to audit or settlement by the General Accounting Office, pay to the State, at the time or times fixed by the Secretary, the amount so certified.

[(e) In order to assist in obtaining the information needed to carry out subsection (b)(1) and otherwise to perform his duties under this part, the Secretary shall establish uniform reporting requirements under which each State will be required periodically to furnish such information and data as the Secretary may determine to be necessary to ensure that sections 402(a)(37), 402(a)(43), and 402(g)(1)(A), are being effectively implemented, including at a minimum the average monthly number of families assisted under each such section, the types of such families, the amounts expended with respect to such families, and the length of time for which such families are assisted. The information and data so furnished with respect to families assisted under section 402(g) shall be separately stated with respect to families who have earnings and those who do not, and with respect to families who are receiving aid under the State plan and those who are not.

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the amount payable to any State under this part for quarters in a fiscal year shall with respect to quarters in fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1973, be reduced by 1 per centum (calculated without regard to any reduction under section 403(g)) of such amount if such State—

[(1) in the immediately preceding fiscal year failed to carry out the provisions of section 402(a)(15)(B) as pertain to requiring the offering and arrangement for provision of family planning services; or

[(2) in the immediately preceding fiscal year (but, in the case of the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1972, only considering the third and fourth quarters thereof), failed to carry out the provisions of section 402(a)(15)(B) of the Social Security Act with respect to any individual who, within such period or periods as the Secretary may prescribe, has been an applicant for or recipient of aid to families with dependent children under the plan of the State approved under this part.

[(h)(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, if a State's program operated under part D is found as a result of a review conducted under section 452(a)(4) not to have complied substantially with the requirements of such part for any quarter beginning after September 30, 1983, and the Secretary determines that the State's program is not complying substantially with such requirements at the time such finding is made, the amounts otherwise payable to the State under this part for such quarter and each subsequent quarter, prior to the first quarter throughout which the State program is found to be in substantial compliance with such requirements, shall be reduced (subject to paragraph (2)) by—

[(A) not less than one nor more than two percent, or

[(B) not less than two nor more than three percent, if the finding is the second consecutive such finding made as a result of such a review, or

[(C) not less than three nor more than five percent, if the finding is the third or a subsequent consecutive such finding made as a result of such a review.

(2)(A) The reductions required under paragraph (1) shall be suspended for any quarter if—

[(i) the State submits a corrective action plan, within a period prescribed by the Secretary following notice of the finding under paragraph (1), which contains steps necessary to achieve substantial compliance within a time period which the Secretary finds to be appropriate;

[(ii) the Secretary approves such corrective action plan (and any amendments thereto) as being sufficient to achieve substantial compliance; and

[(iii) the Secretary finds that the corrective action plan (and any amendment thereto approved by the Secretary under clause (ii)), is being fully implemented by the State and that the State is progressing in accordance with the timetable contained in the plan to achieve substantial compliance with such requirements.

[(B) A suspension of the penalty under subparagraph (A) shall continue until such time as the Secretary determines that—

[(i) the State has achieved substantial compliance,

[(ii) the State is no longer implementing its corrective action plan, or

[(iii) the State is implementing or has implemented its corrective action plan but has failed to achieve substantial compliance within the appropriate time period (as specified in subparagraph (A)(i)).

[(C)(i) In the case of a State whose penalty suspension ends pursuant to subparagraph (B)(i), the penalty shall not be applied.

[(ii) In the case of a State whose penalty suspension ends pursuant to subparagraph (B)(ii), the penalty shall be applied as if the suspension had not occurred.

[(iii) In the case of a State whose penalty suspension ends pursuant to subparagraph (B)(iii), the penalty shall be applied to all quarters ending after the expiration of the time period specified in such subparagraph (and prior to the first quarter throughout which the State program is found to be in substantial compliance).

[(3) For purposes of this subsection, section 402(a)(27), and section 452(a)(4), a State which is not in full compliance with the requirements of this part shall be determined to be in substantial compliance with such requirements only if the Secretary determines that any noncompliance with such requirements is of a technical nature which does not adversely affect the performance of the child support enforcement program.

[(k)(1) Each State with a plan approved under part F shall be entitled to payments under subsection (1) for any fiscal year in an amount equal to the sum of the applicable percentages (specified in such subsection) of its expenditures to carry out the program under part F (subject to limitations prescribed by or pursuant to such part or this section on expenditures that may be included for purposes of determining payment under subsection (1)), but such payments for any fiscal year in the case of any State may not exceed the limitation determined under paragraph (2) with respect to the State.

[(2) The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is—

[(A) the amount allotted to the State for fiscal year 1987 under part C of this title as then in effect, plus

[(B) the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in paragraph (3) for such fiscal year as the average monthly number of adult recipients (as defined in paragraph (4)) in the State in the preceding fiscal year bears to the average monthly number of such recipients in all the States for such preceding year.

[(3) The amount specified in this paragraph is—

[(A) $600,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1989,

[(B) $800,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1990,

[(C) $1,000,000,000 in the case of each of the fiscal years 1991, 1992, and 1993,

[(D) $1,100,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1994,

[(E) $1,300,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1995, reduced by an amount equal to the total of those funds that are within each State's limitation for fiscal year 1995 that are not necessary to pay such State's allowable claims for such fiscal year (except that such amount for such year shall be deemed to be $1,300,000,000 for the purpose of determining the amount of the payment under subsection (1) to which each State is entitled), and

[(F) $1,000,000,000 in the case of the fiscal year 1996 and each succeeding fiscal year, reduced by an amount equal to the total of those funds that are within each State's limitation for fiscal year 1996 that are not necessary to pay such State's allowable claims for such fiscal year (except that such amount for such year shall be deemed to be $1,000,000,000 for the purpose of determining the amount of the payment under subsection (1) to which each State is entitled), reduced by the aggregate amount allotted to all the States for fiscal year 1987 pursuant to part C of this title as then in effect.

[(4) For purposes of this subsection, the term "adult recipient" in the case of any State means an individual other than a dependent child (unless such child is the custodial parent of another dependent child) whose needs are met (in whole or in part) with payments of aid to families with dependent children.

[(5) None of the funds available to a State for purposes of the programs or activities conducted under part F shall be used for construction.

[(1)(A) In lieu of any payment under subsection (a), the Secretary shall pay to each State with a plan approved under section 482(a) (subject to the limitation determined under section 482(i)(2)) with respect to expenditures by the State to carry out a program under part F (including expenditures for child care under section 402(g)(1)(A)(i), but only in the case of a State with respect to which section 1108 applies), an amount equal to—

[(i) with respect to so much of such expenditures in a fiscal year as do not exceed the State's expenditures in the fiscal year 1987 with respect to which payments were made to such State from its allotment for such fiscal year pursuant to part C of this title as then in effect, 90 percent; and

[(ii) with respect to so much of such expenditures in a fiscal year as exceed the amount described in clause (i)—

[(I) 50 percent, in the case of expenditures for administrative costs made by a State in operating such a program for such fiscal year (other than the personnel costs for staff employed full-time in the operation of such program) and the costs of transportation and other work-related supportive services under section 402(g)(2), and

[(II) the greater of 60 percent or the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1118 in the case of any State to which section 1108 applies, or as defined in section 1905(b) in the case of any other State), in the case of expenditures made by a State in operating such a program for such fiscal year (other than for costs described in subclause (I)).

[(B) With respect to the amount for which payment is made to a State under subparagraph (A)(i), the State's expenditures for the costs of operating a program established under part F may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated.

[(2)(A) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the Secretary shall pay to a State an amount equal to 50 percent of the expenditures made by such State in operating its program established under part F (in lieu of any different percentage specified in paragraph (1)(A)) if less than 55 percent of such expenditures are made with respect to individuals who are described in subparagraph (B).

[(B) An individual is described in this paragraph if the individual—

[(i)(I) is receiving aid to families with dependent children, and

[(II) has received such aid for any 36 of the preceding 60 months;

[(ii)(I) makes application for aid to families with dependent children, and

[(II) has received such aid for any 36 of the 60 months immediately preceding the most recent month for which application has been made;

[(iii) is a custodial parent under the age of 24 who (I) has not completed a high school education and, at the time of application for aid to families with dependent children, is not enrolled in high school (or a high school equivalency course of instruction), or (II) had little or no work experience in the preceding year; or [(iv) is a member of a family in which the youngest child is within 2 years of being ineligible for aid to families with dependent children because of age.

[(C) This paragraph may be waived by the Secretary with respect to any State which demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the characteristics of the caseload in that State make it infeasible to meet the requirements of this paragraph, and that the State is targeting other long-term or potential long-term recipients.

[(D) The Secretary shall biennially submit to the Congress any recommendations for modifications or additions to the groups of individuals described in subparagraph (B) that the Secretary determines would further the goal of assisting long-term or potential long-term recipients of aid to families with dependent children to achieve self-sufficiency, which recommendations shall take into account the particular characteristics of the populations of individual States.

[(3)(A) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the Secretary shall pay to a State an amount equal to 50 percent of the expenditures made by such State in a fiscal year in operating its program established under part F (in lieu of any different percentage specified in paragraph (1)(A)) if the State's participation rate (determined under subparagraph (B)) for the preceding fiscal year does not exceed or equal—

[(i) 7 percent if the preceding fiscal year is 1990;

[(ii) 7 percent if such year is 1991;

[(iii) 11 percent if such year is 1992;

[(iv) 11 percent if such year is 1993;

[(v) 15 percent if such year is 1994; and

[(vi) 20 percent if such year is 1995.

[(B)(i) The State's participation rate for a fiscal year shall be the average of its participation rates for computation periods (as defined in clause (ii)) in such fiscal year.

[(ii) The computation periods shall be—

[(I) the fiscal year, in the case of fiscal year 1990,

[(II) the first six months, and the seventh through twelfth months, in the case of fiscal year 1991,

[(III) the first three months, the fourth through sixth months, the seventh through ninth months, and the tenth through twelfth months, in the case of fiscal years 1992 and 1993, and

[(IV) each month, in the case of fiscal years 1994 and 1995.

[(iii) The State's participation rate for a computation period shall be the number, expressed as a percentage, equal to—

[(I) the average monthly number of individuals required or allowed by the State to participate in the program under part F who have participated in such program in months in the computation period, plus the number of individuals required or allowed by the State to participate in such program who have so participated in that month in such period for which the number of such participants is the greatest, divided by [(II) twice the average monthly number of individuals required to participate in such period (other than individuals described in subparagraph (C)(iii)(I) or (D) of section 402(a)(19) with respect to whom the State has exercised its option to require their participation).

For purposes of this subparagraph, an individual shall not be considered to have satisfactorily participated in the program under part F solely by reason of such individual being registered to participate in such program.

[(C) Notwithstanding any other provision of this paragraph, no State shall be subject to payment under this paragraph (in lieu of paragraph (1)(A)) for failing to meet any participation rate required under this paragraph with respect to any fiscal year before 1991.

[(D) For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be determined to have participated in the program under part F, if such individual has participated in accordance with such requirements, consistent with regulations of the Secretary, as the State shall establish.

[(E) If the Secretary determines that the State has failed to achieve the participation rate for any fiscal year specified in the numbered clauses of subparagraph (A), he may waive, in whole or in part, the reduction in the payment rate otherwise required by such subparagraph if he finds that—

[(i) the State is in conformity with section 402(a)(19) and part F;

[(ii) the State has made a good faith effort to achieve the applicable participation rate for such fiscal year; and

[(iii) the State has submitted a proposal which is likely to achieve the applicable participation rate for the current fiscal year and the subsequent fiscal years (if any) specified therein.

[(4)(A)(i) Subject to subparagraph (B), in the case of any family eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner, the State agency shall require that at least one parent in any such family participate, for a total of at least 16 hours a week during any period in which either parent is required to participate in the program, in a work supplementation program, a community work experience or other work experience program, on-the-job training, or a State designed work program approved by the Secretary, as such programs are described in section 482(d)(1). In the case of a parent under age 25 who has not completed high school or an equivalent course of education, the State may require such parent to participate in educational activities directed at the attainment of a high school diploma (or equivalent) or another basic education program in lieu of one or more of the programs specified in the preceding sentence.

[(ii) For purposes of clause (i), an individual participating in a community work experience program under section 482 shall be considered to have met the requirement of such clause if he participates for the number of hours in any month equal to the monthly payment of aid to families with dependent children to the family of which he is a member, divided by the greater of the Federal or the applicable State minimum wage (and the portion of such monthly payment for which the State is reimbursed by a child support collection shall not be taken into account in determining the number of hours that such individual may be required to work).

[(B) The requirement under subparagraph (A) shall not be considered to have been met by any State if the requirement is not met with respect to the following percentages of all families in the State eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner:

[(i) 40 percent, in the case of the average of each month in fiscal year 1994,

[(ii) 50 percent, in the case of the average of each month in fiscal year 1995,

[(iii) 60 percent, in the case of the average of each month in fiscal year 1996, and

[(iv) 75 percent in the case of the average of each month in each of the fiscal years 1997 and 1998.

[(C) The percentage of participants for any month in a fiscal year for purposes of the preceding sentence shall equal the average of—

[(i) the number of individuals described in subparagraph (A)(i) who have met the requirement prescribed therein, divided by

[(ii) the total number of principal earners described in such subparagraph (but excluding those in families who have been recipients of aid for 2 months or less if, during the period that the family received aid, at least one parent engaged in intensive job search).

[(D) If the Secretary determines that the State has failed to meet the requirement under subparagraph (A) (determined with respect to the percentages prescribed in subparagraph (B)), he may waive, in whole or in part, any penalty if he finds that—

[(i) the State is operating a program in conformity with section 402(a)(19) and part F,

[(ii) the State has made a good faith effort to meet the requirement of subparagraph (A) but has been unable to do so because of economic conditions in the State (including significant numbers of recipients living in remote locations or isolated rural areas where the availability of work sites is severely limited), or because of rapid and substantial increases in the caseload that cannot reasonably be planned for, and

[(iii) the State has submitted a proposal which is likely to achieve the required percentage of participants for the subsequent fiscal years.

[(m)(1) During the 12-month period beginning on July 1, 1988 (in this subsection referred to as the “moratorium period”), the Secretary shall not impose any reductions in payments to States pursuant to subsection (i) (or prior regulations), or pursuant to any comparable provision of law relating to the programs under this part in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, or the Northern Mariana Islands.

[(2) During the moratorium period—

[(A) the Secretary and the States shall continue to operate the quality control systems in effect under this part, and to calculate the error rates under the provisions referred to in paragraph (1), including the process of requesting and reviewing waivers; and

[(B) the Departmental Grant Appeals Board shall, notwithstanding paragraph (1), review disallowances for fiscal year 1981 and thereafter and hear appeals with respect thereto (but collection of disallowances owed as a result of Departmental Grant Appeals Board decisions shall not occur).

[(n)(1) In addition to any payment under subsection (a) or (l), each State shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary of an amount equal to the lesser of—

[(A) the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)) of the expenditures by the State in providing child care services pursuant to section 402(i), and in administering the provision of such child care services, for any fiscal year; and

[(B) the limitation determined under paragraph (2) with respect to the State for the fiscal year.

[(2)(A) The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in subparagraph (B) for such fiscal year as the number of children residing in the State in the second preceding fiscal year bears to the number of children residing in the United States in the second preceding fiscal year.

[(B) The amount specified in this subparagraph is—

[(i) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1991;

[(ii) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1992;

[(iii) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1993;

[(iv) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1994; and

[(v) $300,000,000 for fiscal year 1995, and for each fiscal year thereafter.

[(C) If the limitation determined under subparagraph (A) with respect to a State for a fiscal year exceeds the amount paid to the State under this subsection for the fiscal year, the limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to the State for the immediately succeeding fiscal year shall be increased by the amount of such excess.

[(3) Amounts appropriated for a fiscal year to carry out this part shall be made available for payments under this subsection for such fiscal year.

【OPERATION OF STATE PLANS

【SEC. 404. (a) In the case of any State plan for aid and services to needy families with children which has been approved by the Secretary, if the Secretary, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency administering or supervising the administration of such plan, finds—

[(1) that the plan has been so changed as to impose any residence requirement prohibited by section 402(b), or that in the administration of the plan any such prohibited requirement is imposed, with the knowledge of such State agency, in a substantial number of cases; or

[(2) that in the administration of the plan there is a failure to comply substantially with any provision required by section 402(a) to be included in the plan; the Secretary shall notify such State agency that further payments will not be made to the State (or, in his discretion, that payments will be limited to categories under or parts of the State plan not affected by such failure) until the Secretary is satisfied that such prohibited requirement is no longer so imposed, and that there is no longer any such failure to comply. Until he is so satisfied he shall make no further payments to such State (or shall limit payments to categories under or parts of the State plan not affected by such failure).

[(b) No payment to which a State is otherwise entitled under this part for any period before September 1, 1962, shall be withheld by reason of any action taken pursuant to a State statute which requires that aid be denied under the State plan approved under this part with respect to a child because of the conditions in the home in which the child resides; nor shall any such payment be withheld for any period beginning on or after such date by reason of any action taken pursuant to such a statute if provision is otherwise made pursuant to a State statute for adequate care and assistance with respect to such child.

[(c) No State shall be found, prior to January 1, 1977, to have failed substantially to comply with the requirements of section 402(a)(27) if, in the judgment of the Secretary, such State is making a good faith effort to implement the program required by such section.

[(d) After December 31, 1976, in the case of any State which is found to have failed substantially to comply with the requirements of section 402(a)(27), the reduction in any amount payable to such State required to be imposed under section 403(h) shall be imposed in lieu of any reduction, with respect to such failure, which would otherwise be required to be imposed under this section.

[(USE OF PAYMENTS FOR BENEFIT OF CHILD

[(SEC. 405. Whenever the State agency has reason to believe that any payments of aid to families with dependent children made with respect to a child are not being or may not be used in the best interests of the child, the State agency may provide for such counseling and guidance services with respect to the use of such payments and the management of other funds by the relative receiving such payments as it deems advisable in order to assure use of such payments in the best interests of such child, and may provide for advising such relative that continued failure to so use such payments will result in substitution therefor of protective payments as provided under section 406(b)(2), or in seeking appointment of a guardian or legal representative as provided in section 1111, or in the imposition of criminal or civil penalties authorized under State law if it is determined by a court of competent jurisdiction that such relative is not using or has not used for the benefit of the child any such payments made for that purpose; and the provision of such services or advice by the State agency (or the taking of the action specified in such advice) shall not serve as a basis for withholding funds from such State under section 404 and shall not prevent such payments with respect to such child from being considered aid to families with dependent children.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 406. When used in this part—

(a) The term “dependent child” means a needy child (1) who has been deprived of parental support or care by reason of the death, continued absence from the home (other than absence occasioned solely by reason of the performance of active duty in the uniformed services of the United States), or physical or mental incapacity of a parent, and who is living with his father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, brother, sister, stepfather, stepmother, stepbrother, stepsister, uncle, aunt, first cousin, nephew, or niece, in a place of residence maintained by one or more of such relatives as his or their own home, and (2) who is (A) under the age of eighteen, or (B) at the option of the State, under the age of nineteen and a full-time student in a secondary school (or in the equivalent level of vocational or technical training), if, before he attains age nineteen, he may reasonably be expected to complete the program of such secondary school (or such training);

(b) The term “aid to families with dependent children” means money payments with respect to a dependent child or dependent children, or, at the option of the State, a pregnant woman but only if it has been medically verified that the child is expected to be born in the month such payments are made or within the three-month period following such month of payment, and who, if such child had been born and was living with her in the month of payment, would be eligible for aid to families with dependent children, and includes (1) money payments to meet the needs of the relative with whom any dependent child is living (and the spouse of such relative if living with him and if such relative is the child’s parent and the child is a dependent child by reason of the physical or mental incapacity of a parent or is a dependent child under section 407), and (2) payments with respect to any dependent child (including payments to meet the needs of the relative, and the relative’s spouse, with whom such child is living, and the needs of any other individual living in the same home if such needs are taken into account in making the determination under section 402(a)(7)) which do not meet the preceding requirements of this subsection, but which would meet such requirements except that such payments are made to another individual who (as determined in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary) is interested in or concerned with the welfare of such child or relative, or are made on behalf of such child or relative directly to a person furnishing food, living accommodations, or other goods, services, or items to or for such child, relative, or other individual, but only with respect to a State whose State plan approved under section 402 includes provision for—

(A) determination by the State agency that the relative of the child with respect to whom such payments are made has such inability to manage funds that making payments to him would be contrary to the welfare of the child and, therefore, it is necessary to provide such aid with respect to such child and relative through payments described in this clause (2);

[(B) undertaking and continuing special efforts to develop greater ability on the part of the relative to manage funds in such manner as to protect the welfare of the family;

[(C) periodic review by such State agency of the determination under clause (A) to ascertain whether conditions justifying such determination still exist, with provision for termination of such payments if they do not and for seeking judicial appointment of a guardian or other legal representative, as described in section 1111, if and when it appears that the need for such payments is continuing, or is likely to continue, beyond a period specified by the Secretary; and

[(D) opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency on the determination referred to in clause (A) for any individual with respect to whom it is made.

Payments with respect to a dependent child which are intended to enable the recipient to pay for specific goods, services, or items recognized by the State agency as a part of the child's need under the State plan may (in the discretion of the State or local agency administering the plan in the political subdivision) be made, pursuant to a determination referred to in clause (2)(A), in the form of checks drawn jointly to the order of the recipient and the person furnishing such goods, services, or items and negotiable only upon endorsement by both such recipient and such person; and payments so made shall be considered for all of the purposes of this part to be payments described in clause (2). Whenever payments with respect to a dependent child are made in the manner described in clause (2) (including payments described in the preceding sentence), a statement of the specific reasons for making such payments in that manner (on which the determination under clause (2)(A) was based) shall be placed in the file maintained with respect to such child by the State or local agency administering the State plan in the political subdivision. Payments of the type described in clause (2) shall not be subject to the requirements of clauses (A) through (D) of such clause (2), when they are made in the manner described in clause (2) at the request of the family member to whom payment would otherwise be made in an unrestricted manner.

[(c) The term "relative with whom any dependent child is living" means the individual who is one of the relatives specified in subsection (a) and with whom such child is living (within the meaning of such subsection) in a place of residence maintained by such individual (himself or together with any one or more of the other relatives so specified) as his (or their) own home.

[(e)(1) The term "emergency assistance to needy families with children" means any of the following, furnished for a period not in excess of 30 days in any 12-month period, in the case of a needy child under the age of 21 who is (or, within such period as may be specified by the Secretary, has been) living with any of the relatives specified in subsection (a)(1) in a place of residence maintained by one or more of such relatives as his or their own home, but only where such child is without available resources, the payments, care, or services involved are necessary to avoid destitution of such child or to provide living arrangements in a home for such child, and such destitution or need for living arrangements did not arise because such child or relative refused without good cause to accept employment or training for employment—

[(A) money payments, payments in kind, or such other payments as the State agency may specify with respect to, or medical care or any other type of remedial care recognized under State law (for which such individual is not entitled to medical assistance under the State plan under title XIX) on behalf of, such child or any other member of the household in which he is living, and

[(B) such services as may be specified by the Secretary; but only with respect to a State whose State plan approved under section 402 includes provision for such assistance.

[(2) Emergency assistance as authorized under paragraph (1) may be provided under the conditions specified in such paragraph to migrant workers with families in the State or in such part or parts thereof as the State shall designate.

[(f) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (b), the term “aid to families with dependent children” does not mean payments with respect to a parent (or other individual whose needs such State determines should be considered in determining the need of the child or relative claiming aid under the plan of such State approved under this part) of a child who fails to cooperate with any agency or official of the State in obtaining such support payments for such child. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to make an otherwise eligible child ineligible for protective payments because of the failure of such parent (or such other individual) to so cooperate.

[(g) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (b), the term “aid to families with dependent children” does not mean any—

[(1) amount paid to meet the needs of an unborn child; or

[(2) amount paid (or by which a payment is increased) to meet the needs of a woman occasioned by or resulting from her pregnancy, unless, as has been medically verified, the woman’s child is expected to be born in the month such payments are made (or increased) or within the three-month period following such month of payment.

[(h) Each dependent child, and each relative with whom such a child is living (including the spouse of such relative as described in subsection (b)), who becomes ineligible for aid to families with dependent children as a result (wholly or partly) of the collection or increased collection of child or spousal support under part D, and who has received such aid in at least three of the six months immediately preceding the month in which such ineligibility begins, shall be deemed to be a recipient of aid to families with dependent children for purposes of title XIX for an additional four calendar months beginning with the month in which such ineligibility begins.

DEPENDENT CHILDREN OF UNEMPLOYED PARENTS

[SEC. 407. (a) The term “dependent child” shall, notwithstanding section 406(a), include a needy child who meets the requirements of section 406(a)(2), who has been deprived of parental support or care by reason of the unemployment (as determined in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary) of the parent who is the principal earner, and who is living with any of the relatives specified in section 406(a)(1) in a place of residence maintained by one or more of such relatives as his (or their) own home.

[(b)(1) In providing for the provision of aid to families with dependent children under the State's plan approved under section 402, in the case of families that include dependent children within the meaning of subsection (a) of this section, as required by section 402(a)(41), the State's plan—

[(A) subject to paragraph (2), shall require the payment of aid to families with dependent children with respect to a dependent child as defined in subsection (a) when—

[(i) whichever of such child's parents is the principal earner has not been employed (as determined in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary) for at least 30 days prior to the receipt of such aid,

[(ii) such parent has not without good cause, within such period (of not less than 30 days) as may be prescribed by the Secretary, refused a bona fide offer of employment or training for employment, and

[(iii)(I) such parent has 6 or more quarters of work (as defined in subsection (d)(1)), no more than 4 of which may be quarters of work defined in subsection (d)(1)(B), in any 13-calendar-quarter period ending within one year prior to the application for such aid or (II) such parent received unemployment compensation under an unemployment compensation law of a State or of the United States, or such parent was qualified (within the meaning of subsection (d)(3)) for unemployment compensation under the unemployment compensation law of the State, within one year prior to the application for such aid; and

[(B) shall provide—

[(i) for such assurances as will satisfy the Secretary that unemployed parents of dependent children as defined in subsection (a) will participate or apply for participation in a program under part F (unless the program is not available in the area where the parent is living) within 30 days after receipt of aid with respect to such children;

[(ii) for entering into cooperative arrangements with the State agency responsible for administering or supervising the administration of vocational education in the State, designed to assure maximum utilization of available public vocational education services and facilities in the State in order to encourage the retraining of individuals capable of being retrained;

[(iii) for the denial of aid to families with dependent children to any child or relative specified in subsection (a) with respect to any week for which such child's parent described in subparagraph (A)(i) qualifies for unemployment compensation under an unemployment compensation law of a State or of the United States, but refuses to apply for or accept such unemployment compensation;

[(iv) for the reduction of the aid to families with dependent children otherwise payable to any child or relative specified in subsection (a) by the amount of any unemployment compensation that such child's parent described in subparagraph (A)(i) receives under an unemployment compensation law of a State or of the United States; and

[(v) that, if and for so long as the child's parent described in subparagraph (A)(i), unless meeting a condition of section 402(a)(19)(C), is, without good cause, not participating (or available for participation) in a program under part F, or if exempt under such section by reason of clause (vii) thereof or because there has not been established or provided under part F a program in which such parent can effectively participate, is not registered with the public employment offices in the State, the needs of such parent shall not be taken into account in determining the need of such parent's family under section 402(a)(7), and the needs of such parent's spouse shall not be so taken into account unless such spouse is participating in such a program, or if not participating solely by reason of section 402(a)(19)(C)(vii) or because there has not been established or provided under part F a program in which such spouse can effectively participate, is registered with the public employment offices of the State; and if neither parents' needs are so taken into account, the payment provisions of section 402(a)(19)(G)(i)(I) shall apply.

[(2)(A) In carrying out the program under this section, a State may design its program to reflect the individual needs of the State and to emphasize education, training, and employment services for unemployed parents and their spouses who are eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of this section, to the extent provided under this paragraph.

[(B)(i) Subject to clauses (ii) and (iii), with respect to the requirement under section 402(a)(41), a State may, at its option, limit the number of months with respect to which a family receives aid to families with dependent children to the extent determined appropriate by the State for the operation of its program under this section.

[(ii)(I) A State may not limit the number of months under clause (i) for which a family may receive aid to families with dependent children unless it provides in its plan assurances to the Secretary that it has a program (that meets such requirements as the Secretary may in regulation prescribe) for providing education, training, and employment services (including any activity authorized under section 402(a)(19) or under part F) in order to assist parents of children described in subsection (a) in preparing for and obtaining employment.

[(II) In exercising the option under clause (i), a State plan may not provide for the denial of aid to families with dependent children to a family otherwise eligible for such aid for any month unless the family has received such aid (on the basis of the unemployment of the parent who is the principal earner) in at least 6 of the preceding 12 months.

[(III) Any family that is otherwise eligible for aid to families with dependent children that does not receive such aid in any month solely by reason of the State exercising the option under clause (i) shall be deemed, for purposes of determining the period under paragraph (1)(A)(iii)(I), to be receiving such aid in such month.

[(iii) Each State which, on September 26, 1988, has a program in effect under this section shall continue to operate such program without a time limitation.

[(C) With respect to the participation in the program under section 402(a)(19) and part F of a family eligible for aid to families with dependent children by reason of this section, a State may, at its option—

[(i) except as otherwise provided in such section and such part, require that any parent participating in such program engage in program activities for up to 40 hours per week; and

[(ii) provide for the payment of aid to families with dependent children at regular intervals of no greater than one month but after the performance of assigned program activities.

[(c) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this section, expenditures pursuant to this section shall be excluded from aid to families with dependent children (A) where such expenditures are made under the plan with respect to any dependent child as defined in subsection (a), (i) for any part of the 30-day period referred to in subsection (b)(1)(A)(i), or (ii) for any period prior to the time when the parent satisfies subsection (b)(1)(A)(ii), and (B) if, and for as long as, no action is taken (after the 30-day period referred to in subsection (b)(1)(B)(i), under the program therein specified, to undertake appropriate steps directed towards the participation of such parent in a program under part F.

[(d) For purposes of this section—

[(1) the term “quarter of work” with respect to any individual means (A) a calendar quarter in which such individual received earned income of not less than $50 (or which is a “quarter of coverage” as defined in section 213(a)(2)), or in which such individual participated in a program under part F, (B) at the option of the State, a calendar quarter in which such individual attended, full-time, an elementary school, a secondary school, or a vocational or technical training course (approved by the Secretary) that is designed to prepare the individual for gainful employment, or in which such individual participated in an education or training program established under the Job Training Partnership Act, and (C) a calendar quarter ending before October 1990 in which such individual participated in a community work experience program under section 409 (as in effect for a State immediately before the effective date for that State of the amendments made by title II of the Family Support Act of 1988 or the work incentive program established under part C (as in effect for a State immediately before such effective date);

[(2) the term “calendar quarter” means a period of 3 consecutive calendar months ending on March 31, June 30, September 30, or December 31;

[(3) an individual shall, for purposes of subsection (b)(1)(A)(iii), be deemed qualified for unemployment compensation under the State's unemployment compensation law if—

[(A) he would have been eligible to receive such unemployment compensation upon filing application, or

[(B) he performed work not covered under such law and such work, if it had been covered, would (together with any covered work he performed) have made him eligible to receive such unemployment compensation upon filing application; and

[(4) the phrase "whichever of such child's parents is the principal earner", in the case of any child, means whichever parent, in a home in which both parents of such child are living, earned the greater amount of income in the 24-month period the last month of which immediately precedes the month in which an application is filed for aid under this part on the basis of the unemployment of a parent, for each consecutive month for which the family receives such aid on that basis.

Notwithstanding section 402(a)(1), a State that chooses to exercise the option provided under paragraph (1)(B) may provide that the definition of calendar quarter under such option apply in one or more political subdivisions of the State.

[(e) The Secretary and the Secretary of Labor shall jointly enter into an agreement with each State which is able and willing to do so for the purpose of (1) simplifying the procedures to be followed by unemployed parents and other unemployed persons in such State in participating in a program under part F and in registering with public employment offices (under this section and otherwise) or in connection with applications for unemployment compensation, by reducing the number of locations or agencies where such persons must go in order to participate in or register for such programs and in connection with such applications, and (2) providing where possible for a single registration satisfying this section and the requirements of both part F and the applicable unemployment compensation laws.

[SEC. 408. AFDC QUALITY CONTROL SYSTEM.—

[(a) IN GENERAL.—In order to improve the accuracy of payments of aid to families with dependent children, the Secretary shall establish and operate a quality control system under which the Secretary shall determine, with respect to each State, the amount (if any) of the disallowance required to be repaid to the Secretary due to erroneous payments made by the State in carrying out the State plan approved under this part.

[(b) REVIEW OF CASES.—

[(1) STATE REVIEW.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—Each State with a plan approved under this part shall for each fiscal year, in accordance with the time schedule and methodology prescribed in regulations issued under paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (h)—

[(i) review a sample of cases in the State with respect to which a payment has been made under such plan during the fiscal year; and

[(ii) determine the level of erroneous payments for the State for the fiscal year.

[(B) Effects of failure to complete review in a timely manner.—

[(i) SECRETARY CONDUCTS REVIEW.—If a State fails to conduct and complete, on a timely basis, a review required by subparagraph (A), or otherwise fails to cooperate with the Secretary in implementing this subsection, the Secretary, directly or through contractual or such other arrangements as the Secretary may find appropriate, shall conduct the review and establish the error rate for the State for the fiscal year on the basis of the best data reasonably available to the Secretary, in accordance with the statistical methods that would apply if the review were conducted by the State.

[(ii) STATE INCURS COSTS OF REVIEW.—The amount that would otherwise be payable under this part to a State for which the Secretary conducts a review under clause (i) shall be reduced by the costs incurred by the Secretary in conducting the review.

[(2) REVIEW BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary shall review a subsample of the cases reviewed by the State, or by the Secretary with respect to the State, under paragraph (1).

[(3) NOTIFICATION OF DIFFERENCE CASES.—Upon completion of the review under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall notify the State of any case in the subsample which the Secretary finds involves erroneous payments, and which the State's review determined to be correct (in this section referred to as a "difference case").

The findings of the Panel shall be made on the record, within the time period prescribed in regulations issued under subsection (h)(4).

[(C) STATUS OF DECISIONS OF THE QUALITY CONTROL REVIEW PANEL.—The decisions of the Panel shall constitute the decisions of the Secretary for purposes of establishing the State's error rate for the fiscal year.

[(D) APPEALABILITY OF DECISIONS OF THE QUALITY CONTROL REVIEW PANEL.—The decisions of the Panel shall not be appealable, except as provided in subsection (k).

[(c) IDENTIFICATION OF ERRONEOUS PAYMENTS.—

[(1) APPLY PROVISIONS OF STATE PLAN.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), in determining whether a payment is an erroneous payment, the State and the Secretary shall apply all relevant provisions of the State plan approved under this part.

[(2) TREATMENT OF PROVISIONS OF STATE PLAN THAT ARE INCONSISTENT WITH FEDERAL LAW.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—If a provision of a State plan approved under this part is inconsistent with a provision of Federal law or regulations, and the Secretary has notified the State of the inconsistency, the provision of Federal law or regulations shall control.

[(B) EXCEPTION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to a payment of the State if—

[(i) it is necessary for the State to enact a law in order to remove an inconsistency described in subparagraph (A), the Secretary has advised the State that the State will be allowed a reasonable period in which to enact such a law, and the payment was made during such period; or [(ii) the State agency made the payment in compliance with a court order.

[(3) CERTAIN PAYMENTS NOT CONSIDERED ERRONEOUS.—For purposes of this section, a payment by a State shall not be considered an erroneous payment if the payment is in error solely by reason of—

[(A) the State's failure to implement properly changes in Federal statute within 6 months after the effective date of such changes or, if later, 6 months after the issuance of final regulations (including regulations in interim final form) if such regulations are reasonably necessary to construe or apply the Federal statutory change;

[(i) results in the declaration by the President or the Governor of the State of a state of emergency or major disaster; and

[(ii) directly affects the State agency's ability to make correct payments under the State plan approved under this part; or

[(E) the failure of a family to submit monthly reports to the State pursuant to section 402(a)(14), if the failure did not affect the amount of the payment.

[(4) CERTAIN PAYMENTS CONSIDERED ERRONEOUS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a payment shall be considered an erroneous payment if the payment is made to a family—

[(A) which has failed without good cause to assign support rights as required by section 402(a)(26); or

[(B) any member of which is a recipient of aid under a State plan approved under this part and does not have a social security account number (unless an application for a social security account number for the family member has been filed within 30 days after the date of application for such aid).

[(d) DETERMINATION OF ERROR RATES.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall, in accordance with this subsection, determine an error rate for each State for the fiscal year involved, based on the reviews under paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (b) and the decisions of the Quality Control Review Panel under subsection (b)(5).

[(3) APPLICATION OF REDUCTION TO SUBSEQUENT FISCAL YEAR.—At the request of a State, the Secretary shall apply the reduction described in paragraph (2)(B) in determining the State's error rate for either of the 2 following fiscal years instead of in determining the State's error rate for the fiscal year to which the reduction would otherwise apply.

[(e) NOTIFICATION TO STATES OF ERROR RATES.—The Secretary shall notify each State of the error rate of the State determined under subsection (d), within the time period prescribed in regulations issued under subsection (h)(5).

[(f) IMPOSITION OF DISALLOWANCES.—If a State's error rate for the fiscal year exceeds the national average error rate for the fiscal year, the Secretary shall impose a disallowance on the State for the fiscal year in an amount equal to—

[(h) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary, after consultation with the chief executives of the States, shall by regulation prescribe—

- [(1) the periods within which—

- [(6) the period within which the Secretary is to notify a State of any disallowance.

[(B) enter into an agreement with the Secretary under which the State will make quarterly payments to the Secretary over a period not to exceed 30 months beginning not later than the first quarter beginning after the date the State receives the notice, in amounts sufficient to repay the disallowance with interest by the end of such period.

[(2) AUTHORITY TO ADJUST STATE MATCHING PAYMENTS.—
If a State fails to pay the amount of a disallowance imposed on the State, in the manner required by the applicable subparagraph of paragraph (1), the Secretary shall reduce the amount to be paid to the State under section 403(a) by amounts sufficient to recover the amount of the disallowance with interest.

[(j) ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW OF DISALLOWANCES.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 60 days after the date a State receives notice of a disallowance imposed under this section, the State may appeal the imposition of the disallowance, in whole or in part, to the Departmental Appeals Board established in the Department of Health and Human Services, by filing an appeal with the Board.

[(2) PROCEDURAL RULES.—The Board shall consider a State's appeal on the basis of such documentation as the State may submit and as the Board may require to support the final decision of the Board. In deciding whether to uphold a disallowance or any portion thereof, the Board shall conduct a thorough review of the issues and take into account all relevant evidence. In rendering its final decision, the Board shall incorporate by reference any findings of the Quality Control Review Panel that were made in connection with the determination of the error rate and the amount of the disallowance, and such findings shall not be reviewable by the Board.

[(k) JUDICIAL REVIEW OF DISALLOWANCES.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 90 days after the date of a final decision by the Departmental Appeals Board with respect to the imposition of a disallowance on a State under this section, the State may obtain judicial review of the final decision (and the findings of the Quality Control Review Panel incorporated into the final decision) by filing an action in—

The review shall be on the basis of the documents and supporting data submitted to the Board (or to the Quality Control Review Panel, in the case of any finding by the Panel which is at issue in the appeal).

[(1) REFUND OF DISALLOWANCES IMPOSED IN ERROR.—If the Secretary, directly or indirectly, receives from a State part or all of the amount of a disallowance imposed on the State under this section, and part or all of the disallowance is finally determined to have been imposed in error, the Secretary shall refund to the State the amount received by reason of the error, with interest which shall accrue from the date of receipt at the rate described in subsection (i)(3)(A).

[(iv) any payments of alimony or child support with respect to individuals not living in such household.

[(2) The amount of resources of a sponsor (and his spouse) which shall be deemed to be the resources of an alien for any month shall be determined as follows:

[(A) the total amount of the resources (determined as if the sponsor were applying for aid under the State plan approved under this part) of such sponsor and such sponsor's spouse (if such spouse is living with the sponsor) shall be determined; and

[(B) the amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be reduced by $1,500.

[(c)(1) Any individual who is an alien and whose sponsor was a public or private agency shall be ineligible for aid under a State plan approved under this part during the period of three years after his or her entry into the United States, unless the State agency administering such plan determines that such sponsor either no longer exists or has become unable to meet such individual's needs; and such determination shall be made by the State agency based upon such criteria as it may specify in the State plan, and upon such documentary evidence as it may therein require. Any such individual, and any other individual who is an alien (as a condition of his or her eligibility for aid under a State plan approved under this part during the period of three years after his or her entry into the United States), shall be required to provide to the State agency administering such plan such information and documentation with respect to his sponsor as may be necessary in order for the State agency to make any determination required under this section, and to obtain any cooperation from such sponsor necessary for any such determination. Such alien shall also be required to provide to the State agency such information and documentation as it may request and which such alien or his sponsor provided in support of such alien's immigration application.

[(2) The Secretary shall enter into agreements with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General whereby any information available to them and required in order to make any determination under this section will be provided by them to the Secretary (who may, in turn, make such information available, upon request, to a concerned State agency), and whereby the Secretary of State and Attorney General will inform any sponsor of an alien, at the time such sponsor executes an affidavit of support or similar agreement, of the requirements imposed by this section.

[(d) Any sponsor of an alien, and such alien, shall be jointly and severally liable for an amount equal to any overpayment of aid under the State plan made to such alien during the period of three years after such alien's entry into the United States, on account of such sponsor's failure to provide correct information under the provisions of this section, except where such sponsor was without fault, or where good cause of such failure existed. Any such overpayment which is not repaid to the State or recovered in accordance with the procedures generally applicable under the State plan to the recoupment of overpayments shall be withheld from any subsequent payment to which such alien or such sponsor is entitled under any provision of this Act.

[(e)(1) In any case where a person is the sponsor of two or more alien individuals who are living in the same home, the income and resources of such sponsor (and his spouse), to the extent they would be deemed the income and resources of any one of such individuals under the preceding provisions of this section, shall be divided into two or more equal shares (the number of shares being the same as the number of such alien individuals) and the income and resources of each such individual shall be deemed to include one such share.

[(2) Income and resources of a sponsor (and his spouse) which are deemed under this section to be the income and resources of any alien individual in a family shall not be considered in determining the need of other family members except to the extent such income or resources are actually available to such other members.

[(f)The provisions of this section shall not apply with respect to any alien who is—

[(1) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, prior to April 1, 1980, of the provisions of section 203(a)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

[(2) admitted to the United States as a result of the application, after March 31, 1980, of the provisions of section 207(c) of such Act;

[(3) paroled into the United States as a refugee under section 212(d)(5) of such Act;

[(4) granted political asylum by the Attorney General under section 208 of such Act; or

[(5) a Cuban and Haitian entrant, as defined in section 501(e) of the Refugee Education Assistance Act of 1980 (Public Law 96-422).

[FRAUD CONTROL

[SEC. 416. (a) Any State, in the administration of its State plan approved under section 402, may elect to establish and operate a fraud control program in accordance with this section.

[(b) Under any such program, if an individual who is a member of a family applying for or receiving aid under the State plan approved under section 402 is found by a Federal or State court or pursuant to an administrative hearing meeting requirements determined in regulations of the Secretary, on the basis of a plea of guilty or nolo contendere or otherwise, to have intentionally—

[(1) made a false or misleading statement or misrepresented, concealed, or withheld facts, or

[(2) committed any act intended to mislead, misrepresent, conceal, or withhold facts or propound a falsity,

[for the purpose of establishing or maintaining the family's eligibility for aid under such State plan or of increasing (or preventing a reduction in) the amount of such aid, then the needs of such individual shall not be taken into account in making the determination under section 402(a)(7) with respect to his or her family (A) for a period of 6 months upon the first occasion of any such offense, (B) for a period of 12 months upon the second occasion of any such offense, and (C) permanently upon the third or a subsequent occasion of any such offense.

[(c) The State agency involved shall proceed against any individual alleged to have committed an offense described in subsection (b) either by way of administrative hearing or by referring the matter to the appropriate authorities for civil or criminal action in a court of law. The State agency shall coordinate its actions under this section with any corresponding actions being taken under the food stamp program in any case where the factual issues involved arise from the same or related circumstances.

[(d) Any period for which sanctions are imposed under subsection (b) shall remain in effect, without possibility of administrative stay, unless and until the finding upon which the sanctions were imposed is subsequently reversed by a court of appropriate jurisdiction; but in no event shall the duration of the period for which such sanctions are imposed be subject to review.

[(e) The sanctions provided under subsection (b) shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other sanctions which may be provided for by law with respect to the offenses involved.

[(f) Each State which has elected to establish and operate a fraud control program under this section must provide all applicants for aid to families with dependent children under its approved State plan, at the time of their application for such aid, with a written notice of the penalties for fraud which are provided for under this section.

【SEC. 417. The programs under this part, part D, and part F shall be administered by an Assistant Secretary for Family Support within the Department of Health and Human Services, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall be in addition to any other Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services provided for by law.

【PART B—CHILD AND FAMILY SERVICES

【APPROPRIATION

【SEC. 420. (a) For the purpose of enabling the United States, through the Secretary, to cooperate with State public welfare agencies in establishing, extending, and strengthening child welfare services, there is authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year the sum of $325,000,000.

【(b) Funds appropriated for any fiscal year pursuant to the authorization contained in subsection (a) shall be included in the appropriation Act (or supplemental appropriation Act) for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which such funds are available for obligation. In order to effect a transition to this method of timing appropriation action, the preceding sentence shall apply notwithstanding the fact that its initial application will result in the enactment in the same year (whether in the same appropriation Act or otherwise) of two separate appropriations, one for the then current fiscal year and one for the succeeding fiscal year.

【ALLOTMENTS TO STATES

【SEC. 421. (a) The sum appropriated pursuant to section 420 for each fiscal year shall be allotted by the Secretary for use by cooperating State public welfare agencies which have plans developed jointly by the State agency and the Secretary as follows: He shall first allot $70,000 to each State, and shall then allot to each State an amount which bears the same ratio to the remainder of such sum as the product of (1) the population of the State under the age of twenty-one and (2) the allotment percentage of the State (as determined under this section) bears to the sum of the corresponding products of all the States.

【(b) The “allotment percentage” for any State shall be 100 per centum less the State percentage; and the State percentage shall be the percentage which bears the same ratio to 50 per centum as the per capita income of such State bears to the per capita income of the United States; except that (1) the allotment percentage shall in no case be less than 30 per centum or more than 70 per centum, and (2) the allotment percentage shall be 70 per centum in the case of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

【(c) The allotment percentage for each State shall be promulgated by the Secretary between October 1 and November 30 of each even-numbered year, on the basis of the average per capita income of each State and of the United States for the three most recent calendar years for which satisfactory data are available from the Department of Commerce. Such promulgation shall be conclusive for each of the two fiscal years in the period beginning October 1 next succeeding such promulgation.

[(d) For purposes of this section, the term "United States" means the fifty States and the District of Columbia.

[STATE PLANS FOR CHILD WELFARE SERVICES

[SEC. 422. (a) In order to be eligible for payment under this subpart, a State must have a plan for child welfare services which has been developed jointly by the Secretary and the State agency designated pursuant to subsection (b)(1), and which meets the requirements of subsection (b).

[(b) Each plan for child welfare services under this subpart shall—

[(1) provide that (A) the individual or agency that administers or supervises the administration of the State's services program under title XX will administer or supervise the administration of the plan (except as otherwise provided in section 103(d) of the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980), and (B) to the extent that child welfare services are furnished by the staff of the State agency or local agency administering the plan, a single organizational unit in such State or local agency, as the case may be, will be responsible for furnishing such child welfare services;

[(2) provide for coordination between the services provided for children under the plan and the services and assistance provided under title XX, under the State plan approved under part A of this title, under the State plan approved under subpart 2 of this part, under the State plan approved under part E of this title, and under other State programs having a relationship to the program under this subpart, with a view to provision of welfare and related services which will best promote the welfare of such children and their families;

[(3) provide that the standards and requirements imposed with respect to child day care under title XX shall apply with respect to day care services under this part, except insofar as eligibility for such services is involved;

[(4) provide for the training and effective use of paid paraprofessional staff, with particular emphasis on the full-time or part-time employment of persons of low income, as community service aides, in the administration of the plan, and for the use of nonpaid or partially paid volunteers in providing services and in assisting any advisory committees established by the State agency;

[(5) contain a description of the services to be provided and specify the geographic areas where such services will be available;

[(6) contain a description of the steps which the State will take to provide child welfare services and to make progress in—

[(A) covering additional political subdivisions,

[(B) reaching additional children in need of services, and
 [(C) expanding and strengthening the range of existing services and developing new types of services, along with a description of the State's child welfare services staff development and training plans;

[(7) provide, in the development of services for children, for utilization of the facilities and experience of voluntary agencies in accordance with State and local programs and arrangements, as authorized by the State;

[(8) provide that the agency administering or supervising the administration of the plan will furnish such reports, containing such information, and participate in such evaluations, as the Secretary may require;

[(9) provide assurances that the State—

[(A) since June 17, 1980, has completed an inventory of all children who, before the inventory, had been in foster care under the responsibility of the State for 6 months or more, which determined—

[(i) the appropriateness of, and necessity for, the foster care placement;

[(ii) whether the child could or should be returned to the parents of the child or should be freed for adoption or other permanent placement; and

[(iii) the services necessary to facilitate the return of the child or the placement of the child for adoption or legal guardianship;

[(B) is operating, to the satisfaction of the Secretary—

[(i) a statewide information system from which can be readily determined the status, demographic characteristics, location, and goals for the placement of every child who is (or, within the immediately preceding 12 months, has been) in foster care;

[(ii) a case review system (as defined in section 475(5)) for each child receiving foster care under the supervision of the State;

[(iii) a service program designed to help children—

[(I) where appropriate, return to families from which they have been removed; or

[(II) be placed for adoption, with a legal guardian, or if adoption or legal guardianship is determined not to be appropriate for a child, in some other planned, permanent living arrangement; and

[(iv) a preplacement preventive services program designed to help children at risk of foster care placement remain with their families; and

[(C)(i) has reviewed (or within 12 months after the date of the enactment of this paragraph will review) State policies and administrative and judicial procedures in effect for children abandoned at or shortly after birth (including policies and procedures providing for legal representation of such children); and

[(ii) is implementing (or within 24 months after the date of the enactment of this paragraph will implement) such policies and procedures as the State determines, on the basis of the review described in clause (i), to be necessary to enable permanent decisions to be made expeditiously with respect to the placement of such children; and [(10) contain a description, developed after consultation with tribal organizations (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act) in the State, of the specific measures taken by the State to comply with the Indian Child Welfare Act.

[PAYMENT TO STATES

[SEC. 423. (a) From the sums appropriated therefor and the allotment under this subpart, subject to the conditions set forth in this section and in section 427, the Secretary shall from time to time pay to each State that has a plan developed in accordance with section 422 an amount equal to 75 per centum of the total sum expended under the plan (including the cost of administration of the plan) in meeting the costs of State, district, county, or other local child welfare services.

[(b) The method of computing and making payments under this section shall be as follows:

[(1) The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each period for which a payment is to be made, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such period under the provisions of this section.

[(2) From the allotment available therefor, the Secretary shall pay the amount so estimated, reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum (not previously adjusted under this section) by which he finds that his estimate of the amount to be paid the State for any prior period under this section was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such prior period under this section.

[(c)(1) No payment may be made to a State under this part, for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1979, with respect to State expenditures made for (A) child day care necessary solely because of the employment, or training to prepare for employment, of a parent or other relative with whom the child involved is living, (B) foster care maintenance payments, and (C) adoption assistance payments, to the extent that the Federal payment with respect to those expenditures would exceed the total amount of the Federal payment under this part for fiscal year 1979.

[(2) Expenditures made by a State for any fiscal year which begins after September 30, 1979, for foster care maintenance payments shall be treated for purposes of making Federal payments under this part with respect to expenditures for child welfare services, as if such foster care maintenance payments constituted child welfare services of a type to which the limitation imposed by paragraph (1) does not apply; except that the amount payable to the State with respect to expenditures made for other child welfare services and for foster care maintenance payments during any such year shall not exceed 100 per centum of the amount of the expenditures made for child welfare services for which payment may be made under the limitation imposed by paragraph (1) as in effect without regard to this paragraph.

[(d) No payment may be made to a State under this part in excess of the payment made under this part for fiscal year 1979, for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1979, if for the latter fiscal year the total of the State's expenditures for child welfare services under this part (excluding expenditures for activities specified in subsection (c)(1)) is less than the total of the State's expenditures under this part (excluding expenditures for such activities) for fiscal year 1979.

【REALLOTMENT

【SEC. 424. (a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), the amount of any allotment to a State under section 421 for any fiscal year which the State certifies to the Secretary will not be required for carrying out the State plan developed as provided in section 422 shall be available for reallocation from time to time, on such dates as the Secretary may fix, to other States which the Secretary determines (1) have need in carrying out their State plans so developed for sums in excess of those previously allotted to them under section 421 and (2) will be able to use such excess amounts during such fiscal year. Such reallocations shall be made on the basis of the State plans so developed, after taking into consideration the population under the age of twenty-one, and the per capita income of each such State as compared with the population under the age of twenty-one, and the per capita income of all such States with respect to which such a determination by the Secretary has been made. Any amount so reallocated to a State shall be deemed part of its allotment under section 421.

【(b) EXCEPTION RELATING TO FOSTER CHILD PROTECTIONS.—The Secretary shall not reallocate under subsection (a) of this section any amount that is withheld or recovered from a State due to the failure of the State to meet the requirements of section 422(b)(9).

(a)(1) For purposes of this title, the term “child welfare services” means public social services which are directed toward the accomplishment of the following purposes: (A) protecting and promoting the welfare of all children, including handicapped, homeless, dependent, or neglected children; (B) preventing or remedying, or assisting in the solution of problems which may result in, the neglect, abuse, exploitation, or delinquency of children; (C) preventing the unnecessary separation of children from their families by identifying family problems, assisting families in resolving their problems, and preventing breakup of the family where the prevention of child removal is desirable and possible; (D) restoring to their families children who have been removed, by the provision of services to the child and the families; (E) placing children in suitable adoptive homes, in cases where restoration to the biological family is not possible or appropriate; and (F) assuring adequate care of children away from their homes, in cases where the child cannot be returned home or cannot be placed for adoption.

[(2) Funds expended by a State for any calendar quarter to comply with the statistical report required by section 476(b), and funds expended with respect to nonrecurring costs of adoption proceedings in the case of children placed for adoption with respect to whom assistance is provided under a State plan for adoption assistance approved under part E of this title, shall be deemed to have been expended for child welfare services.

[(b) For other definitions relating to this part and to part E of this title, see section 475 of this Act.

[RESEARCH, TRAINING, OR DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS

[SEC. 426. (a) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year such sums as the Congress may determine—

[(1) for grants by the Secretary—

[(A) to public or other nonprofit institutions of higher learning, and to public or other nonprofit agencies and organizations engaged in research or child-welfare activities, for special research or demonstration projects in the field of child welfare which are of regional or national significance and for special projects for the demonstration of new methods or facilities which show promise of substantial contribution to the advancement of child welfare;

[(B) to State or local public agencies responsible for administering, or supervising the administration of, the plan under this part, for projects for the demonstration of the utilization of research (including findings resulting therefrom) in the field of child welfare in order to encourage experimental and special types of welfare services; and

[(C) to public or other nonprofit institutions of higher learning for special projects for training personnel for work in the field of child welfare, including traineeships described in section 429 with such stipends and allowances as may be permitted by the Secretary; and

[(b)(1) There are authorized to be appropriated $4,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1988, 1989, and 1990 for grants by the Secretary to public or private nonprofit entities submitting applications under this subsection for the purpose of conducting demonstration projects under this subsection to develop alternative care arrangements for infants who do not have health conditions that require hospitalization and who would otherwise remain in inappropriate hospital settings.

[(2) The demonstration projects conducted under this section may include—

[(A) multidisciplinary projects designed to prevent the inappropriate hospitalization of infants and to allow infants described in paragraph (1) to remain with or return to a parent in a residential setting, where appropriate care for the infant and suitable treatment for the parent (including treatment for drug or alcohol addiction) may be assured, with the goal

(where possible) of rehabilitating the parent and eliminating the need for such care for the infant;

[(B) multidisciplinary projects that assure appropriate, individualized care for such infants in a foster home or other non-medical residential setting in cases where such infant does not require hospitalization and would otherwise remain in inappropriate hospital settings, including projects to demonstrate methods to recruit, train, and retain foster care families; and

[(C) such other projects as the Secretary determines will best serve the interests of such infants and will serve as models for projects that agencies or organizations in other communities may wish to develop.

[(3) In the case of any project which includes the use of funds authorized under this subsection for the care of infants in foster homes or other non-medical residential settings away from their parents, there shall be developed for each such infant a case plan of the type described in section 475(1) (to the extent that such infant is not otherwise covered by such a plan), and each such project shall include a case review system of the type described in section 475(5) (covering each such infant who is not otherwise subject to such a system).

[(4) In evaluating applications from entities proposing to conduct demonstration projects under this subsection, the Secretary shall give priority to those projects that serve areas most in need of alternative care arrangements for infants described in paragraph (1).

[(5) No project may be funded unless the application therefor contains assurances that it will—

[(A) provide for adequate evaluation;

[(B) provide for coordination with local governments;

[(C) provide for community education regarding the inappropriate hospitalization of infants;

[(D) use, to the extent practical, other available private, local, State, and Federal sources for the provision of direct services; and

[(E) meet such other criteria as the Secretary may prescribe.

[(6) Grants may be used to pay the costs of maintenance and of necessary medical and social services (to the extent that these costs are not otherwise paid for under other titles of this Act), and for such other purposes as the Secretary may allow.

[(7) The Secretary shall provide training and technical assistance to grantees, as requested.

[(c) Payments of grants or under contracts or cooperative arrangements under this section may be made in advance or by way of reimbursement, and in such installments, as the Secretary may determine; and shall be made on such conditions as the Secretary finds necessary to carry out the purposes of the grants, contracts, or other arrangements.

[PAYMENTS TO INDIAN TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS

[SEC. 428. (a) The Secretary may, in appropriate cases (as determined by the Secretary) make payments under this subpart directly to an Indian tribal organization within any State which has

【CHILD WELFARE TRAINEESHIPS

【SEC. 429. The Secretary may approve an application for a grant to a public or nonprofit institution for higher learning to provide traineeships with stipends under section 426(a)(1)(C) only if the application—

[(1) provides assurances that each individual who receives a stipend with such traineeship (in this section referred to as a “recipient”) agrees—

[(A) to participate in training at a public or private nonprofit child welfare agency on a regular basis (as determined by the Secretary) for the period of the traineeship;

[(B) to be employed for a period of years equivalent to the period of the traineeship, in a public or private nonprofit child welfare agency in any State, within a period of time (determined by the Secretary in accordance with regulations) after completing the postsecondary education for which the traineeship was awarded;

[(C) to furnish to the institution and the Secretary evidence of compliance with subparagraphs (A) and (B); and

[(D) if the recipient fails to comply with subparagraph (A) or (B) and does not qualify for any exception to this subparagraph which the Secretary may prescribe in regulations, to repay to the Secretary all (or an appropriately prorated part) of the amount of the stipend, plus interest, and, if applicable, reasonable collection fees (in accordance with regulations promulgated by the Secretary);

[(2) provides assurances that the institution will—

[(A) enter into agreements with child welfare agencies for onsite training of recipients;

[(B) permit an individual who is employed in the field of child welfare services to apply for a traineeship with a

(3) The Secretary may waive any requirement of paragraph (1) or any condition specified under section 454(16) with respect to a State if—

(A) the State demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the State has an alternative system or systems that enable the State, for purposes of section 403(h), to be in substantial compliance with other requirements of this part; and

(B)(i) the waiver meets the criteria of paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 1115(c) 1115(b), or

(ii) the State provides assurances to the Secretary that steps will be taken to otherwise improve the State's child support enforcement program.

(e) The Secretary shall provide such technical assistance to States as he determines necessary to assist States to plan, design, develop, or install and provide for the security of, the management information systems referred to in section 454(16).

(f) The Secretary shall issue regulations to require that State agencies administering the child support enforcement program under this part petition for the inclusion of medical support as part of any child support order whenever health care coverage is available to the absent noncustodial parent at a reasonable cost. Such regulation shall also provide for improved information exchange between such State agencies and the State agencies administering the State medicaid programs under title XIX with respect to the availability of health insurance coverage.

(g)(1) A State's program under this part shall be found, for purposes of section 403(h), not to have complied substantially with the requirements of this part unless, for any fiscal year beginning on or after October 1, 1994, its paternity establishment percentage for such fiscal year is based on reliable data and (rounded to the nearest whole percentage point) equals or exceeds—

(A) 75 90 percent;

(B) for a State with a paternity establishment percentage of not less than 75 percent but less than 90 percent for such fiscal year, the paternity establishment percentage of the State for the immediately preceding fiscal year plus 2 percentage points;

(E) (F) for a State with a paternity establishment percentage of less than 40 percent for such fiscal year, the paternity establishment percentage of the State for the immediately preceding fiscal year plus 6 percentage points.

In determining compliance under this section, a State may use as its paternity establishment percentage either the State's IV-D paternity establishment percentage (as defined in paragraph (2)(A)) or the State's statewide paternity establishment percentage (as defined in paragraph (2)(B)).

(2) For purposes of this section—

(A) the term “[paternity establishment percentage] IV-D paternity establishment percentage” means, with respect to a State [(or all States, as the case may be)] for a fiscal year, the ratio (expressed as a percentage) that the total number of children—

(i) who have been born out of wedlock,

(ii)(I) except as provided in the last sentence of this paragraph, with respect to whom [aid is being paid under the State's plan approved under part A or E] assistance is being provided under the State program, funded under part A or benefits or services for foster care maintenance were being provided under the State program funded under part E in the fiscal year or, at the option of the State, as of the end of such year, or (II) with respect to whom services are being provided under the State's plan approved under this part in the fiscal year or, at the option of the State, as of the end of such year pursuant to an application submitted under section [454(6)] 454(4)(A)(ii), and

(iii) the paternity of whom has been established or acknowledged, bears to the total number of children born out of wedlock and (except as provided in such last sentence) with respect to whom [aid was being paid under the State's plan approved under part A or E] assistance was being provided under the State program funded under part A or benefits or services for foster care maintenance were being provided under the State program funded under part E as of the end of the preceding fiscal year or with respect to whom services were being provided under the State's plan approved under this part as of the end of the preceding fiscal year pursuant to an application submitted under section [454(6)] 454(4)(A)(ii); [and]

(B) the term “statewide paternity establishment percentage” means, with respect to a State for a fiscal year, the ratio (expressed as a percentage) that the total number of minor children—

(i) who have been born out of wedlock, and

[(B)] (C) the term “reliable data” means the most recent data available which are found by the Secretary to be reliable for purposes of this section.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), the total number of children shall not include any child [who is a dependent child] with respect to whom assistance is being provided under the State program funded under part A by reason of the death of a parent unless paternity is established for such child or any child with respect to whom an applicant or recipient is found by the State [to have good cause for refusing to cooperate under section 402(a)(26)] to qualify for a good cause or other exception to cooperation pursuant to section 454(29) or any child with respect to whom the State agency administering the plan under part E determines (as provided in section 454(4)(B)) that it is against the best interests of such child to do so.

[(B)] (A) The Secretary may modify the requirements of this subsection to take into account such additional variables as the Secretary identifies (including the [percentage of children born out-of-wedlock in a State] the percentage of children in a State who are born out of wedlock or for whom support has not been established) that affect the ability of a State to meet the requirements of this subsection.

[(C)] (B) The Secretary shall submit an annual report to the Congress that sets forth the data upon which the paternity establishment percentages for States for a fiscal year are based, lists any additional variables the Secretary has identified under subparagraph (A), and describes State performance in establishing paternity.

(h) The standards required by subsection (a)(1) shall include standards establishing time limits governing the period or periods within which a State must accept and respond to requests (from States, jurisdictions thereof, or individuals who apply for services furnished by the State agency under this part or with respect to whom an assignment [under section 402(a)(26)] pursuant to section 408(a)(4) is in effect) for assistance in establishing and enforcing support orders, including requests to locate [absent] noncustodial parents, establish paternity, and initiate proceedings to establish and collect child support awards.

(j) Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there is hereby appropriated to the Secretary for each fiscal year an amount equal to 1 percent of the total amount paid to the Federal Government pursuant to section 457(a) during the immediately preceding fiscal year (as determined on the basis of the most recent reliable data available to the Secretary as of the end of the 3rd calendar quarter following the end of such preceding fiscal year), to cover costs incurred by the Secretary for—

(1) information dissemination and technical assistance to States, training of State and Federal staff, staffing studies, and related activities needed to improve programs under this part (including technical assistance concerning State automated systems required by this part); and

[(b) The amounts collected as support by a State pursuant to a plan approved under this part during any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1976, shall (subject to subsection (d)) be distributed as follows:

[(1) of such amounts as are collected periodically which represent monthly support payments, the first $50 of any payments for a month received in that month, and the first $50 of payments for each prior month received in that month which were made by the absent parent in the month when due, shall be paid to the family without affecting its eligibility for assistance or decreasing any amount otherwise payable as assistance to such family during such month;

[(2) such amounts as are collected periodically which are in excess of any amount paid to the family under paragraph (1) and which represent monthly support payments shall be retained by the State to reimburse it for assistance payments to the family during such period (with appropriate reimbursement of the Federal Government to the extent of its participation in the financing);

[(3) shall be retained by the State, if any portion of the amounts collected remains after making the payments required under paragraphs (1) and (2), to the extent that such portion is necessary to reimburse the State (with appropriate reimbursement to the Federal Government to the extent of its participation in the financing) for any past foster care maintenance payments (or payments of aid to families with dependent children) which were made with respect to the child (and with respect to which past collections have not previously been retained); and any balance shall be paid to the State agency responsible for supervising the placement of the child, for use by such agency in accordance with paragraph (2).]

The State shall pay to the Federal Government the Federal share of the amounts so retained. To the extent the amount collected pursuant to section 464 exceeds the amount so retained, the State shall distribute the excess to the family.

(v) ORDERING RULES FOR DISTRIBUTIONS.—For purposes of this subparagraph, unless an earlier effective date is required by this section, effective October 1, 2000, the State shall treat any support arrearages collected, except for amounts collected pursuant to section 464, as accruing in the following order:

(C) what the overall impact has been of the amendments made by the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996 with respect to child support enforcement in moving people off of welfare and keeping them off of welfare; and

(D) based on the information and data the Secretary has obtained, what changes, if any, should be made in the policies related to the distribution of child support arrearages.

(b) CONTINUATION OF ASSIGNMENTS.—Any rights to support obligations, which were assigned to a State as a condition of receiving assistance from the State under part A and which were in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996, shall remain assigned after such date.

457 as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996), the State share for the fiscal year shall be an amount equal to the State share in fiscal year 1995.

(e) GAP PAYMENTS NOT SUBJECT TO DISTRIBUTION UNDER THIS SECTION.—At State option, this section shall not apply to any amount collected on behalf of a family as support by the State (and paid to the family in addition to the amount of assistance otherwise payable to the family) pursuant to a plan approved under this part if such amount would have been paid to the family by the State under section 402(a)(28), as in effect and applied on the day before the date of the enactment of section 4302 of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996. For purposes of subsection (d), the State share of such amount paid to the family shall be considered amounts which could be retained by the State if such payments were reported by the State as part of the State share of amounts collected in fiscal year 1995.

INCENTIVE PAYMENTS TO STATES

SEC. 458. (a) In order to encourage and reward State child support enforcement programs which perform in a cost-effective and efficient manner to secure support for all children who have sought assistance in securing support, whether such children reside within the State or elsewhere and whether or not they are eligible for [aid to families with dependent children under a State plan approved under part A of this title] assistance under a program funded under part A, and regardless of the economic circumstances of their parents, the Secretary shall, from support collected which would otherwise represent the Federal share of assistance to families of [absent] noncustodial parents, pay to each State for each fiscal year, on a quarterly basis (as described in subsection (e)) beginning with the quarter commencing October 1, 1985, an incentive payment in an amount determined under subsection (b).

(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (2), (3), and (4), the incentive payment shall be equal to—

(A) 6 percent of the total amount of support collected under the plan during the fiscal year in cases in which the support obligation involved is assigned to the State pursuant to section [402(a)(26)] 408(a)(4) or section 471(a)(17) (with such total amount for any fiscal year being hereafter referred to in this section as the “State’s [AFDC] title IV–A collections” for that year), plus

(B) 6 percent of the total amount of support collected during the fiscal year in all other cases under this part (with such total amount for any fiscal year being hereafter referred to in this section as the State’s “[non-AFDC] non-title IV–A collections” for that year).

(2) If subsection (c) applies with respect to a State’s [AFDC] title IV–A collections or [non-AFDC] non-title IV–A collections for any fiscal year, the percent specified in paragraph (1)(A) or (B) (with respect to such collections) shall be increased to the higher percent determined under such subsection (with respect to such collections) in determining the State’s incentive payment under this subsection for that year.

(3) The dollar amount of the portion of the State's incentive payment for any fiscal year which is determined on the basis of its [non-AFDC] non-title IV-A collections under paragraph (1)(B) (after adjustment under subsection (c) if applicable) shall in no case exceed—

(A) the dollar amount of the portion of such payment which is determined on the basis of its [AFDC] title IV-A collections under paragraph (1)(A) (after adjustment under subsection (c) if applicable) in the case of fiscal year 1986 or 1987;

(B) 105 percent of such dollar amount in the case of fiscal year 1988;

(C) 110 percent of such dollar amount in the case of fiscal year 1989; or

(D) 115 percent of such dollar amount in the case of fiscal year 1990 or any fiscal year thereafter.

(4) The Secretary shall make such additional payments to the State under this part, for fiscal year 1986 or 1987, as may be necessary to assure that the total amount of payments under this section and section 455(a)(1)(A) for such fiscal year is no less than 80 percent of the amount that would have been payable to that State and its political subdivisions for such fiscal year under this section and section 455(a)(1)(A) if those sections (including the amendment made by section 5(c)(2)(A) of the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984) had remained in effect as they were in effect for fiscal year 1985.

(c) If the total amount of a State's [AFDC] title IV-A collections or [non-AFDC] non-title IV-A collections for any fiscal year bears a ratio to the total amount expended by the State in that year for the operation of its plan approved under section 454 for which payment may be made under section 455 (with the total amount so expended in any fiscal year being hereafter referred to in this section as the State's "combined [AFDC/non-AFDC] title IV-A/non-title IV-A administrative costs" for that year) which is equal to or greater than 1.4, the relevant percent specified in subparagraph (A) or (B) of subsection (b)(1) (with respect to such collections) shall be increased to—

(1) 6.5 percent, plus

(2) one-half of 1 percent for each full two-tenths by which such ratio exceeds 1.4;

except that the percent so specified shall in no event be increased (for either [AFDC] title IV-A collections or [non-AFDC] non-title IV-A collections) to more than 10 percent. For purposes of the preceding sentence, laboratory costs incurred in determining paternity in any fiscal year may at the option of the State be excluded from the State's combined [AFDC/non-AFDC] title IV-A/non-title IV-A administrative costs for that year.

[(1) Procedures described in subsection (b) for the withholding from income of amounts payable as support.]

(1)(A) Procedures described in subsection (b) for the withholding from income of amounts payable as support in cases subject to enforcement under the State plan.

(B) Procedures under which the income of a person with a support obligation imposed by a support order issued (or modified) in the State before October 1, 1996, if not otherwise subject to withholding under subsection (b), shall become subject to withholding as provided in subsection (b) if arrearages occur, without the need for a judicial or administrative hearing.

(2) [Procedures under which expedited processes (determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary) are in effect under the State judicial system or under State administrative processes (A) for obtaining and enforcing support orders, and (B) for establishing paternity.] Expedited administrative and judicial procedures (including the procedures specified in subsection (c)) for establishing paternity and for establishing, modifying, and enforcing support obligations. The Secretary may waive the provisions of this paragraph with respect to one or more political subdivisions within the State on the basis of the effectiveness and timeliness of support order issuance and enforcement or paternity establishment within the political subdivision (in accordance with the general rule for exemptions under subsection (d)).

(3) Procedures under which the State child support enforcement agency shall request, and the State shall provide, that for the purpose of enforcing a support order under any State plan approved under this part—

(A) any refund of State income tax which would otherwise be payable to [an absent] a noncustodial parent will be reduced, after notice has been sent to that [absent] noncustodial parent of the proposed reduction and the procedures to be followed to contest it (and after full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State), by the amount of any overdue support owed by such [absent] noncustodial parent;

(B) the amount by which such refund is reduced shall be distributed in accordance with section 457(b)(4) or (d)(3) in the case of overdue support assigned to a State pursuant to section [402(a)(26)] 408(a)(3) [or 471(a)(17)], or, [in the case of overdue support which a State has agreed

(C) notice of the [absent] noncustodial parent's social security account number (or numbers, if he has more than one such number) and home address shall be furnished to the State agency requesting the refund offset, and to the State agency enforcing the order.

[(5)(A)(i) Procedures which permit the establishment of the paternity of any child at any time prior to such child's eighteenth birthday.

[(ii) As of August 16, 1984, the requirement of clause (i) shall also apply to any child for whom paternity has not yet been established and any child for whom a paternity action was brought but dismissed because a statute of limitations of less than 18 years was then in effect in the State.

[(B) Procedures under which the State is required (except in cases where the individual involved has been found under section 402(a)(26)(B) to have good cause for refusing to cooperate) to require the child and all other parties, in a contested paternity case, to submit to genetic tests upon the request of any such party.

[(C) Procedures for a simple civil process for voluntarily acknowledging paternity under which the State must provide that the rights and responsibilities of acknowledging paternity are explained and ensure that due process safeguards are afforded. Such procedures must include a hospital-based program for the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity during the period immediately before or after the birth of a child.

[(D) Procedures under which the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity creates a rebuttable, or at the option of the State, conclusive presumption of paternity, and under which such voluntary acknowledgment is admissible as evidence of paternity.

[(E) Procedures under which the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity must be recognized as a basis for seeking a support order without requiring any further proceedings to establish paternity.

[(F) Procedures which provide that (i) any objection to genetic testing results must be made in writing within a specified number of days before any hearing at which such results may be introduced into evidence, and (ii) if no objection is made, the test results are admissible as evidence of paternity without the need for foundation testimony or other proof of authenticity or accuracy.

[(G) Procedures which create a rebuttable or, at the option of the State, conclusive presumption of paternity upon genetic testing results indicating a threshold probability that the alleged father is the father of the child.

[(10)(A) Procedures to ensure that, beginning 2 years after the date of the enactment of this paragraph, if the State determines (pursuant to a plan indicating how and when child support orders in effect in the State are to be periodically reviewed and adjusted) that a child support order being enforced under this part should be reviewed, the State must, at the request of either parent subject to the order, or of a State child support enforcement agency, initiate a review of such order, and adjust such order, as appropriate, in accordance with the guidelines established pursuant to section 467(a).

[(B) Procedures to ensure that, beginning 5 years after the date of the enactment of this paragraph or such earlier date as the State may select, the State must implement a process for the periodic review and adjustment of child support orders being enforced under this part under which the order is to be reviewed not later than 36 months after the establishment of the order or the most recent review, and adjusted, as appropriate, in accordance with the guidelines established pursuant to section 467(a), unless—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Procedures under which the State has the authority, in any case in which an individual owes past-due support with respect to a child receiving assistance under a State program funded under part A, to issue an order or to request that a court or an administrative process established pursuant to State law issue an order that requires the individual to—

(19) HEALTH CARE COVERAGE.—Procedures under which all child support orders enforced pursuant to this part shall include a provision for the health care coverage of the child, and in the case in which a noncustodial parent provides such coverage and changes employment, and the new employer provides health care coverage, the State agency shall transfer notice of the provision to the employer, which notice shall operate to enroll the child in the noncustodial parent's health plan, unless the noncustodial parent contests the notice.

Notwithstanding section 454(20)(B), the procedures which are required under paragraphs (3), (4), (6), ~~and (7)~~ (7), and (15) need not be used or applied in cases where the State determines (using guidelines which are generally available within the State and which take into account the payment record of the ~~absent~~ noncustodial parent, the availability of other remedies, and other relevant considerations) that such use or application would not carry out the purposes of this part or would be otherwise inappropriate in the circumstances.

(b) The procedures referred to in ~~subsection (a)(1)~~ subsection (a)(1)(A) (relating to the withholding from income of amounts payable as support) must provide for the following:

(1) In the case of each ~~absent~~ noncustodial parent against whom a support order is or has been issued or modified in the State, and is being enforced under the State plan, so much of such parent's ~~wages~~ (as defined by the State for purposes of this section) income must be withheld, in accordance with the succeeding provisions of this subsection, as is necessary to comply with the order and provide for the payment of any fee to the employer which may be required under paragraph (6)(A), up to the maximum amount permitted under section 303(b) of the Consumer Credit Protection Act (15 U.S.C. 1673(b)). If there are arrearages to be collected, amounts withheld to satisfy such arrearages, when added to the amounts withheld to pay current support and provide for the fee, may not exceed the limit permitted under such section 303(b), but the State need not withhold up to the maximum amount permitted under such section in order to satisfy arrearages.

(2) Such withholding must be provided without the necessity of any application therefor in the case of a child (whether or not eligible for ~~aid~~ assistance under a State program funded under part A) with respect to whom services are already being provided under the State plan under this part, and must be provided in accordance with this subsection on the basis of an application for services under the State plan in the case of any other child in whose behalf a support order has been issued or modified in the State. In either case such withholding must occur without the need for any amendment to the support order involved or for any further action (other than those actions required under this part) by the court or other entity which issued such order.

(3)(A) The ~~wages~~ income of ~~an absent~~ a noncustodial parent shall be subject to such withholding, regardless of whether support payments by such parent are in arrears, in the case of a support order being enforced under this part that is issued or modified on or after the first day of the 25th month beginning after the date of the enactment of this paragraph, on the effective date of the order; except that such ~~wages~~ income shall not be subject to such withholding under this subparagraph in any case where (i) one of the parties demonstrates, and the court (or administrative process) finds, that there is good cause not to require immediate income withholding, or (ii) a written agreement is reached between both parties which provides for an alternative arrangement.

(B) The 【wages】 income of 【an absent】 a noncustodial parent shall become subject to such withholding, in the case of 【wages】 income not subject to withholding under subparagraph (A), on the date on which the payments which the 【absent】 noncustodial parent has failed to make under a support order are at least equal to the support payable for one month or, if earlier, and without regard to whether there is an arrearage, the earliest of—

(i) the date as of which the 【absent】 noncustodial parent requests that such withholding begin,

(ii) the date as of which the custodial parent requests that such withholding begin, if the State determines, in accordance with such procedures and standards as it may establish, that the request should be approved, or

(iii) such earlier date as the State may select.

【(4)(A) Such withholding must be carried out in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State, and (subject to subparagraph (B)) the State must send advance notice to each absent parent to whom paragraph (1) applies regarding the proposed withholding and the procedures such absent parent should follow if he or she desires to contest such withholding on the grounds that withholding (including the amount to be withheld) is not proper in the case involved because of mistakes of fact. If the absent parent contests such withholding on those grounds, the State shall determine whether such withholding will actually occur, shall (within no more than 45 days after the provision of such advance notice) inform such parent of whether or not withholding will occur and (if so) of the date on which it is to begin, and shall furnish such parent with the information contained in any notice given to the employer under paragraph (6)(A) with respect to such withholding.

【(B) The requirement of advance notice set forth in the first sentence of subparagraph (A) shall not apply in the case of any State which has a system of income withholding for child support purposes in effect on the date of the enactment of this section if such system provides on that date, and continues to provide, such procedures as may be necessary to meet the procedural due process requirements of State law.】

(4)(A) Such withholding must be carried out in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State, and the State must send notice to each noncustodial parent to whom paragraph (1) applies—

(i) that the withholding has commenced; and

(ii) of the procedures to follow if the noncustodial parent desires to contest such withholding on the grounds that the withholding or the amount withheld is improper due to a mistake of fact.

(B) The notice under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall include the information provided to the employer under paragraph (6)(A).

(5) Such withholding must be administered by [a public agency designated by the State, and the amounts withheld must be expeditiously distributed by the State or such agency in accordance with section 457 under procedures (specified by the State) adequate to document payments of support and to track and monitor such payments, except that the State may establish or permit the establishment of alternative procedures for the collection and distribution of such amounts (under the supervision of such public agency) otherwise than through such public agency so long as the entity making such collection and distribution is publicly accountable for its actions taken in carrying out such procedures, and so long as such procedures will assure prompt distribution, provide for the keeping of adequate records to document payments of support, and permit the tracking and monitoring of such payments.] the State through the State disbursement unit established pursuant to section 454B, in accordance with the requirements of section 454B.

(6)(A)(i) The employer of any [absent] noncustodial parent to whom paragraph (1) applies, upon being given notice as described in clause (ii), must be required to withhold from such [absent] noncustodial parent's [wages] income the amount specified by such notice (which may include a fee, established by the State, to be paid to the employer unless waived by such employer) and pay such amount (after deducting and retaining any portion thereof which represents the fee so established) [to the appropriate agency (or other entity authorized to collect the amounts withheld under the alternative procedures described in paragraph (5)) for distribution in accordance with section 457.] to the State disbursement unit within 5 business days after the date the amount would (but for this subsection) have been paid or credited to the employee, for distribution in accordance with this part. The employer shall withhold funds as directed in the notice. For terms and conditions for withholding income that are not specified in a notice issued by another State, the employer shall apply the law of the State in which the obligor works. An employer who complies with an income withholding notice that is regular on its face shall not be subject to civil liability to any individual or agency for conduct in compliance with the notice.

(ii) The notice given to the employer shall be in a standard format prescribed by the Secretary, and contain only such information as may be necessary for the employer to comply with the withholding order.

(iii) As used in this subparagraph, the term "business day" means a day on which State offices are open for regular business.

(B) Methods must be established by the State to simplify the withholding process for employers to the greatest extent possible, including permitting any employer to combine all withheld amounts into a single payment to each appropriate agency or entity (with the portion thereof which is attributable to each individual employee being separately designated).

(C) The employer must be held liable to the State for any amount which such employer fails to withhold from 【wages】 income due an employee following receipt by such employer of proper notice under subparagraph (A), but such employer shall not be required to vary the normal pay and disbursement cycles in order to comply with this paragraph.

(D) Provision must be made for the imposition of a fine against 【any employer who discharges from employment, refuses to employ, or takes disciplinary action against any absent parent subject to wage withholding required by this subsection because of the existence of such withholding and the obligations or additional obligations which it imposes upon the employer.】 any employer who—

(i) discharges from employment, refuses to employ, or takes disciplinary action against any noncustodial parent subject to income withholding required by this subsection because of the existence of such withholding and the obligations or additional obligations which it imposes upon the employer; or

(ii) fails to withhold support from income or to pay such amounts to the State disbursement unit in accordance with this subsection.

(7) Support collection under this subsection must be given priority over any other legal process under State law against the same 【wages】 income.

【(8) The State may take such actions as may be necessary to extend its system of withholding under this subsection so that such system will include withholding from forms of income other than wages, in order to assure that child support owed by absent parents in the State will be collected without regard to the types of such absent parents' income or the nature of their income-producing activities.】

(8) For purposes of subsection (a) and this subsection, the term "income" means any periodic form of payment due to an individual, regardless of source, including wages, salaries, commissions, bonuses, worker's compensation, disability, payments pursuant to a pension or retirement program, and interest.

(9) The State must extend its withholding system under this subsection so that such system will include withholding from income derived within such State in cases where the applicable support orders were issued in other States, in order to assure that child support owed by 【absent】 noncustodial parents in such State or any other State will be collected without regard to the residence of the child for whom the support is payable or of such child's custodial parent.

(10) Provision must be made for terminating withholding.

(11) Procedures under which the agency administering the State plan approved under this part may execute a withholding order without advance notice to the obligor, including issuing the withholding order through electronic means.

【(c) Any State may at its option, under its plan approved under section 454, establish procedures under which support payments under this part will be made through the State agency or other entity which administers the State's income withholding system in any case where either the absent parent or the custodial parent requests it, even though no arrearages in child support payments are involved and no income withholding procedures have been instituted; but in any such case an annual fee for handling and processing such payments, in an amount not exceeding the actual costs incurred by the State in connection therewith or $25, whichever is less, shall be imposed on the requesting parent by the State.】

(c) EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.—The procedures specified in this subsection are the following:

(1) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION BY STATE AGENCY.—Procedures which give the State agency the authority to take the following actions relating to establishment of paternity or to establishment, modification, or enforcement of support orders, without the necessity of obtaining an order from any other judicial or administrative tribunal, and to recognize and enforce the authority of State agencies of other States to take the following actions:

(D) ACCESS TO INFORMATION CONTAINED IN CERTAIN RECORDS.—To obtain access, subject to safeguards on privacy and information security, and subject to the nonliability of entities that afford such access under this subparagraph, to information contained in the following records (including automated access, in the case of records maintained in automated data bases):

(I) the names and addresses of such individuals and the names and addresses of the employers of such individuals, as appearing in customer records of public utilities and cable television companies, pursuant to an administrative subpoena authorized by subparagraph (B); and

(II) information (including information on assets and liabilities) on such individuals held by financial institutions.

(E) CHANGE IN PAYEE.—In cases in which support is subject to an assignment in order to comply with a requirement imposed pursuant to part A or section 1912, or to a requirement to pay through the State disbursement unit established pursuant to section 454B, upon providing notice to obligor and obligee, to direct the obligor or other payor to change the payee to the appropriate government entity.

(H) INCREASE MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—For the purpose of securing overdue support, to increase the amount of monthly support payments to include amounts for arrearages, subject to such conditions or limitations as the State may provide.

Such procedures shall be subject to due process safeguards, including (as appropriate) requirements for notice, opportunity to contest the action, and opportunity for an appeal on the record to an independent administrative or judicial tribunal.

(2) SUBSTANTIVE AND PROCEDURAL RULES.—The expedited procedures required under subsection (a)(2) shall include the following rules and authority, applicable with respect to all proceedings to establish paternity or to establish, modify, or enforce support orders:

(d) If a State demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary, through the presentation to the Secretary of such data pertaining to caseloads, processing times, administrative costs, and average support collections, and such other data or estimates as the Secretary may specify, that the enactment of any law or the use of any procedure or procedures required by or pursuant to this section will not increase the effectiveness and efficiency of the State child support enforcement program, the Secretary may exempt the State, subject to the Secretary's continuing review and to termination of the exemption should circumstances change, from the requirement to enact the law or use the procedure or procedures involved.

(e) For purposes of this section, the term "overdue support" means the amount of a delinquency pursuant to an obligation determined under a court order, or an order of an administrative process established under State law, for support and maintenance of a minor child which is owed to or on behalf of such child, or for support and maintenance of the [absent] noncustodial parent's spouse (or former spouse) with whom the child is living if and to the extent that spousal support (with respect to such spouse or former spouse) would be included for purposes of [paragraph (4) or (6) of section 454] section 454(4). (a) IN GENERAL.—The Administration for Children and Families shall make grants under this section to enable States to establish and administer programs to support and facilitate noncustodial parents' access to and visitation of their children, by means of activities including mediation (both voluntary and mandatory), counseling, education, development of parenting plans, visitation enforcement (including monitoring, supervision and neutral drop-off and pickup), and development of guidelines for visitation and alternative custody arrangements.

(b) AMOUNT OF GRANT.—The amount of the grant to be made to a State under this section for a fiscal year shall be an amount equal to the lesser of—

(c) ALLOTMENTS TO STATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The allotment of a State for a fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to $10,000,000 for grants under this section for the fiscal year as the number of children in the State living with only 1 biological parent bears to the total number of such children in all States.

(2) MINIMUM ALLOTMENT.—The Administration for Children and Families shall adjust allotments to States under paragraph (1) as necessary to ensure that no State is allotted less than—

(A) $50,000 for fiscal year 1997 or 1998; or

(B) $100,000 for any succeeding fiscal year.

(d) NO SUPPLANTATION OF STATE EXPENDITURES FOR SIMILAR ACTIVITIES.—A State to which a grant is made under this section may not use the grant to supplant expenditures by the State for activities specified in subsection (a), but shall use the grant to supplement such expenditures at a level at least equal to the level of such expenditures for fiscal year 1995.

(e) STATE ADMINISTRATION.—Each State to which a grant is made under this section—

【(5) provides that the State will, in the administration of its programs under this part, use such methods relating to the establishment and maintenance of personnel standards on a merit basis as are found by the Secretary to be necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the programs, except that the Secretary shall exercise no authority with respect to the selection, tenure of office, or compensation of any individual employed in accordance with such methods;

【(6) provides that the State agency referred to in paragraph (2) (hereinafter in this part referred to as the “State agency”) will make such reports, in such form and containing such information as the Secretary may from time to time require, and comply with such provisions as the Secretary may from time to time find necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such reports;

【(7) provides that the State agency will monitor and conduct periodic evaluations of activities carried out under this part;

【(8) provides safeguards which restrict the use of or disclosure of information concerning individuals assisted under the State plan to purposes directly connected with (A) the administration of the plan of the State approved under this part, the plan or program of the State under part A, B, or D of this title (including activities under part F) or under title I, V, X, XIV, XVI (as in effect in Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands), XIX, or XX, or the supplemental security income program established by title XVI, (B) any investigation, prosecution, or criminal or civil proceeding, conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program, (C) the administration of any other Federal or federally assisted program which provides assistance, in cash or in kind, or services, directly to individuals on the basis of need, (D) any audit or similar activity conducted in connection with the administration of any such plan or program by any governmental agency

[(9) provides that the State agency will—

[(A) report to an appropriate agency or official, known or suspected instances of physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment or maltreatment of a child receiving aid under part B or this part under circumstances which indicate that the child's health or welfare is threatened thereby; and

[(B) provide such information with respect to a situation described in subparagraph (A) as the State agency may have;

[(10) provides for the establishment or designation of a State authority or authorities which shall be responsible for establishing and maintaining standards for foster family homes and child care institutions which are reasonably in accord with recommended standards of national organizations concerned with standards for such institutions or homes, including standards related to admission policies, safety, sanitation, and protection of civil rights, and provides that the standards so established shall be applied by the State to any foster family home or child care institution receiving funds under this part or part B of this title;

[(12) provides for granting an opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency to any individual whose claim for benefits available pursuant to this part is denied or is not acted upon with reasonable promptness;

[(13) provides that the State shall arrange for a periodic and independently conducted audit of the programs assisted under this part and part B of this title, which shall be conducted no less frequently than once every three years;

[(14) provides (A) specific goals (which shall be established by State law on or before October 1, 1982) for each fiscal year (commencing with the fiscal year which begins on October 1, 1983) as to the maximum number of children (in absolute numbers or as a percentage of all children in foster care with respect to whom assistance under the plan is provided during such year) who, at any time during such year, will remain in foster care after having been in such care for a period in excess of twenty-four months, and (B) a description of the steps which will be taken by the State to achieve such goals;

[(15) effective October 1, 1983, provides that, in each case, reasonable efforts will be made (A) prior to the placement of a child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from his home, and (B) to make it possible for the child to return to his home;

[(16) provides for the development of a case plan (as defined in section 475(1)) for each child receiving foster care maintenance payments under the State plan and provides for a case review system which meets the requirements described in section 475(5)(B) with respect to each such child; and

[(17) provides that, where appropriate, all steps will be taken, including cooperative efforts with the State agencies administering the plans approved under parts A and D, to secure an assignment to the State of any rights to support on behalf of each child receiving foster care maintenance payments under this part.

[(b) The Secretary shall approve any plan which complies with the provisions of subsection (a) of this section.

[(FOSTER CARE MAINTENANCE PAYMENTS PROGRAM

[(SEC. 472. (a) Each State with a plan approved under this part shall make foster care maintenance payments (as defined in section 475(4)) under this part with respect to a child who would meet the requirements of section 406(a) or of section 407 but for his removal from the home of a relative (specified in section 406(a)), if—

[(1) the removal from the home occurred pursuant to a voluntary placement agreement entered into by the child's parent or legal guardian, or was the result of a judicial determination to the effect that continuation therein would be contrary to the welfare of such child and (effective October 1, 1983) that reasonable efforts of the type described in section 471(a)(15) have been made;

[(2) such child's placement and care are the responsibility of (A) the State agency administering the State plan approved under section 471, or (B) any other public agency with whom the State agency administering or supervising the administration of the State plan approved under section 471 has made an agreement which is still in effect;

[(3) such child has been placed in a foster family home or child-care institution as a result of the voluntary placement agreement or judicial determination referred to in paragraph (1); and

[(4) such child—

[(A) received aid under the State plan approved under section 402 in or for the month in which such agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the removal of such child from the home were initiated, or

[(B)(i) would have received such aid in or for such month if application had been made therefor, or (ii) had been living with a relative specified in section 406(a) within six months prior to the month in which such agreement was entered into or such proceedings were initiated, and would have received such aid in or for such month if in such month he had been living with such a relative and application therefor had been made.

In any case where the child is an alien disqualified under section 245A(h), 210(f), or 210A(d)(7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act from receiving aid under the State plan approved under section 402 in or for the month in which such agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the removal of the child from the home were instituted, such child shall be considered to satisfy the requirements of paragraph (4) (and the corresponding requirements of section 473(a)(2)(B)), with respect to that month, if he or she would have satisfied such requirements but for such disqualification.

[(b) Foster care maintenance payments may be made under this part only on behalf of a child described in subsection (a) of this section who is—

[(1) in the foster family home of an individual, whether the payments therefor are made to such individual or to a public or nonprofit private child-placement or child-care agency, or

[(2) in a child-care institution, whether the payments therefor are made to such institution or to a public or nonprofit private child-placement or child-care agency, which payments shall be limited so as to include in such payments only those items which are included in the term “foster care maintenance payments” (as defined in section 475(4)).

[(c) For the purposes of this part, (1) the term “foster family home” means a foster family home for children which is licensed by the State in which it is situated or has been approved, by the agency of such State having responsibility for licensing homes of this type, as meeting the standards established for such licensing; and (2) the term “child-care institution” means a nonprofit private child-care institution, or a public child-care institution which accommodates no more than twenty-five children, which is licensed by the State in which it is situated or has been approved, by the agency of such State responsible for licensing or approval of institutions of this type, as meeting the standards established for such licensing, but the term shall not include detention facilities, forestry camps, training schools, or any other facility operated primarily for the detention of children who are determined to be delinquent.

[(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, Federal payments may be made under this part with respect to amounts expended by any State as foster care maintenance payments under this section, in the case of children removed from their homes pursuant to voluntary placement agreements as described in subsection (a), only if (at the time such amounts were expended) the State has fulfilled all of the requirements of section 427(b).

[(e) No Federal payment may be made under this part with respect to amounts expended by any State as foster care maintenance payments under this section, in the case of any child who was removed from his or her home pursuant to a voluntary placement agreement as described in subsection (a) and has remained in voluntary placement for a period in excess of 180 days, unless there has been a judicial determination by a court of competent jurisdiction (within the first 180 days of such placement) to the effect that such placement is in the best interests of the child.

[(f) For the purposes of this part and part B of this title, (1) the term “voluntary placement” means an out-of-home placement of a minor, by or with participation of a State agency, after the parents or guardians of the minor have requested the assistance of the agency and signed a voluntary placement agreement; and (2) the term “voluntary placement agreement” means a written agreement, binding on the parties to the agreement, between the State agency, any other agency acting on its behalf, and the parents or guardians of a minor child which specifies, at a minimum, the legal status of the child and the rights and obligations of the parents or guardians, the child, and the agency while the child is in placement.

[(g) In any case where—

[(1) the placement of a minor child in foster care occurred pursuant to a voluntary placement agreement entered into by the parents or guardians of such child as provided in subsection (a), and

[(2) such parents or guardians request (in such manner and form as the Secretary may prescribe) that the child be returned to their home or to the home of a relative,

[(the voluntary placement agreement shall be deemed to be revoked unless the State agency opposes such request and obtains a judicial determination, by a court of competent jurisdiction, that the return of the child to such home would be contrary to the child’s best interests.

[(h) For purposes of titles XIX and XX, any child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are made under this section shall be deemed to be a dependent child as defined in section 406 and shall be deemed to be a recipient of aid to families with dependent children under part A of this title. For purposes of the preceding sentence, a child whose costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made with respect to his or her minor parent, as provided in section 475(4)(B), shall be considered a child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are made under this section.

[ADOPTION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

[SEC. 473. (a)(1)(A) Each State having a plan approved under this part shall enter into adoption assistance agreements (as defined in section 475(3)) with the adoptive parents of children with special needs.

[(B) Under any adoption assistance agreement entered into by a State with parents who adopt a child with special needs, the State—

[(i) shall make payments of nonrecurring adoption expenses incurred by or on behalf of such parents in connection with the adoption of such child, directly through the State agency or through another public or nonprofit private agency, in amounts determined under paragraph (3), and

[(ii) in any case where the child meets the requirements of paragraph (2), may make adoption assistance payments to such parents, directly through the State agency or through another public or nonprofit private agency, in amounts so determined.

[(2) For purposes of paragraph (1)(B)(ii), a child meets the requirements of this paragraph if such child—

[(A)(i) at the time adoption proceedings were initiated, met the requirements of section 406(a) or section 407 or would have met such requirements except for his removal from the home of a relative (specified in section 406(a)), either pursuant to a voluntary placement agreement with respect to which Federal payments are provided under section 474 (or 403) or as a result of a judicial determination to the effect that continuation therein would be contrary to the welfare of such child,

[(ii) meets all of the requirements of title XVI with respect to eligibility for supplemental security income benefits, or

[(iii) is a child whose costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made with respect to his or her minor parent as provided in section 475(4)(B),

[(B)(i) received aid under the State plan approved under section 402 in or for the month in which such agreement was entered into or court proceedings leading to the removal of such child from the home were initiated, or

[(ii)(I) would have received such aid in or for such month if application had been made therefor, or (II) had been living with a relative specified in section 406(a) within six months prior to the month in which such agreement was entered into or such proceedings were initiated, and would have received such aid in or for such month if in such month he had been living with such a relative and application therefor had been made, or

[(iii) is a child described in subparagraph (A)(ii) or (A)(iii), and

[(C) has been determined by the State, pursuant to subsection (c) of this section, to be a child with special needs.

[(The last sentence of section 472(a) shall apply, for purposes of subparagraph (B), in any case where the child is an alien described in that sentence.

[(3) The amount of the payments to be made in any case under clauses (i) and (ii) of paragraph (1)(B) shall be determined through agreement between the adoptive parents and the State or local agency administering the program under this section, which shall take into consideration the circumstances of the adopting parents and the needs of the child being adopted, and may be readjusted periodically, with the concurrence of the adopting parents (which may be specified in the adoption assistance agreement), depending upon changes in such circumstances. However, in no case may the amount of the adoption assistance payment made under clause (ii) of paragraph (1)(B) exceed the foster care maintenance payment which would have been paid during the period if the child with respect to whom the adoption assistance payment is made had been in a foster family home.

[(4) Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, (A) no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child who has attained the age of eighteen (or, where the State determines that the child has a mental or physical handicap which warrants the continuation of assistance, the age of twenty-one), and (B) no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child if the State determines that the parents are no longer legally responsible for the support of the child or if the State determines that the child is no longer receiving any support from such parents. Parents who have been receiving adoption assistance payments under this section shall keep the State or local agency administering the program under this section informed of circumstances which would, pursuant to this subsection, make them ineligible for such assistance payments, or eligible for assistance payments in a different amount.

[(5) For purposes of this part, individuals with whom a child (who has been determined by the State, pursuant to subsection (c), to be a child with special needs) is placed for adoption in accordance with applicable State and local law shall be eligible for such payments, during the period of the placement, on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as if such individuals had adopted such child.

[(6)(A) For purposes of paragraph (1)(B)(i), the term “non-recurring adoption expenses” means reasonable and necessary adoption fees, court costs, attorney fees, and other expenses which are directly related to the legal adoption of a child with special needs and which are not incurred in violation of State or Federal law.

[(B) A State’s payment of nonrecurring adoption expenses under an adoption assistance agreement shall be treated as an expenditure made for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan for purposes of section 474(a)(3)(E).

[(b) For purposes of titles XIX and XX, any child—

[(1)(A) who is a child described in subsection (a)(2), and

[(B) with respect to whom an adoption assistance agreement is in effect under this section (whether or not adoption assistance payments are provided under the agreement or are being made under this section), including any such child who has been placed for adoption in accordance with applicable State and local law (whether or not an interlocutory or other judicial decree of adoption has been issued), or shall be deemed to be a dependent child as defined in section 406 and shall be deemed to be a recipient of aid to families with dependent children under part A of this title in the State where such child resides. For purposes of the preceding sentence, a child whose costs in a foster family home or child-care institution are covered by the foster care maintenance payments being made with respect to his or her minor parent, as provided in section 475(4)(B), shall be considered a child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are being made under section 472.

[(c) For purposes of this section, a child shall not be considered a child with special needs unless—

[(1) the State has determined that the child cannot or should not be returned to the home of his parents; and

[(2) the State had first determined (A) that there exists with respect to the child a specific factor or condition (such as his ethnic background, age, or membership in a minority or sibling group, or the presence of factors such as medical conditions or physical, mental, or emotional handicaps) because of which it is reasonable to conclude that such child cannot be placed with adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section or medical assistance under title XIX, and (B) that, except where it would be against the best interests of the child because of such factors as the existence of significant emotional ties with prospective adoptive parents while in the care of such parents as a foster child, a reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made to place the child with appropriate adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section or medical assistance under title XIX.

【PAYMENTS TO STATES; ALLOTMENTS TO STATES

【SEC. 474. (a) For each quarter beginning after September 30, 1980, each State which has a plan approved under this part (subject to the limitations imposed by subsection (b)) shall be entitled to a payment equal to the sum of—

【(2) an amount equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b) of this Act) of the total amount expended during such quarter as adoption assistance payments under section 473 pursuant to adoption assistance agreements; plus

【(3) an amount equal to the sum of the following proportions of the total amounts expended during such quarter as found necessary by the Secretary for the provision of child placement services and for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan—

【(A) 75 per centum of so much of such expenditures as are for the training (including both short-and long-term training at educational institutions through grants to such institutions or by direct financial assistance to students enrolled in such institutions) of personnel employed or preparing for employment by the State agency or by the local agency administering the plan in the political subdivision,

【(B) 75 percent of so much of such expenditures (including travel and per diem expenses) as are for the short-term training of current or prospective foster or adoptive parents and the members of the staff of State-licensed or State-approved child care institutions providing care to foster and adopted children receiving assistance under this part, in ways that increase the ability of such current or prospective parents, staff members, and institutions to provide support and assistance to foster and adopted children, whether incurred directly by the State or by contract,

[(C) 50 percent of so much of such expenditures as are for the planning, design, development, or installation of statewide mechanized data collection and information retrieval systems (including 50 percent of the full amount of expenditures for hardware components for such systems) but only to the extent that such systems—

[(i) meet the requirements imposed by regulations promulgated pursuant to section 479(b)(2);

[(ii) to the extent practicable, are capable of interfacing with the State data collection system that collects information relating to child abuse and neglect;

[(iii) to the extent practicable, have the capability of interfacing with, and retrieving information from, the State data collection system that collects information relating to the eligibility of individuals under part A (for the purposes of facilitating verification of eligibility of foster children); and

[(iv) are determined by the Secretary to be likely to provide more efficient, economical, and effective administration of the programs carried out under a State plan approved under part B or this part; and

[(D) 50 percent of so much of such expenditures as are for the operation of the statewide mechanized data collection and information retrieval systems referred to in subparagraph (C); and

[(E) one-half of the remainder of such expenditures; plus

[(4) an amount equal to the sum of—

[(A) so much of the amounts expended by such State to carry out programs under section 477 as do not exceed the basic amount for such State determined under section 477(e)(1); and

[(B) the lesser of—

[(i) one-half of any additional amounts expended by such State for such programs; or [(ii) the maximum additional amount for such State under such section 477(e)(1).

[(b)(1) The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each quarter, estimate the amount to which a State will be entitled under subsections (a) for such quarter, such estimates to be based on (A) a report filed by the State containing its estimate of the total sum to be expended in such quarter in accordance with subsection (a), and stating the amount appropriated or made available by the State and its political subdivisions for such expenditures in such quarter, and if such amount is less than the State's proportionate share of the total sum of such estimated expenditures, the source or sources from which the difference is expected to be derived, (B) records showing the number of children in the State receiving assistance under this part, and (C) such other investigation as the Secretary may find necessary.

[(2) The Secretary shall then pay to the State, in such installments as he may determine, the amounts so estimated, reduced or increased to the extent of any overpayment or underpayment which the Secretary determines was made under this section to such

State for any prior quarter and with respect to which adjustment has not already been made under this subsection.

[(3) The pro rata share to which the United States is equitably entitled, as determined by the Secretary, of the net amount recovered during any quarter by the State or any political subdivision thereof with respect to foster care and adoption assistance furnished under the State plan shall be considered an overpayment to be adjusted under this subsection.

[(4)(A) Within 60 days after receipt of a State claim for expenditures pursuant to subsection (a), the Secretary shall allow, disallow, or defer such claim.

[(B) Within 15 days after a decision to defer such a State claim, the Secretary shall notify the State of the reasons for the deferral and of the additional information necessary to determine the allowability of the claim.

[(C) Within 90 days after receiving such necessary information (in readily reviewable form), the Secretary shall—

[(i) disallow the claim, if able to complete the review and determine that the claim is not allowable, or

[(ii) in any other case, allow the claim, subject to disallowance (as necessary)—

[(I) upon completion of the review, if it is determined that the claim is not allowable; or

[(II) on the basis of findings of an audit or financial management review.

[(c) AUTOMATED DATA COLLECTION EXPENDITURES.—The Secretary shall treat as necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan all expenditures of a State necessary in order for the State to plan, design, develop, install, and operate data collection and information retrieval systems described in subsection (a)(3)(C), without regard to whether the systems may be used with respect to foster or adoptive children other than those on behalf of whom foster care maintenance payments or adoption assistance payments may be made under this part.

DEFINITIONS

[SEC. 475. As used in this part or part B of this title:

[(1) The term “case plan” means a written document which includes at least the following:

[(A) A description of the type of home or institution in which a child is to be placed, including a discussion of the appropriateness of the placement and how the agency which is responsible for the child plans to carry out the voluntary placement agreement entered into or judicial determination made with respect to the child in accordance with section 472(a)(1).

[(B) A plan for assuring that the child receives proper care and that services are provided to the parents, child, and foster parents in order to improve the conditions in the parents' home, facilitate return of the child to his own home or the permanent placement of the child, and address the needs of the child while in foster care, including a discussion of the appropriateness of the services that have been provided to the child under the plan.

[(C) To the extent available and accessible, the health and education records of the child, including—

[(i) the names and addresses of the child's health and educational providers;

[(ii) the child's grade level performance;

[(iii) the child's school record;

[(iv) assurances that the child's placement in foster care takes into account proximity to the school in which the child is enrolled at the time of placement;

[(v) a record of the child's immunizations;

[(vi) the child's known medical problems;

[(vii) the child's medications; and

[(viii) any other relevant health and education information concerning the child determined to be appropriate by the State agency.

Where appropriate, for a child age 16 or over, the case plan must also include a written description of the programs and services which will help such child prepare for the transition from foster care to independent living.

[(2) The term "parents" means biological or adoptive parents or legal guardians, as determined by applicable State law.

[(3) The term "adoption assistance agreement" means a written agreement, binding on the parties to the agreement, between the State agency, other relevant agencies, and the prospective adoptive parents of a minor child which at a minimum (A) specifies the nature and amount of any payments, services, and assistance to be provided under such agreement, and (B) stipulates that the agreement shall remain in effect regardless of the State of which the adoptive parents are residents at any given time. The agreement shall contain provisions for the protection (under an interstate compact approved by the Secretary or otherwise) of the interests of the child in cases where the adoptive parents and child move to another State while the agreement is effective.

[(4)(A) The term "foster care maintenance payments" means payments to cover the cost of (and the cost of providing) food, clothing, shelter, daily supervision, school supplies, a child's personal incidentals, liability insurance with respect to a child, and reasonable travel to the child's home for visitation. In the case of institutional care, such term shall include the reasonable costs of administration and operation of such institution as are necessarily required to provide the items described in the preceding sentence.

[(B) In cases where—

[(i) a child placed in a foster family home or child-care institution is the parent of a son or daughter who is in the same home or institution, and

[(ii) payments described in subparagraph (A) are being made under this part with respect to such child, the foster care maintenance payments made with respect to such child as otherwise determined under subparagraph (A) shall also include such amounts as may be necessary to cover the cost of the items described in that subparagraph with respect to such son or daughter.

[(5) The term “case review system” means a procedure for assuring that—

[(A) each child has a case plan designed to achieve placement in the least restrictive (most family like) and most appropriate setting available and in close proximity to the parents’ home, consistent with the best interest and special needs of the child, which—

[(i) if the child has been placed in a foster family home or child-care institution a substantial distance from the home of the parents of the child, or in a State different from the State in which such home is located, sets forth the reasons why such placement is in the best interests of the child, and

[(ii) if the child has been placed in foster care outside the State in which the home of the parents of the child is located, requires that, periodically, but not less frequently than every 12 months, a caseworker on the staff of the State agency of the State in which the home of the parents of the child is located, or of the State in which the child has been placed, visit such child in such home or institution and submit a report on such visit to the State in which the home of the parents of the child is located,

[(B) the status of each child is reviewed periodically but no less frequently than once every six months by either a court or by administrative review (as defined in paragraph (6)) in order to determine the continuing necessity for and appropriateness of the placement, the extent of compliance with the case plan, and the extent of progress which has been made toward alleviating or mitigating the causes necessitating placement in foster care, and to project a likely date by which the child may be returned to the home or placed for adoption or legal guardianship,

[(C) with respect to each such child, procedural safeguards will be applied, among other things, to assure each child in foster care under the supervision of the State of a dispositional hearing to be held, in a family or juvenile court or another court (including a tribal court) of competent jurisdiction, or by an administrative body appointed or approved by the court, no later than eighteen months after the original placement (and not less frequently than every 12 months thereafter during the continuation of foster care), which hearing shall determine the future status of the child (including, but not limited to, whether the child should be returned to the parent, should be continued in foster care for a specified period, should be placed for adoption, or should (because of the child’s special needs or circumstances) be continued in foster care on a permanent or long-term basis) and, in the case of a child described in subparagraph (A)(ii), whether the out-of-State placement continues to be appropriate and in the best interests of the child, and, in the case of a child who has attained age 16, the services needed to assist the child to make the transition from foster care to independent living; and procedural safeguards shall also be applied with respect to parental rights pertaining to the removal of the child from the home of his parents, to a change in the child's placement, and to any determination affecting visitation privileges of parents; and

[(D) a child's health and education record (as described in paragraph (1)(A)) is reviewed and updated, and supplied to the foster parent or foster care provider with whom the child is placed, at the time of each placement of the child in foster care.

[(6) The term "administrative review" means a review open to the participation of the parents of the child, conducted by a panel of appropriate persons at least one of whom is not responsible for the case management of, or the delivery of services to, either the child or the parents who are the subject of the review.

[(TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE; DATA COLLECTION AND EVALUATION

[(SEC. 476. (a) The Secretary may provide technical assistance to the States to assist them to develop the programs authorized under this part and shall periodically (1) evaluate the programs authorized under this part and part B of this title and (2) collect and publish data pertaining to the incidence and characteristics of foster care and adoptions in this country.

[(b) Each State shall submit statistical reports as the Secretary may require with respect to children for whom payments are made under this part containing information with respect to such children including legal status, demographic characteristics, location, and length of any stay in foster care.

[(INDEPENDENT LIVING INITIATIVES

[(SEC. 477. (a)(1) Payments shall be made in accordance with this section for the purpose of assisting States and localities in establishing and carrying out programs designed to assist children described in paragraph (2) who have attained age 16 in making the transition from foster care to independent living. Any State which provides for the establishment and carrying out of one or more such programs in accordance with this section for a fiscal year shall be entitled to receive payments under this section for such fiscal year, in an amount determined under subsection (e).

[(2) A program established and carried out under paragraph (1)—

[(A) shall be designed to assist children with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are being made by the State under this part,

[(B) may at the option of the State also include any or all other children in foster care under the responsibility of the State, and

[(C) may at the option of the State also include any child who has not attained age 21 to whom foster care maintenance payments were previously made by a State under this part and whose payments were discontinued on or after the date such child attained age 16, and any child who previously was in foster care described in subparagraph (B) and for whom such care was discontinued on or after the date such child attained age 16; and a written transitional independent living plan of the type described in subsection (d)(6) shall be developed for such child as a part of such program.

[(b) The State agency administering or supervising the administration of the State's programs under this part shall be responsible for administering or supervising the administration of the State's programs described in subsection (a). Payment under this section shall be made to the State, and shall be used for the purpose of conducting and providing in accordance with this section (directly or under contracts with local governmental entities or private nonprofit organizations) the activities and services required to carry out the program or programs involved.

[(c) In order for a State to receive payments under this section for any fiscal year, the State agency must submit to the Secretary, in such manner and form as the Secretary may prescribe, a description of the program together with satisfactory assurances that the program will be operated in an effective and efficient manner and will otherwise meet the requirements of this section. In the case of payments for fiscal year 1987, such description and assurances must be submitted within 90 days after the Secretary promulgates regulations as required under subsection (i), and in the case of payments for any succeeding fiscal year, such description and assurances must be submitted prior to February 1 of such fiscal year.

[(d) In carrying out the purpose described in subsection (a), it shall be the objective of each program established under this section to help the individuals participating in such program to prepare to live independently upon leaving foster care. Such programs may include (subject to the availability of funds) programs to—

[(1) enable participants to seek a high school diploma or its equivalent or to take part in appropriate vocational training;

[(2) provide training in daily living skills, budgeting, locating and maintaining housing, and career planning;

[(3) provide for individual and group counseling;

[(4) integrate and coordinate services otherwise available to participants;

[(5) provide for the establishment of outreach programs designed to attract individuals who are eligible to participate in the program;

[(6) provide each participant a written transitional independent living plan which shall be based on an assessment of his needs, and which shall be incorporated into his case plan, as described in section 475(1); and

[(7) provide participants with other services and assistance designed to improve their transition to independent living.

[(e)(1)(A) The basic amount to which a State shall be entitled under section 474(a)(4) for fiscal year 1987 and any succeeding fiscal year shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the basic ceiling for such fiscal year as such State's average number of children receiving foster care maintenance payments under this part in fiscal year 1984 bears to the total of the average number of children receiving such payments under this part for all States for fiscal year 1984.

[(B) The maximum additional amount to which a State shall be entitled under section 474(a)(4) for fiscal year 1991 and any succeeding fiscal year shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the additional ceiling for such fiscal year as the basic amount of such State bears to $45,000,000.

[(C) As used in this section:

[(i) The term "basic ceiling" means—

[(I) for fiscal year 1990, $50,000,000; and

[(II) for each fiscal year other than fiscal year 1990, $45,000,000.

[(ii) The term "additional ceiling" means—

[(I) for fiscal year 1991, $15,000,000; and

[(II) for any succeeding fiscal year, $25,000,000.

[(2) If any State does not apply for funds under this section for any fiscal year within the time provided in subsection (c), the funds to which such State would have been entitled for such fiscal year shall be reallocated to one or more other States on the basis of their relative need for additional payments under this section (as determined by the Secretary).

[(3) Any amounts payable to States under this section shall be in addition to amounts payable to States under subsections (a)(1), (a)(2), and (a)(3) of section 474, and shall supplement and not replace any other funds which may be available for the same general purposes in the localities involved. Amounts payable under this section may not be used for the provision of room or board.

[(f) Payments made to a State under this section for any fiscal year—

[(1) shall be used only for the specific purposes described in this section;

[(2) may be made on an estimated basis in advance of the determination of the exact amount, with appropriate subsequent adjustments to take account of any error in the estimates; and

[(3) shall be expended by such State in such fiscal year or in the succeeding fiscal year.

[(Notwithstanding paragraph (3), payments made to a State under this section for the fiscal year 1987 and unobligated may be expended by such State in the fiscal year 1989.)

[(g)(1) Not later than the first January 1 following the end of each fiscal year, each State shall submit to the Secretary a report on the programs carried out during such fiscal year with the amounts received under this section. Such report—

[(A) shall be in such form and contain such information as may be necessary to provide an accurate description of such activities, to provide a complete record of the purposes for which the funds were spent, and to indicate the extent to which the expenditure of such funds succeeded in accomplishing the purpose described in subsection (a); and

[(B) shall specifically contain such information as the Secretary may require in order to carry out the evaluation under paragraph (2).

[(2)(A) Not later than July 1, 1988, the Secretary shall submit an interim report on the activities carried out under this section.

[(B) Not later than March 1, 1989, the Secretary, on the basis of the reports submitted by States under paragraph (1) for the fiscal years 1987 and 1988, and on the basis of such additional information as the Secretary may obtain or develop, shall evaluate the use by States of the payments made available under this section for such fiscal year with respect to the purpose of this section, with the objective of appraising the achievements of the programs for which such payments were made available, and developing comprehensive information and data on the basis of which decisions can be made with respect to the improvement of such programs and the necessity for providing further payments in subsequent years. The Secretary shall report such evaluation to the Congress. As a part of such evaluation, the Secretary shall include, at a minimum, a detailed overall description of the number and characteristics of the individuals served by the programs, the various kinds of activities conducted and services provided and the results achieved, and shall set forth in detail findings and comments with respect to the various State programs and a statement of plans and recommendations for the future.

[(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, payments made and services provided to participants in a program under this section, as a direct consequence of their participation in such program, shall not be considered as income or resources for purposes of determining eligibility (or the eligibility of any other persons) for aid under the State's plan approved under section 402 or 471, or for purposes of determining the level of such aid.

[(i) The Secretary shall promulgate final regulations for implementing this section within 60 days after the date of the enactment of this section

[COLLECTION OF DATA RELATING TO ADOPTION AND FOSTER CARE

[SEC. 479. (a)(1) Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this subsection, the Secretary shall establish an Advisory Committee on Adoption and Foster Care Information (in this section referred to as the "Advisory Committee") to study the various methods of establishing, administering, and financing a system for the collection of data with respect to adoption and foster care in the United States.

[(2) The study required by paragraph (1) shall—

[(D) evaluate the financial and administrative impact of implementing each such method.

[(3) Not later than October 1, 1987, the Advisory Committee shall submit to the Secretary and the Congress a report setting forth the results of the study required by paragraph (1) and evaluating and making recommendations with respect to the various methods of establishing, administering, and financing a system for the collection of data with respect to adoption and foster care in the United States.

[(4)(A) Subject to subparagraph (B), the membership and organization of the Advisory Committee shall be determined by the Secretary.

[(B) The membership of the Advisory Committee shall include representatives of—

[(i) private, nonprofit organizations with an interest in child welfare (including organizations that provide foster care and adoption services),

[(ii) organizations representing State and local governmental agencies with responsibility for foster care and adoption services,

[(i) proposes a method of establishing, administering, and financing a system for the collection of data relating to adoption and foster care in the United States,

[(ii) evaluates the feasibility and appropriateness of collecting data with respect to privately arranged adoptions and adoptions arranged through private agencies without assistance from public child welfare agencies, and

[(iii) evaluates the impact of the system proposed under clause (i) on the agencies with responsibility for implementing it.

[(B) The report required by subparagraph (A) shall—

[(i) specify any changes in law that will be necessary to implement the system proposed under subparagraph (A)(i), and

[(ii) describe the type of system that will be implemented under paragraph (2) in the absence of such changes.

[(2) Not later than December 31, 1988, the Secretary shall promulgate final regulations providing for the implementation of—

[(A) the system proposed under paragraph (1)(A)(i), or

[(B) if the changes in law specified pursuant to paragraph (1)(B)(i) have not been enacted, the system described in paragraph (1)(B)(ii).

Such regulations shall provide for the full implementation of the system not later than October 1, 1991.

[(c) Any data collection system developed and implemented under this section shall—

[(1) avoid unnecessary diversion of resources from agencies responsible for adoption and foster care;

[(2) assure that any data that is collected is reliable and consistent over time and among jurisdictions through the use of uniform definitions and methodologies;

[(3) provide comprehensive national information with respect to—

[PART F—JOB OPPORTUNITIES AND BASIC SKILLS TRAINING PROGRAM

[PURPOSE AND DEFINITIONS

[SEC. 481. (a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this part to assure that needy families with children obtain the education, training, and employment that will help them avoid long-term welfare dependence.

[(b) MEANING OF TERMS.—Except to the extent otherwise specifically indicated, terms used in this part shall have the meanings given them in or under part A.

[ESTABLISHMENT AND OPERATION OF STATE PROGRAMS

[SEC. 482. (a) State Plans for Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training Programs.—(1)(A) As a condition of its participation in the program of aid to families with dependent children under part A, each State shall establish and operate a job opportunities and basic skills training program (in this part referred to as the “program”) under a plan approved by the Secretary as meeting all of the requirements of this part and section 402(a)(19), and shall, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary, periodically (but not less frequently than every 2 years) review and update its plan and submit the updated plan for approval by the Secretary.

[(B) A State plan for establishing and operating the program must describe how the State intends to implement the program during the period covered by the plan, and must indicate, through cross-references to the appropriate provisions of this part and part A, that the program will be operated in accordance with such provision of law. In addition, such plan must contain (i) an estimate of the number of persons to be served by the program, (ii) a description of the services to be provided within the State and the political subdivisions thereof, the needs to be addressed through the provision of such services, the extent to which such services are expected to be made available by other agencies on a nonreimbursable basis, and the extent to which such services are to be provided or funded by the program, and (iii) such additional information as the Secretary may require by regulation to enable the Secretary to determine that the State program will meet all of the requirements of this part and part A.

[(C) The Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Labor on general plan requirements and on criteria to be used in approving State plans under this section.

[(D)(i) Not later than October 1, 1992, each State shall make the program available in each political subdivision of such State where it is feasible to do so, after taking into account the number of prospective participants, the local economy, and other relevant factors.

[(ii) If a State determines that it is not feasible to make the program available in each such subdivision, the State plan must provide appropriate justification to the Secretary.

[(2) The State agency that administers or supervises the administration of the State's plan approved under section 402 shall be responsible for the administration or supervision of the administration of the State's program.

[(3) Federal funds made available to a State for purposes of the program shall not be used to supplant non-Federal funds for existing services and activities which promote the purpose of this part. State or local funds expended for such purpose shall be maintained at least at the level of such expenditures for the fiscal year 1986.

[(b) ASSESSMENT AND REVIEW OF NEEDS AND SKILLS OF PARTICIPANTS; EMPLOYABILITY PLAN.—(1)(A) The State agency must make an initial assessment of the educational, child care, and other supportive services needs as well as the skills, prior work experience, and employability of each participant in the program under this part, including a review of the family circumstances. The agency may also review the needs of any child of the participant.

[(B) On the basis of such assessment, the State agency, in consultation with the participant, shall develop an employability plan for the participant. The employability plan shall explain the services that will be provided by the State agency and the activities in which the participant will take part under the program, including child care and other supportive services, shall set forth an employment goal for the participant, and shall, to the maximum extent possible and consistent with this section, reflect the respective preferences of such participant. The plan must take into account the participant's supportive services needs, available program resources, and local employment opportunities. The employability plan shall not be considered a contract.

[(2) Following the initial assessment and review and the development of the employability plan with respect to any participant in the program, the State agency may require the participant (or the adult caretaker in the family of which the participant is a member) to negotiate and enter into an agreement with the State agency that specifies such matters as the participant's obligations under the program, the duration of participation in the program, and the activities to be conducted and the services to be provided in the course of such participation. If the State agency exercises the option under the preceding sentence, the State agency must give the participant such assistance as he or she may require in reviewing and understanding the agreement.

[(3) The State agency may assign a case manager to each participant and the participant's family. The case manager so assigned must be responsible for assisting the family to obtain any services which may be needed to assure effective participation in the program.

[(c) PROVISION OF PROGRAM AND EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION.—

(1) The State agency must ensure that all applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children are encouraged, assisted, and required to fulfill their responsibilities to support their children by preparing for, accepting, and retaining such employment as they are capable of performing.

[(2) The State agency must inform all applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children of the education, employment, and training opportunities, and the support services (including child care and health coverage transition options), for which they are eligible, the obligations of the State agency, and the rights, responsibilities, and obligations of participants in the program.

[(3) The State agency must—

[(A) provide (directly or through arrangements with others) information on the types and locations of child care services reasonably accessible to participants in the program,

[(B) inform participants that assistance is available to help them select appropriate child care services, and

[(C) on request, provide assistance to participants in obtaining child care services.

[(4) The State agency must inform applicants for and recipients of aid to families with dependent children of the grounds for exemption from participation in the program and the consequences of refusal to participate if not exempt, and provide other appropriate information with respect to such participation.

[(5) Within one month after the State agency gives a recipient of aid to families with dependent children the information described in the preceding provisions of this paragraph, the State agency must notify such recipient of the opportunity to indicate his or her desire to participate in the program, including a clear description of how to enter the program.

[(d) SERVICES AND ACTIVITIES UNDER THE PROGRAM.—(1)(A) In carrying out the program, each State shall make available a broad range of services and activities to aid in carrying out the purpose of this part. Such services and activities—

[(i) shall include—

[(I) educational activities (as appropriate), including high school or equivalent education (combined with training as needed), basic and remedial education to achieve a basic literacy level, and education for individuals with limited English proficiency;

[(II) job skills training;

[(III) job readiness activities to help prepare participants for work; and

[(IV) job development and job placement; and

[(ii) must also include at least 2 of the following:

[(I) group and individual job search as described in subsection (g);

[(II) on-the-job training;

[(III) work supplementation programs as described in subsection (e); and

[(IV) community work experience programs as described in subsection (f) or any other work experience program approved by the Secretary.

[(B) The State may also offer to participants under the program (i) postsecondary education in appropriate cases, and (ii) such other education, training, and employment activities as may be determined by the State and allowed by regulations of the Secretary.

[(2) If the State requires an individual who has attained the age of 20 years and has not earned a high school diploma (or equivalent) to participate in the program, the State agency shall include educational activities consistent with his or her employment goals as a component of the individual's participation in the program, unless the individual demonstrates a basic literacy level, or the employability plan for the individual identifies a long-term employment goal that does not require a high school diploma (or equivalent). Any other services or activities to which such a participant is assigned may not be permitted to interfere with his or her participation in an appropriate educational activity under this subparagraph.

[(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Secretary shall permit up to 5 States to provide services under the program, on a voluntary or mandatory basis, to non-custodial parents who are unemployed and unable to meet their child support obligations. Any State providing services to non-custodial parents pursuant to this paragraph shall evaluate the provision of such services, giving particular attention to the extent to which the provision of such services to those parents is contributing to the achievement of the purpose of this part, and shall report the results of such evaluation to the Secretary.

[(e) WORK SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM.—(1) Any State may institute a work supplementation program under which such State, to the extent it considers appropriate, may reserve the sums that would otherwise be payable to participants in the program as aid to families with dependent children and use such sums instead for the purpose of providing and subsidizing jobs for such participants (as described in paragraph (3)(C)(i) and (ii)), as an alternative to the aid to families with dependent children that would otherwise be so payable to them.

[(2)(A) Notwithstanding section 406 or any other provision of law, Federal funds may be paid to a State under part A, subject to this subsection, with respect to expenditures incurred in operating a work supplementation program under this subsection.

[(B) Nothing in this part, or in any State plan approved under part A, shall be construed to prevent a State from operating (on such terms and conditions and in such cases as the State may find to be necessary or appropriate) a work supplementation program in accordance with this subsection and section 484.

[(C) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(23) or any other provision of law, a State may adjust the levels of the standards of need under the State plan as the State determines to be necessary and appropriate for carrying out a work supplementation program under this subsection.

[(D) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(1) or any other provision of law, a State operating a work supplementation program under this subsection may provide that the need standards in effect in those areas of the State in which such program is in operation may be different from the need standards in effect in the areas in which such program is not in operation, and such State may provide that the need standards for categories of recipients may vary among such categories to the extent the State determines to be appropriate on the basis of ability to participate in the work supplementation program.

[(E) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a State may make such further adjustments in the amounts of the aid to families with dependent children paid under the plan to different categories of recipients (as determined under subparagraph (D)) in order to offset increases in benefits from needs-related programs (other than the State plan approved under part A) as the State determines to be necessary and appropriate to further the purposes of the work supplementation program.

[(F) In determining the amounts to be reserved and used for providing and subsidizing jobs under this subsection as described in paragraph (1), the State may use a sampling methodology.

[(G) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(8) or any other provision of law, a State operating a work supplementation program under this subsection (i) may reduce or eliminate the amount of earned income to be disregarded under the State plan as the State determines to be necessary and appropriate to further the purposes of the work supplementation program, and (ii) during one or more of the first 9 months of an individual's employment pursuant to a program under this section, may apply to the wages of the individual the provisions of subparagraph (A)(iv) of section 402(a)(8) without regard to the provisions of subparagraph (B)(ii)(II) of such section.

[(3)(A) A work supplementation program operated by a State under this subsection may provide that any individual who is an eligible individual (as determined under subparagraph (B)) shall take a supplemented job (as defined in subparagraph (C)) to the extent that supplemented jobs are available under the program. Payments by the State to individuals or to employers under the work supplementation program shall be treated as expenditures incurred by the State for aid to families with dependent children except as limited by paragraph (4).

[(B) For purposes of this subsection, an eligible individual is an individual who is in a category which the State determines should be eligible to participate in the work supplementation program, and who would, at the time of placement in the job involved, be eligible for aid to families with dependent children under an approved State plan if such State did not have a work supplementation program in effect.

[(C) For purposes of this section, a supplemented job is—

[(i) a job provided to an eligible individual by the State or local agency administering the State plan under part A; or

[(ii) a job provided to an eligible individual by any other employer for which all or part of the wages are paid by such State or local agency.

A State may provide or subsidize under the program any job which such State determines to be appropriate.

[(D) At the option of the State, individuals who hold supplemented jobs under a State's work supplementation program shall be exempt from the retrospective budgeting requirements imposed pursuant to section 402(a)(13)(A)(ii) (and the amount of the aid which is payable to the family of any such individual for any month, or which would be so payable but for the individual's participation in the work supplementation program, shall be determined on the basis of the income and other relevant circumstances in that month).

[(4) The amount of the Federal payment to a State under section 403 for expenditures incurred in making payments to individuals and employers under a work supplementation program under this subsection shall not exceed an amount equal to the amount which would otherwise be payable under such section if the family of each individual employed in the program established in such State under this subsection had received the maximum amount of aid to families with dependent children payable under the State plan to such a family with no income (without regard to adjustments under paragraph (2)) for the lesser of (A) 9 months, or (B) the number of months in which such individual was employed in such program.

[(5)(A) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as requiring the State or local agency administering the State plan to provide employee status to an eligible individual to whom it provides a job under the work supplementation program (or with respect to whom it provides all or part of the wages paid to the individual by another entity under such program), or as requiring any State or local agency to provide that an eligible individual filling a job position provided by another entity under such program be provided employee status by such entity during the first 13 weeks such individual fills that position.

[(B) Wages paid under a work supplementation program shall be considered to be earned income for purposes of any provision of law.

[(6) Any State that chooses to operate a work supplementation program under this subsection shall provide that any individual who participates in such program, and any child or relative of such individual (or other individual living in the same household as such individual) who would be eligible for aid to families with dependent children under the State plan approved under part A if such State did not have a work supplementation program, shall be considered individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children under the State plan approved under part A for purposes of eligibility for medical assistance under the State plan approved under title XIX.

[(7) No individual receiving aid to families with dependent children under a State plan shall be excused by reason of the fact that such State has a work supplementation program from any requirement of this part relating to work requirements, except during periods in which such individual is employed under such work supplementation program.

[(f) COMMUNITY WORK EXPERIENCE PROGRAM.—(1)(A) Any State may establish a community work experience program in accordance with this subsection. The purpose of the community work experience program is to provide experience and training for individuals not otherwise able to obtain employment, in order to assist them to move into regular employment. Community work experience programs shall be designed to improve the employability of participants through actual work experience and training and to enable individuals employed under community work experience programs to move promptly into regular public or private employment. The facilities of the State public employment offices may be utilized to find employment opportunities for recipients under this program. Community work experience programs shall be limited to projects which serve a useful public purpose in fields such as health, social service, environmental protection, education, urban and rural development and redevelopment, welfare, recreation, public facilities, public safety, and day care. To the extent possible, the prior training, experience, and skills of a recipient shall be used in making appropriate work experience assignments.

[(B)(i) A State that elects to establish a community work experience program under this subsection shall operate such program so that each participant (as determined by the State) either works or undergoes training (or both) with the maximum number of hours that any such individual may be required to work in any month being a number equal to the amount of the aid to families with dependent children payable with respect to the family of which such individual is a member under the State plan approved under this part, divided by the greater of the Federal minimum wage or the applicable State minimum wage (and the portion of a recipient's aid for which the State is reimbursed by a child support collection shall not be taken into account in determining the number of hours that such individual may be required to work).

[(ii) After an individual has been assigned to a position in a community work experience program under this subsection for 9 months, such individual may not be required to continue in that assignment unless the maximum number of hours of participation is no greater than (I) the amount of the aid to families with dependent children payable with respect to the family of which such individual is a member under the State plan approved under this part (excluding any portion of such aid for which the State is reimbursed by a child support payment), divided by (II) the higher of (a) the Federal minimum wage or the applicable State minimum wage, whichever is greater, or (b) the rate of pay for individuals employed in the same or similar occupations by the same employer at the same site.

[(C) Nothing contained in this subsection shall be construed as authorizing the payment of aid to families with dependent children as compensation for work performed, nor shall a participant be entitled to a salary or to any other work or training expense provided under any other provision of law by reason of his participation in a program under this subsection.

[(D) Nothing in this part or in any State plan approved under this part shall be construed to prevent a State from operating (on such terms and conditions and in such cases as the State may find to be necessary or appropriate) a community work experience program in accordance with this subsection and subsection (d).

[(E) Participants in community work experience programs under this subsection may perform work in the public interest (which otherwise meets the requirements of this subsection) for a Federal office or agency with its consent, and, notwithstanding section 1342 of title 31, United States Code, or any other provision of law, such agency may accept such services, but such participants shall not be considered to be Federal employees for any purpose.

[(2) After each 6 months of an individual's participation in a community work experience program under this subsection, and at the conclusion of each assignment of the individual under such program, the State agency must provide a reassessment and revision, as appropriate, of the individual's employability plan.

[(3) The State agency shall provide coordination among a community work experience program operated pursuant to this subsection, any program of job search under subsection (g), and the other employment-related activities under the program established by this section so as to insure that job placement will have priority over participation in the community work experience program, and that individuals eligible to participate in more than one such program are not denied aid to families with dependent children on the grounds of failure to participate in one such program if they are actively and satisfactorily participating in another. The State agency may provide that part-time participation in more than one such program may be required where appropriate.

[(4) In the case of any State that makes expenditures in the form described in paragraph (1) under its State plan approved under section 482(a)(1), expenditures for the operation and administration of the program under this section may not include, for purposes of section 403, the cost of making or acquiring materials or equipment in connection with the work performed under a program referred to in paragraph (1) or the cost of supervision of work under such program, and may include only such other costs attributable to such programs as are permitted by the Secretary.

[(g) JOB SEARCH PROGRAM.—(1) The State agency may establish and carry out a program of job search for individuals participating in the program under this part.

[(2) Notwithstanding section 402(a)(19)(B)(i), the State agency may require job search by an individual applying for or receiving aid to families with dependent children (other than an individual described in section 402(a)(19)(C) who is not an individual with respect to whom section 402(a)(19)(D) applies)—

[(A) subject to the next to last sentence of this paragraph, beginning at the time such individual applies for aid to families with dependent children and continuing for a period (prescribed by the State) of not more than 8 weeks (but this requirement may not be used as a reason for any delay in making a determination of an individual's eligibility for such aid or in issuing a payment to or on behalf of any individual who is otherwise eligible for such aid); and

[(B) at such time or times after the close of the period prescribed under subparagraph (A) as the State agency may determine but not to exceed a total of 8 weeks in any period of 12 consecutive months.

In no event may an individual be required to participate in job search for more than 3 weeks before the State agency conducts the assessment and review with respect to such individual under subsection (b)(1)(A). Job search activities in addition to those required under the preceding provisions of this paragraph may be required only in combination with some other education, training, or employment activity which is designed to improve the individual's prospects for employment.

[(3) Job search by an individual under this subsection shall in no event be treated, for any purpose, as an activity under the program if the individual has participated in such job search for 4 months out of the preceding 12 months.

[(h) DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCEDURES.—Each State shall establish a conciliation procedure for the resolution of disputes involving an individual's participation in the program and (if the dispute involved is not resolved through conciliation) shall provide an opportunity for a hearing with respect to the dispute, which hearing may be provided through a hearing process established for purposes of resolving disputes with respect to the program or through the provision of a hearing pursuant to section 402(a)(4); but in no event shall aid to families with dependent children be suspended, reduced, discontinued, or terminated as a result of a dispute involving an individual's participation in the program until such individual has an opportunity for a hearing that meets the standards set forth by the United States Supreme Court in Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970).

[(i) SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO INDIAN TRIBES.—(1) Within 6 months after the date of the enactment of the Family Support Act of 1988, an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization may apply to the Secretary to conduct a job opportunities and basic skills training program to carry out the purpose of this subsection. If the Secretary approves such tribe's or organization's application, the maximum amount that may be paid to the State under section 403(l) in which such tribe or organization is located shall be reduced by the Secretary in accordance with paragraph (2) and an amount equal to the amount of such reduction shall be paid directly to such tribe or organization (without the requirement of any nonfederal share) for the operation of such program. In determining whether to approve an application from an Alaska Native organization, the Secretary shall consider whether approval of the application would promote the efficient and nonduplicative administration of job opportunities and basic skills training programs in the State.

[(2) The amount of the reduction under paragraph (1) with respect to any State in which is located an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization with an application approved under such paragraph shall be an amount equal to the amount that bears the same ratio to the maximum amount that could be paid under section 403(1) to the State as—

[(A) the number of adult Indians receiving aid to families with dependent children who reside on the reservation or within the designated service area bears to the number of all such adult recipients in the State, or

[(B) the number of adult Alaska Natives receiving aid to families with dependent children who reside within the boundaries of such Alaska Native organization bears to the number of all such adult recipients in the State of Alaska.

[(3) The job opportunities and basic skills training program set forth in the application of an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization under paragraph (1) need not meet any requirement of the program under this part or under section 402(a)(19) that the Secretary determines is inappropriate with respect to such job opportunities and basic skills training program.

[(4) The job opportunities and basic skills training program of any Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization may be terminated voluntarily by such tribe or Alaska Native organization or may be terminated by the Secretary upon a finding that the tribe or Alaska Native organization is not conducting such program in substantial conformity with the terms of the application approved by the Secretary, and the maximum amount that may be paid under section 403(1) to the State within which the tribe or Alaska Native organization is located (as reduced pursuant to paragraph (1)) shall be increased by any portion of the amount retained by the Secretary with respect to such program (and not payable to such tribe or Alaska Native organization for obligations already incurred). The reduction under paragraph (1) shall in no event apply to a State for any fiscal year beginning after such program is terminated if no other such program remains in operation in the State.

[(5) For purposes of this subsection, an Indian tribe is any tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community of Indians that—

[(A) is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians; and

[(B) for which a reservation (as defined in paragraph (6)) exists.

[(6) For purposes of this subsection, a reservation includes Indian reservations, public domain Indian allotments, and former Indian reservations in Oklahoma.

[(7) For purposes of this subsection—

[(A) an Alaska Native organization is any organized group of Alaska Natives eligible to operate a Federal program under Public Law 93-638 or such group's designee;

[(B) the boundaries of an Alaska Native organization shall be those of the geographical region, established pursuant to section 7(a) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, within which the Alaska Native organization is located (without regard to the ownership of the land within the boundaries);

[(C) the Secretary may approve only one application from an Alaska Native organization for each of the 12 geographical regions established pursuant to section 7(a) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act; and

[(D) any Alaska Native, otherwise eligible or required to participate in a job opportunities and basic skills training program, residing within the boundaries of an Alaska Native organization whose application has been approved by the Secretary, shall be eligible to participate in the job opportunities and basic skills training program administered by such Alaska Native organization.

[(8) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to grant or defer any status or powers other than those expressly granted in this subsection or to validate or invalidate any claim by Alaska Natives of sovereign authority over lands or people.

(1) the removal from the home occurred pursuant to a voluntary placement agreement entered into by the child's parent or legal guardian, or was the result of a judicial determination to the effect that continuation therein would be contrary to the welfare of such child and that reasonable efforts of the type described in section 422(a)(12) have been made;

(A) the State; or

(B) any other public agency with which the State has made an agreement for the administration of the State program under this part which is still in effect;

(B) such parents or guardians request (in such manner and form as the Secretary may prescribe) that the child be returned to their home or to the home of a relative, the voluntary placement agreement shall be deemed to be revoked unless the State opposes such request and obtains a judicial determination, by a court of competent jurisdiction, that the return of the child to such home would be contrary to the child's best interests.

(d) ELIGIBILITY FOR MEDICAL ASSISTANCE.—For purposes of title XIX (or, if applicable, title XV) and title XX, any child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments are made under this section is deemed to be a recipient of cash assistance under part A of this title. However, in no case may the amount of the adoption assistance payment exceed the foster care maintenance payment which would have been paid during the period if the child with respect to whom the adoption assistance payment is made had been in a foster family home.

(f) PAYMENT EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding subsection (e), no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child who has attained the age of 18 (or, where the State determines that the child has a mental or physical disability which warrants the continuation of assistance, the age of 21), and no payment may be made to parents with respect to any child if the State determines that the parents are no longer legally responsible for the support of the child or if the State determines that the child is no longer receiving any support from such parents. (B) that, except where it would be against the best interests of the child because of such factors as the existence of significant emotional ties with prospective adoptive parents while in the care of such parents as a foster child, a reasonable, but unsuccessful, effort has been made to place the child with appropriate adoptive parents without providing adoption assistance under this section or medical assistance under title XV or XIX.

(B) 75 percent of so much of such expenditures (including travel and per diem expenses) as are for the short-term training of current or prospective foster or adoptive parents and the members of the staff of State-licensed or State-approved child care institutions providing care to foster and adopted children receiving assistance under this part, in ways that increase the ability of such current or prospective parents, staff members, and institutions to provide support and assistance to foster and adopted children, whether incurred directly by the State or by contract;

(C) 50 percent (or, if the quarter is in fiscal year 1997, 75 percent) of so much of such expenditures as are for the planning, design, development, or installation of statewide mechanized data collection and information retrieval systems (including 50 percent (or, if the quarter is in fiscal year 1997, 75 percent) of the full amount of expenditures for hardware components for such systems) but only to the extent that such systems—

[PILOT PROJECTS TO DEMONSTRATE THE USE OF INTEGRATED SERVICE DELIVERY SYSTEMS FOR HUMAN SERVICES PROGRAMS

[SEC. 1136. (a) In order to develop and demonstrate ways of improving the delivery of services to individuals and families who need them under the various human services programs, by eliminating programmatic fragmentation and thereby assuring that an applicant for services under any one such program will be informed of and have access to all of the services which may be available to him or his family under the other human services programs being carried out in the community involved, any State having an approved plan under part A of title IV may, subject to the provisions of this section, establish and conduct one or more pilot projects to demonstrate the use of integrated service delivery systems for human services programs in that State or in one or more political subdivisions thereof.

[(b) The integration of service delivery systems for human services programs in any State or locality under a pilot project established under this section shall involve or include—

[(1) the development of a common set of terms for use in all of the human services programs involved;

[(2) the development for each applicant of a single comprehensive family profile which is suitable for use under all of the human services programs involved;

[(3) the establishment and maintenance of a single resources directory by which the citizens of the community involved may be informed of and gain access to the services which are available under all such programs;

[(4) the development of a unified budget and budgeting process, and a unified accounting system, with standardized audit procedures;

[(5) the implementation of unified planning, needs assessment, and evaluation;

[(6) the consolidation of agency locations and related transportation services;

[(7) the standardization of procedures for purchasing services from nongovernmental sources;

[(8) the creation of communications linkages among agencies to permit the serving of individual and family needs across program and agency lines;

[(9) the development, to the maximum extent possible, of uniform application and eligibility determination procedures; and

[(10) any other methods, arrangements, and procedures which the Secretary determines are necessary or desirable for, and consistent with, the establishment and operation of an integrated service delivery system.

[(c)(1) Any State which desires to establish and conduct a pilot project under this section, after having published a description of the proposed project and invited comments thereon from interested persons in the community or communities which would be affected, shall submit an application to the Secretary (in such form and containing such information as the Secretary may require) within 6 months after the date of the enactment of this section. The proposed project may be statewide in operation or may be limited to one or more political subdivisions of the State; and the application shall in any event include or be accompanied by satisfactory assurances that the project as proposed would be permitted under applicable State and local law.

[(2) The Secretary shall consider all applications and accompanying comments and materials which are submitted under paragraph (1), and, no later than 9 months after the date of the enactment of this section, shall approve no fewer than 3 nor more than 5 of the proposed projects (including one such project to be operated on a statewide basis). In considering and approving such applications the Secretary shall take into account the size and characteristics of the population that would be served by each proposed project, the desirability of wide geographic distribution among the projects, the number and nature of the human services programs which are in active operation in the various communities involved, and such other factors as may tend to indicate whether or not a particular proposed project would provide a useful and effective demonstration of the value of an integrated service delivery system. Each project approved under this paragraph shall be deemed for purposes of this section to begin on the first day of the month following the month in which the application with respect to such project is approved.

[(3) The Secretary shall approve any application for a project under this section only after determining that the conduct of such project will not lower or restrict the levels of aid, assistance, benefits, or services, or the income or resource standards, deductions, or exclusions, under any of the human services programs involved, and will not delay the provision of aid, assistance, benefits, or services under any of such programs.

[(d)(1) Any State whose application is approved under subsection (c) may submit to the Secretary a request for the waiver of any requirement which would otherwise apply with respect to the proposed project under any of the laws governing the human services programs to be included in the project; and—

[(A) if the law involved is within the jurisdiction of the Secretary and authority to grant the waiver involved is otherwise available to the Secretary under this title, title IV, or any other provision of law, the Secretary shall approve such request upon a determination that the waiver is necessary for the project to provide a useful and effective demonstration of the value of an integrated service delivery system; and

[(B) if the law involved is within the jurisdiction of a Federal agency other than the Department of Health and Human Services and authority to grant the waiver involved is available to the head of such other agency under that law or any other provision of law, the Secretary shall transmit such request (on behalf of the requesting State) to the head of such other agency, who shall approve such request upon a determination that the waiver is necessary for the project to provide a useful and effective demonstration of the value of an integrated service delivery system and who shall certify such approval to the Secretary.

[(2) If under the law governing any of the human services programs included within a project there are provisions establishing safeguards which limit or restrict the use or disclosure of information (concerning applicants for or recipients of benefits or services) which has been obtained or developed by the agency involved in the conduct of that program, and a waiver of such provisions is granted under paragraph (1) in order to make such information available for purposes of the project—

[(A) the State shall provide each applicant for and recipient of aid, assistance, benefits, or services under the proposed integrated service delivery system with a clear and readily comprehensible notice that such information may be disclosed to and used by project personnel, or exchanged with the other agencies having responsibility for human services programs included within the project;

[(B) the State shall take such steps as may be necessary to ensure that the information disclosed will be used only for purposes of, and by persons directly connected with, such project; and

[(C) the State's application with respect to the project under subsection (c) shall contain or be accompanied by satisfactory assurances that the preceding requirements of this paragraph will be fully complied with.

[(e) The Secretary shall from time to time pay to each State which has an approved pilot project under this section, in such manner and according to such schedule as may be agreed upon by the Secretary and such State, amounts equal in the aggregate to—

[(1) 90 percent of the costs incurred by such State and its political subdivisions in carrying out such project during the first 18 months after the date on which the project begins,

[(2) 80 percent of any such costs incurred during the 12-month period beginning with the nineteenth month after such date, and

[(3) 70 percent of any such costs incurred during the 12-month period beginning with the thirty-first month after such date.

[(f)(1) For purposes of this section, the term "human services program" includes the program of aid to families with dependent children under part A of title IV, the supplemental security income benefits program under title XVI, the Federal food stamp program, and any other Federal or federally assisted program (other than a program under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973) which provides aid, assistance, or benefits based wholly or partly on need or on income-related qualifications to specified classes or types of individuals or families or which is designed to help in crisis or emergency situations by meeting the basic human needs of individuals or families whose own resources are insufficient for that purpose.

[(2) In carrying out this section the Secretary shall regularly consult with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the head of any other Federal agency having jurisdiction over or responsibility for one or more human services programs, in order to ensure that the administrative efforts of the various agencies involved are coordinated with respect to all of the pilot projects being carried out under this section.

[(g) The Secretary shall require each State which is carrying out a pilot project under this section to submit periodic reports on the progress of such project, giving particular attention to the cost-effectiveness of the integrated service delivery system involved and the extent to which such system is improving the delivery of services. No pilot project under this section shall be conducted for a period of longer than 42 months. The first such report shall be submitted no later than 3 months after the date on which the project begins.

[(h) The Secretary shall from time to time submit to the Congress a report on the progress and current status of each of the approved pilot projects under this section. Each such report shall reflect the periodic reports theretofore submitted to the Secretary by the States involved under subsection (g), and shall contain such additional comments, findings, and recommendations with respect to the operation of the program under this section as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate.

[(i) The Comptroller General shall, at such time or times as he determines to be appropriate, review and evaluate any or all of the pilot projects undertaken pursuant to this section, and shall from time to time report to the Congress on the results of such reviews and evaluations together with his findings and recommendations with respect thereto.

[(j) There are authorized to be appropriated, for the four-fiscal-year period beginning with the fiscal year 1985, such sums, not to exceed $8,000,000 in the aggregate, as may be necessary to carry out this section.】

[(A) inform such individual of the provisions of section 1917(c) providing for a period of ineligibility for benefits under title XIX for individuals who make certain dispositions of resources for less than fair market value, and inform such individual that information obtained pursuant to subparagraph (B) will be made available to the State agency administering a State plan under title XIX (as provided in paragraph (2)); and

[(B) obtain from such individual information which may be used by the State agency in determining whether or not a period of ineligibility for such benefits would be required by reason of section 1917(c) if such individual (or such spouse, if any) enters a medical institution or nursing facility.

[(2) The Commissioner of Social Security shall make the information obtained under paragraph (1)(B) available, on request, to any State agency administering a State plan approved under title XIX.]

Disposal of Resources for Less Than Fair Market Value

(c)(1)(A)(i) If an individual who has not attained 18 years of age (or any person acting on such individual's behalf) disposes of resources of the individual for less than fair market value on or after the look-back date specified in clause (ii)(I), the individual is ineligible for benefits under this title for months during the period beginning on the date specified in clause (iii) and equal to the number of months specified in clause (iv).

(ii)(I) The look-back date specified in this subclause is a date that is 36 months before the date specified in subclause (II).

(II) The date specified in this subclause is the date on which the individual applies for benefits under this title or, if later, the date on which the disposal of the individual's resources for less than fair market value occurs.

(iii) The date specified in this clause is the first day of the first month that follows the month in which the individual's resources were disposed of for less than fair market value and that does not occur in any other period of ineligibility under this paragraph.

(iv) The number of months of ineligibility under this clause for an individual shall be equal to—

(I) the total, cumulative uncompensated value of all the individual's resources so disposed of on or after the look-back date specified in clause (ii)(I), divided by

(II) the amount of the maximum monthly benefit payable under section 1611(b) to an eligible individual for the month in which the date specified in clause (ii)(II) occurs.

(B) An individual shall not be ineligible for benefits under this title by reason of subparagraph (A) if the Commissioner determines that—

(i) the individual intended to dispose of the resources at fair market value;

(ii) the resources were transferred exclusively for a purpose other than to qualify for benefits under this title;

(iii) all resources transferred for less than fair market value have been returned to the individual; or

(iv) the denial of eligibility would work an undue hardship on the individual (as determined on the basis of criteria established by the Commissioner in regulations).

(C) For purposes of this paragraph, in the case of a resource held by an individual in common with another person or persons in a joint tenancy, tenancy in common, or similar arrangement, the resource (or the affected portion of such resource) shall be considered to be disposed of by such individual when any action is taken, either by such individual or by any other person, that reduces or eliminates such individual's ownership or control of such resource.

(D)(i) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), this subsection shall not apply to a transfer of a resource to a trust if the portion of the trust attributable to such resource is considered a resource available to the individual pursuant to subsection (e)(3) (or would be so considered, but for the application of subsection (e)(4)).

(ii) In the case of a trust established by an individual (within the meaning of subsection (e)(2)(A)), if from such portion of the trust (if any) that is considered a resource available to the individual pursuant to subsection (e)(3) (or would be so considered but for the application of subsection (e)(2)) or the residue of such portion upon the termination of the trust—

(I) there is made a payment other than to or for the benefit of the individual, or

(II) no payment could under any circumstance be made to the individual, then the payment described in subclause (I) or the foreclosure of payment described in subclause (II) shall be considered a disposal of resources by the individual subject to this subsection, as of the date of such payment or foreclosure, respectively.

(2)(A) At the time an individual (and the individual's eligible spouse, if any) applies for benefits under this title, and at the time the eligibility of an individual (and such spouse, if any) for such benefits is redetermined, the Commissioner of Social Security shall—

(i) inform such individual of the provisions of paragraph (1) providing for a period of ineligibility for benefits under this title for individuals who make certain dispositions of resources for less than fair market value, and inform such individual that information obtained pursuant to clause (ii) will be made available to the State agency administering a State plan approved under title XV or XIX (as provided in subparagraph (B)); and

(ii) obtain from such individual information which may be used in determining whether or not a period of ineligibility for such benefits would be required by reason of paragraph (1).

(B) The Commissioner of Social Security shall make the information obtained under subparagraph (A)(ii) available, on request, to any State agency administering a State plan approved under title XV or XIX.

(3) For purposes of this subsection—

(A) the term "trust" includes any legal instrument or device that is similar to a trust; and

(B) the term "benefits under this title" includes supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a), and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.

Trusts

(e)(1) In determining the resources of an individual who has not attained 18 years of age, the provisions of paragraph (3) shall apply to a trust established by such individual.

(2)(A) For purposes of this subsection, an individual shall be considered to have established a trust if any assets of the individual were transferred to the trust.

(B) In the case of an irrevocable trust to which the assets of an individual and the assets of any other person or persons were transferred, the provisions of this subsection shall apply to the portion of the trust attributable to the assets of the individual.

(C) This subsection shall apply without regard to—

- (i) the purposes for which the trust is established;*
- (ii) whether the trustees have or exercise any discretion under the trust;*
- (iii) any restrictions on when or whether distributions may be made from the trust; or*
- (iv) any restrictions on the use of distributions from the trust.*

(3)(A) In the case of a revocable trust, the corpus of the trust shall be considered a resource available to the individual.

(B) In the case of an irrevocable trust, if there are any circumstances under which payment from the trust could be made to or for the benefit of the individual, the portion of the corpus from which payment to or for the benefit of the individual could be made shall be considered a resource available to the individual.

(4) The Commissioner may waive the application of this subsection with respect to any individual if the Commissioner determines, on the basis of criteria prescribed in regulations, that such application would work an undue hardship on such individual.

(5) For purposes of this subsection—

(A) the term “trust” includes any legal instrument or device that is similar to a trust;

(B) the term “corpus” means all property and other interests held by the trust, including accumulated earnings and any other addition to such trust after its establishment (except that such term does not include any such earnings or addition in the month in which such earnings or addition is credited or otherwise transferred to the trust);

(C) the term “asset” includes any income or resource of the individual, including—

- (i) any income otherwise excluded by section 1612(b);*
- (ii) any resource otherwise excluded by this section; and*
- (iii) any other payment or property that the individual is entitled to but does not receive or have access to because of action by—*

(I) such individual;

(II) a person or entity (including a court) with legal authority to act in place of, or on behalf of, such individual; or

(III) a person or entity (including a court) acting at the direction of, or upon the request of, such individual; and

(D) the term "benefits under this title" includes supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a), and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.

MEANING OF TERMS

Aged, Blind, or Disabled Individual

SEC. 1614. (a)(1) * * *

* * * * *

(3)(A) [An individual] Except as provided in subparagraph (C), an individual shall be considered to be disabled for purposes of this title if he is unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than twelve months [(or, in the case of an individual under the age of 18, if he suffers from any medically determinable physical or mental impairment of comparable severity)].

* * * * *

(C)(i) An individual under the age of 18 shall be considered disabled for the purposes of this title if that individual has a medically determinable physical or mental impairment, which results in marked and severe functional limitations, and which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.

(ii) The Commissioner shall ensure that the combined effects of all physical or mental impairments of an individual are taken into account in determining whether an individual is disabled in accordance with clause (i).

(iii) The Commissioner shall ensure that the regulations prescribed under this subparagraph provide for the evaluation of children who cannot be tested because of their young age.

(iv) Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subparagraph, no individual under the age of 18 who engages in substantial gainful activity (determined in accordance with regulations prescribed pursuant to subparagraph (E)) may be considered to be disabled.

[(C)] (D) For purposes of this paragraph, a physical or mental impairment is an impairment that results from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which are demonstrable by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques.

[(D)] (E) The Commissioner of Social Security shall by regulations prescribe the criteria for determining when services performed or earnings derived from services demonstrate an individual's ability to engage in substantial gainful activity. In determining whether an individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity by reason of his earnings, where his disability is sufficiently severe to result in a functional limitation requiring assistance in order for him to work, there shall be excluded from such earnings an amount equal to the cost (to such individual) of any attendant care services, medical devices, equipment, prostheses, and similar items and services (not including routine drugs or routine medical services unless such drugs or services are necessary for the control of the disabling condition) which are necessary (as determined by the Commissioner of Social Security in regulations) for that purpose, whether or not such assistance is also needed to enable him to carry out his normal daily functions; except that the amounts to be excluded shall be subject to such reasonable limits as the Commissioner of Social Security may prescribe. Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (B), an individual whose services or earnings meet such criteria shall be found not to be disabled. The Commissioner of Social Security shall make determinations under this title with respect to substantial gainful activity, without regard to the legality of the activity.

[(E)] (F) Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraphs (A) through [(D)] (E), an individual shall also be considered to be disabled for purposes of this title if he is permanently and totally disabled as defined under a State plan approved under title XIV or XVI as in effect for October 1972 and received aid under such plan (on the basis of disability) for December 1973 (and for at least one month prior to July 1973), so long as he is continuously disabled as so defined.

[(F)] (G) In determining whether an individual's physical or mental impairment or impairments are of a sufficient medical severity that such impairment or impairments could be the basis of eligibility under this section, the Commissioner of Social Security shall consider the combined effect of all of the individual's impairments without regard to whether any such impairment, if considered separately, would be of such severity. If the Commissioner of Social Security does find a medically severe combination of impairments, the combined impact of the impairments shall be considered throughout the disability determination process.

[(G)] (H)(i) In making determinations with respect to disability under this title, the provisions of sections 221(h), 221(k), and 223(d)(5) shall apply in the same manner as they apply to determinations of disability under title II.

(ii)(I) Not less frequently than once every 3 years, the Commissioner shall review in accordance with paragraph (4) the continued eligibility for benefits under this title of each individual who has not attained 18 years of age and is eligible for such benefits by reason of an impairment (or combination of impairments) which is likely to improve (or, at the option of the Commissioner, which is unlikely to improve).

(II) A representative payee of a recipient whose case is reviewed under this clause shall present, at the time of review, evidence demonstrating that the recipient is, and has been, receiving treatment, to the extent considered medically necessary and available, of the condition which was the basis for providing benefits under this title.

(III) If the representative payee refuses to comply without good cause with the requirements of subclause (II), the Commissioner of Social Security shall, if the Commissioner determines it is in the best interest of the individual, promptly suspend payment of benefits to the representative payee, and provide for payment of benefits to an alternative representative payee of the individual or, if the interest of the individual under this title would be served thereby, to the individual.

(IV) Subclause (II) shall not apply to the representative payee of any individual with respect to whom the Commissioner determines such application would be inappropriate or unnecessary. In making such determination, the Commissioner shall take into consideration the nature of the individual's impairment (or combination of impairments). Section 1631(c) shall not apply to a finding by the Commissioner that the requirements of subclause (II) should not apply to an individual's representative payee.

(iii) If an individual is eligible for benefits under this title by reason of disability for the month preceding the month in which the individual attains the age of 18 years, the Commissioner shall redetermine such eligibility—

(I) during the 1-year period beginning on the individual's 18th birthday; and

(II) by applying the criteria used in determining the initial eligibility for applicants who are age 18 or older.

With respect to a redetermination under this clause, paragraph (4) shall not apply and such redetermination shall be considered a substitute for a review or redetermination otherwise required under any other provision of this subparagraph during that 1-year period.

(iv)(I) Not later than 12 months after the birth of an individual, the Commissioner shall review in accordance with paragraph (4) the continuing eligibility for benefits under this title by reason of disability of such individual whose low birth weight is a contributing factor material to the Commissioner's determination that the individual is disabled.

(II) A review under subclause (I) shall be considered a substitute for a review otherwise required under any other provision of this subparagraph during that 12-month period.

(III) A representative payee of a recipient whose case is reviewed under this clause shall present, at the time of review, evidence demonstrating that the recipient is, and has been, receiving treatment, to the extent considered medically necessary and available, of the condition which was the basis for providing benefits under this title.

(IV) If the representative payee refuses to comply without good cause with the requirements of subclause (III), the Commissioner of Social Security shall, if the Commissioner determines it is in the best interest of the individual, promptly suspend payment of benefits to the representative payee, and provide for payment of benefits to an alternative representative payee of the individual or, if the interest of the individual under this title would be served thereby, to the individual.

(V) Subclause (III) shall not apply to the representative payee of any individual with respect to whom the Commissioner determines such application would be inappropriate or unnecessary. In making such determination, the Commissioner shall take into consideration the nature of the individual's impairment (or combination of impairments). Section 1631(c) shall not apply to a finding by the Commissioner that the requirements of subclause (III) should not apply to an individual's representative payee.

[(H)] (I) In making any determination under this title with respect to the disability of an individual who has not attained the age of 18 years and to whom section 221(h) does not apply, the Commissioner of Social Security shall make reasonable efforts to ensure that a qualified pediatrician or other individual who specializes in a field of medicine appropriate to the disability of the individual (as determined by the Commissioner of Social Security) evaluates the case of such individual.

[(I)] (J) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), an individual shall not be considered to be disabled for purposes of this title if alcoholism or drug addiction would (but for this subparagraph) be a contributing factor material to the Commissioner's determination that the individual is disabled.

(4) A recipient of benefits based on disability under this title may be determined not to be entitled to such benefits on the basis of a finding that the physical or mental impairment on the basis of which such benefits are provided has ceased, does not exist, or is not disabling only if such finding is supported by—

(A) in the case of an individual who is age 18 or older—

[(A)] (i) substantial evidence which demonstrates that—

[(i)] (I) there has been any medical improvement in the individual's impairment or combination of impairments (other than medical improvement which is not related to the individual's ability to work), and

[(ii)] (II) the individual is now able to engage in substantial gainful activity; or

[(B)] (ii) substantial evidence (except in the case of an individual eligible to receive benefits under section 1619) which—

[(i)] (I) consists of new medical evidence and a new assessment of the individual's residual functional capacity, and demonstrates that—

[(I)] (aa) although the individual has not improved medically, he or she is nonetheless a beneficiary of advances in medical or vocational therapy or technology (related to the individual's ability to work), and

[(II)] (bb) the individual is now able to engage in substantial gainful activity, or

[(ii)] (II) demonstrates that—

[(I)] (aa) although the individual has not improved medically, he or she has undergone vocational therapy (related to the individual's ability to work), and

[(II)] (bb) the individual is now able to engage in substantial gainful activity; or

[(C)] (iii) substantial evidence which demonstrates that, as determined on the basis of new or improved diagnostic techniques or evaluations, the individual's impairment or combination of impairments is not as disabling as it was considered to be at the time of the most recent prior decision that he or she was under a disability or continued to be under a disability, and that therefore the individual is able to engage in substantial gainful activity; or

18— (B) in the case of an individual who is under the age of

(i) substantial evidence which demonstrates that there has been medical improvement in the individual's impairment or combination of impairments, and that such impairment or combination of impairments no longer results in marked and severe functional limitations; or

(ii) substantial evidence which demonstrates that, as determined on the basis of new or improved diagnostic techniques or evaluations, the individual's impairment or combination of impairments, is not as disabling as it was considered to be at the time of the most recent prior decision that the individual was under a disability or continued to be under a disability, and such impairment or combination of impairments does not result in marked and severe functional limitations; or

[(D)] (C) in the case of any individual, substantial evidence (which may be evidence on the record at the time any prior determination of the entitlement to benefits based on disability was made, or newly obtained evidence which relates to that determination) which demonstrates that a prior determination was in error.

Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to require a determination that an individual receiving benefits based on disability under this title is entitled to such benefits if the prior determination was fraudulently obtained or if the individual is engaged in substantial gainful activity, cannot be located, or fails, without good cause, to cooperate in a review of his or her entitlement or to follow prescribed treatment which would be expected (i) to restore his or her ability to engage in substantial gainful activity. Any determination under this paragraph shall be made on the basis of all the evidence available in the individual's case file, including new evidence concerning the individual's prior or current condition which is presented by the individual or secured by the Commissioner of Social Security. Any determination made under this paragraph shall be made on the basis of the weight of the evidence and on a neutral basis with regard to the individual's condition, without any initial inference as to the presence or absence of disability being drawn from the fact that the individual has previously been determined to be disabled, or (ii) in the case of an individual under the age of 18, to eliminate or improve the individual's impairment or combination of impairments so that it no longer results in marked and severe functional limitations.

Eligible Spouse

(b) For purposes of this title, the term "eligible spouse" means an aged, blind, or disabled individual who is the husband or wife of another aged, blind, or disabled individual, and who, in a month, is living with such aged, blind, or disabled individual on the first day of the month or, in any case in which either spouse files an application for benefits or requests restoration of eligibility under this title during the month, [at the time the application or request is filed] on the first day of the month following the date the application or request is filed. If two aged, blind, or disabled individuals are husband and wife as described in the preceding sentence, only one of them may be an “eligible individual” within the meaning of section 1611(a).

OPERATION OF STATE SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAMS

SEC. 1618. (a) In order for any State which makes supplementary payments of the type described in section 1616(a) (including payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(a) of Public Law 93-66), on or after June 30, 1977, to be eligible for payments pursuant to title XIX with respect to expenditures for any calendar quarter which begins—

[(1) after June 30, 1977, or, if later,

[(2) after the calendar quarter in which it first makes such supplementary payments, such State must have in effect an agreement with the Commissioner of Social Security whereby the State will—

[(3) continue to make such supplementary payments, and

[(4) maintain such supplementary payments at levels which are not lower than the levels of such payments in effect in December 1976, or, if no such payments were made in that month, the levels for the first subsequent month in which such payments were made.

[(b)(1) The Commissioner of Social Security shall not find that a State has failed to meet the requirements imposed by paragraph (4) of subsection (a) with respect to the levels of its supplementary payments for a particular month or months if the State’s expenditures for such payments in the twelve-month period (within which such month or months fall) beginning on the effective date of any increase in the level of supplemental security income benefits pursuant to section 1617 are not less than its expenditures for such payments in the preceding twelve-month period.

[(2) For purposes of determining under paragraph (1) whether a State’s expenditures for supplementary payments in the 12-month period beginning on the effective date of any increase in the level of supplemental security income benefits are not less than the State’s expenditures for such payments in the preceding 12-month period, the Commissioner of Social Security, in computing the State’s expenditures, shall disregard, pursuant to a 1-time election of the State, all expenditures by the State for retroactive supplementary payments that are required to be made in connection with the retroactive supplemental security income benefits referred to in section 5041 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

[(c) Any State which satisfies the requirements of this section solely by reason of subsection (b) for a particular month or months in any 12-month period (described in such subsection) ending on or after June 30, 1982, may elect, with respect to any month in any subsequent 12-month period (so described), to apply subsection (a)(4) as though the reference to December 1976 in such subsection were a reference to the month of December which occurred in the 12-month period immediately preceding such subsequent period.

[(d) The Commissioner of Social Security shall not find that a State has failed to meet the requirements imposed by paragraph

(4) of subsection (a) with respect to the levels of its supplementary payments for any portion of the period July 1, 1980, through June 30, 1981, if the State's expenditures for such payments in that twelve-month period were not less than its expenditures for such payments for the period July 1, 1976, through June 30, 1977 (or, if the State made no supplementary payments in the period July 1, 1976, through June 30, 1977, the expenditures for the first twelve-month period extending from July 1 through June 30 in which the State made such payments).

[(e)(1) For any particular month after March 1983, a State which is not treated as meeting the requirements imposed by paragraph (4) of subsection (a) by reason of subsection (b) shall be treated as meeting such requirements if and only if—

[(A) the combined level of its supplementary payments (to recipients of the type involved) and the amounts payable (to or on behalf of such recipients) under section 1611(b) of this Act and section 211(a)(1)(A) of Public Law 93-66, for that particular month,

[(B) the combined level of its supplementary payments (to recipients of the type involved) and the amounts payable (to or on behalf of such recipients) under section 1611(b) of this Act and section 211(a)(1)(A) of Public Law 93-66, for March 1983, increased by the amount of all cost-of-living adjustments under section 1617 (and any other benefit increases under this title) which have occurred after March 1983 and before that particular month.

[(2) In determining the amount of any increase in the combined level involved under paragraph (1)(B) of this subsection, any portion of such amount which would otherwise be attributable to the increase under section 1617(c) shall be deemed instead to be equal to the amount of the cost-of-living adjustment which would have occurred in July 1983 (without regard to the 3-percent limitation contained in section 215(i)(1)(B)) if section 111 of the Social Security Amendments of 1983 had not been enacted.

[(f) The Commissioner of Social Security shall not find that a State has failed to meet the requirements imposed by subsection (a) with respect to the levels of its supplementary payments for the period January 1, 1984, through December 31, 1985, if in the period January 1, 1986, through December 31, 1986, its supplementary payment levels (other than to recipients of benefits determined under section 1611(e)(1)(B)) are not less than those in effect in December 1976, increased by a percentage equal to the percentage by which payments under section 1611(b) of this Act and section 211(a)(1)(A) of Public Law 93-66 have been increased as a result of all adjustments under section 1617(a) and (c) which have occurred after December 1976 and before February 1986.

[(g) In order for any State which makes supplementary payments of the type described in section 1616(a) (including payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(a) of Public Law 93-66) to recipients of benefits determined under section 1611(e)(1)(B), on or after October 1, 1987, to be eligible for payments pursuant to title XIX with respect to any calendar quarter which begins—

- [(1) after October 1, 1987, or, if later
- [(2) after the calendar quarter in which it first makes such supplementary payments to recipients of benefits so determined,
- such State must have in effect an agreement with the Commissioner of Social Security whereby the State will—
- [(3) continue to make such supplementary payments to recipients of benefits so determined, and
- [(4) maintain such supplementary payments to recipients of benefits so determined at levels which assure (with respect to any particular month beginning with the month in which this subsection is first effective) that—
- [(A) the combined level of such supplementary payments and the amounts payable to or on behalf of such recipients under section 1611(e)(1)(B) for that particular month,
- is not less than—
- [(B) the combined level of such supplementary payments and the amounts payable to or on behalf of such recipients under section 1611(e)(1)(B) for October 1987 (or, if no such supplementary payments were made for that month, the combined level for the first subsequent month for which such payments were made), increased—
- [(i) in a case to which clause (i) of such section 1611(e)(1)(B) applies or (with respect to the individual or spouse who is in the hospital, home, or facility involved) to which clause (ii) of such section applies, by $5, and
- [(ii) in a case to which clause (iii) of such section 1611(e)(1)(B) applies, by $10.]

PAYMENTS AND PROCEDURES

Payment of Benefits

SEC. 1631. (a)(1) Benefits under this title shall be paid at such time or times and (subject to paragraph (10)) in such installments as will best effectuate the purposes of this title, as determined under regulations (and may in any case be paid less frequently than monthly where the amount of the monthly benefit would not exceed $10).

(2)(A) * * *

* * * * *

(F)(i)(I) Each representative payee of an eligible individual under the age of 18 who is eligible for the payment of benefits described in subclause (II) shall establish on behalf of such individual an account in a financial institution into which such benefits shall be paid, and shall thereafter maintain such account for use in accordance with clause (ii).

(II) Benefits described in this subclause are past-due monthly benefits under this title (which, for purposes of this subclause, in- clude State supplementary payments made by the Commissioner pursuant to an agreement under section 1616 or section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66) in an amount (after any withholding by the Commissioner for reimbursement to a State for interim assistance under subsection (g)) that exceeds the product of—

(aa) 6, and

(bb) the maximum monthly benefit payable under this title to an eligible individual.

(ii)(I) A representative payee shall use funds in the account established under clause (i) to pay for allowable expenses described in subclause (II).

(II) An allowable expense described in this subclause is an expense for—

(aa) education or job skills training;

(bb) personal needs assistance;

(cc) special equipment;

(dd) housing modification;

(ee) medical treatment;

(ff) therapy or rehabilitation; or

(gg) any other item or service that the Commissioner determines to be appropriate; provided that such expense benefits such individual and, in the case of an expense described in item (bb), (cc), (dd), (ff), or (gg), is related to the impairment (or combination of impairments) of such individual.

(III) The use of funds from an account established under clause (i) in any manner not authorized by this clause—

(aa) by a representative payee shall be considered a misapplication of benefits for all purposes of this paragraph, and any representative payee who knowingly misapplies benefits from such an account shall be liable to the Commissioner in an amount equal to the total amount of such benefits; and

(bb) by an eligible individual who is his or her own payee shall be considered a misapplication of benefits for all purposes of this paragraph and the total amount of such benefits so used shall be considered to be the uncompensated value of a disposed resource and shall be subject to the provisions of section 1613(c).

(IV) This clause shall continue to apply to funds in the account after the child has reached age 18, regardless of whether benefits are paid directly to the beneficiary or through a representative payee.

(iii) The representative payee may deposit into the account established pursuant to clause (i)—

(I) past-due benefits payable to the eligible individual in an amount less than that specified in clause (i)(II), and

(II) any other funds representing an underpayment under this title to such individual, provided that the amount of such underpayment is equal to or exceeds the maximum monthly benefit payable under this title to an eligible individual.

(iv) The Commissioner of Social Security shall establish a system for accountability monitoring whereby such representative payee shall report, at such time and in such manner as the Commissioner shall require, on activity respecting funds in the account established pursuant to clause (i).

[(F)] (G) The Commissioner of Social Security shall include as a part of the annual report required under section 704 information with respect to the implementation of the preceding provisions of this paragraph, including—

- (i) the number of cases in which the representative payee was changed;
- (ii) the number of cases discovered where there has been a misuse of funds;
- (iii) how any such cases were dealt with by the Commissioner of Social Security;
- (iv) the final disposition of such cases (including any criminal penalties imposed); and
- (v) such other information as the Commissioner of Social Security determines to be appropriate.

[(G)] (H) The Commissioner of Social Security shall make an initial report to each House of the Congress on the implementation of subparagraphs (B) and (C) within 270 days after the date of the enactment of this subparagraph. The Commissioner of Social Security shall include in the annual report required under section 704, information with respect to the implementation of subparagraphs (B) and (C), including the same factors as are required to be included in the Commissioner's report under section 205(j)(4)(B).

(3) The Commissioner of Social Security may by regulations establish ranges of incomes within which a single amount of benefits under this title shall apply.

(4) The Commissioner of Social Security—

[SEC. 9121. DEMONSTRATION OF FAMILY INDEPENDENCE PROGRAM.

[(a) IN GENERAL.—Upon application of the State of Washington and approval by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the State of Washington (in this section referred to as the “State”) may conduct a demonstration project in accordance with this section for the purpose of testing whether the operation of its Family Independence Program enacted in May 1987 (in this section referred to as the “Program”), as an alternative to the AFDC program under title IV of the Social Security Act, would more effectively break the cycle of poverty and provide families with opportunities for economic independence and strengthened family functioning.

[(b) NATURE OF PROJECT.—Under the demonstration project conducted under this section—

[(1) every individual eligible for aid under the State plan approved under section 402(a) of the Social Security Act shall be eligible to enroll in the Program, which shall operate simultaneously with the AFDC program so long as there are individuals who qualify for the latter;

[(2) cash assistance shall be furnished in a timely manner to all eligible individuals under the Program (and the State may not make expenditures for services under the Program until it has paid all necessary cash assistance), with no family receiving less in cash benefits than it would have received under the AFDC program;

[(3) individuals may be required to register, undergo assessment, and participate in work, education, or training under the Program, except that—

[(A) work or training may not be required in the case of—

[(i) a single parent of a child under six months of age, or more than one parent of such a child in a two-parent family,

[(ii) a single parent with a child of any age who has received assistance for less than six months,

[(iii) a single parent with a child under three years of age who has received assistance for less than three years,

[(iv) an individual under 16 years of age or over 64 years of age,

[(v) an individual who is incapacitated, temporarily ill, or needed at home to care for an impaired person, or

[(vi) an individual who has not yet been individually notified in writing of such requirement or of the expiration of his or her exempt status under this subparagraph;

[(B) participation in work or training shall in any case be voluntary during the first two years of the Program, and may thereafter be made mandatory only in counties where more than 50 percent of the enrollees can be placed in employment within three months after they are job ready;

[(C) in no case shall the work and training aspect of the Program be mandated in any county where the unemployment level is at least twice the State average; and

[(D) mandated work shall not include work in any position created by a reduction in the work force, a bona fide labor dispute, the decertification of a bargaining unit, or a new job classification which subverts the intention of the Program;

[(4) there shall be no change in existing State law which would eliminate guaranteed benefits or reduce the rights of applicants or enrollees; and

[(5) the Program shall include due process guarantees and procedures no less than those which are available to participants in the AFDC program under Federal law and regulation and under State law.

[(c) WAIVERS.—The Secretary shall (with respect to the project under this section) waive compliance with any requirements contained in title IV of the Social Security Act which (if applied) would prevent the State from carrying out the project or effectively achieving its purpose, or with the requirements of sections 1902(a)(1), 1902(e)(1), and 1916 of that Act (but only to the extent necessary to enable the State to carry out the Program as enacted by the State in April 1987).

[(d) FUNDING.—

[(1) The Secretary, under section 403(b) or 1903(d) of the Social Security Act, shall reimburse the State for its expenditures under the Program—

[(A) at a rate equal to the Federal matching rate applicable to the State under section 403(a)(1) (or 1118) of the Social Security Act, for cash assistance, medical assistance, and child care provided to enrollees;

[(B) at a rate equal to the applicable Federal matching rate under section 403(a)(3) of such Act, for administrative expenses; and

[(C) at the rate of 75 percent for an evaluation plan approved by the Secretary.

[(2) As a condition of approval of the project under this section, the State must provide assurances satisfactory to the Secretary that the total amount of Federal reimbursement over the period of the project will not exceed the anticipated Federal reimbursements (over that period) under the AFDC and Medicaid programs; but this paragraph shall not prevent the State from claiming reimbursement for additional persons who would qualify for assistance under the AFDC program, for costs attributable to increases in the State's payment standard, or for any other federally-matched benefits or services.

[(e) EVALUATION.—The State must satisfy the Secretary that the Program will be evaluated using a reasonable methodology.

[(f) DURATION OF PROJECT.—

[(1) The project under this section shall begin on the date on which the first individual is enrolled in the Program and (subject to paragraph (2)) shall end five years after that date.

[(2) The project may be terminated at any time, on six months written notice, by the State or (upon a finding that the State has materially failed to comply with this section) by the Secretary.

[SEC. 9122. CHILD SUPPORT DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM IN NEW YORK STATE.

[(a) IN GENERAL.—Upon application by the State of New York and approval by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the "Secretary"), the State of New York (in this section referred to as the "State") may conduct a demonstration program in accordance with this section for the purpose of testing a State program as an alternative to the program of Aid to Families with Dependent Children under title IV of the Social Security Act.

[(b) NATURE OF PROGRAM.—Under the demonstration program conducted under this section—

[(1) all custodial parents of dependent children who are eligible for supplements under the State plan approved under section 402(a) of the Social Security Act (and such other types or classes of such parents as the State may specify) may elect to receive benefits under the State's Child Support Supplement Program in lieu of supplements under such plan; and

[(2) the Federal Government will pay to the State with respect to families receiving benefits under the State's Child Support Supplement Program the same amounts as would have been payable with respect to such families under sections 403 and 1903 of the Social Security Act as if the families were receiving aid and medical assistance under the State plans in effect with respect to such sections.

[(c) WAIVERS.—The Secretary shall (with respect to the program under this section) waive compliance with any requirements contained in title IV of the Social Security Act which (if applied) would prevent the State from carrying out the program or effectively achieving its purpose.

[(d) CONDITIONS OF APPROVAL.—As a condition of approval of the program under this section, the State shall—

[(1) provide assurances satisfactory to the Secretary that the State—

[(A) will continue to make assistance available to all eligible children in the State who are in need of financial support, and

[(B) will continue to operate an effective child support enforcement program;

[(2) agree—

[(A) to have the program evaluated, and

[(B) to report interim findings to the Secretary at such times as the Secretary shall provide; and

[(3) satisfy the Secretary that the program will be evaluated using a reasonable methodology that can determine whether changes in work behavior and changes in earnings are attributable to participation in the program.

[(e) APPLICATION PROCESS.—In order to participate in the program under this section, the State must submit an application under this section not later than two years after the date of enactment of this Act. The Secretary shall approve or disapprove the application of the State not later than 90 days after the date of its submission. If the application is disapproved, the Secretary shall provide to the State a statement of the reasons for such disapproval, of the changes needed to obtain approval, and of the date by which the State may resubmit the application.

[(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The program under this section shall commence not later than the first day of the third calendar quarter beginning on or after the date on which the application of the State is approved in accordance with subsection (e).

[(g) DURATION OF PROGRAM.—

[(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), if the Secretary approves the application of the State, the demonstration program under this section shall be conducted for a period not to exceed five years.

[(2)(A) The Governor of the State may before the end of the period described in paragraph (1) terminate the demonstration program under this section if the Governor finds that the program is not successful in testing the State's Child Support Supplement Program as an alternative to the program under title IV of the Social Security Act. The Governor shall notify the Secretary of the decision to terminate the program not less than three months prior to the date of such termination.

[(B) The Secretary may terminate the program before the end of such period if the Secretary finds that the program is not in compliance with the terms of the application. The Secretary shall notify the Governor of the decision to terminate the program not less than three months prior to the date of such termination.】

【(2) increasingly children entering foster care have complex problems which require intensive services;

【(3) an increasing number of infants are born to mothers who did not receive prenatal care, are born addicted to alcohol and other drugs, and exposed to infection with the etiologic agent for the human immunodeficiency virus, are medically fragile, and technology dependent;

【(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this title to facilitate the elimination of barriers to adoption and to provide permanent and loving home environments for children who would benefit from adoption, particularly children with special needs, including disabled infants with life-threatening conditions, by—

【(1) promoting model adoption legislation and procedures in the States and territories of the United States in order to eliminate jurisdictional and legal obstacles to adoption; and

ABANDONED INFANTS ASSISTANCE ACT OF 1988

AN ACT To authorize the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make grants for demonstration projects for foster care and residential care of infants and young children abandoned in hospitals, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

["This Act may be cited as the "Abandoned Infants Assistance Act of 1988".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

["The Congress finds that—

[(1) throughout the Nation, the number of infants and young children who have been exposed to drugs taken by their mothers during pregnancy has increased dramatically;

[(2) the inability of parents who abuse drugs to provide adequate care for such infants and young children and a lack of suitable shelter homes for such infants and young children have led to the abandonment of such infants and young children in hospitals for extended periods;

[(3) an unacceptable number of these infants and young children will be medically cleared for discharge, yet remain in hospitals as boarder babies;

[(4) hospital-based child care for these infants and young children is extremely costly and deprives them of an adequate nurturing environment;

[(5) training is inadequate for foster care personnel working with medically fragile infants and young children and infants and young children exposed to drugs;

[(6) a particularly devastating development is the increase in the number of infants and young children who are infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (which is believed to cause acquired immune deficiency syndrome and which is commonly known as HIV) or who have been perinatally exposed to the virus or to a dangerous drug;

[(7) many such infants and young children have at least one parent who is an intravenous drug abuser;

[(8) such infants and young children are particularly difficult to place in foster homes, and are being abandoned in hospitals in increasing numbers by mothers dying of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or by parents incapable of providing adequate care;

[(9) there is a need for comprehensive services for such infants and young children, including foster family care services, case management services, family support services, respite and crisis intervention services, counseling services, and group residential home services;

[(10) there is a need to support the families of such infants and young children through the provision of services that will prevent the abandonment of the infants and children; and

[(11) there is a need for the development of funding strategies that coordinate and make the optimal use of all private resources, and Federal, State, and local resources, to establish and maintain such services.

[(4) Subject to the availability of amounts made available in appropriations Acts for the fiscal year involved, the duration of a contract or cooperative agreement under paragraph (1) shall be for a period of 3 years, except that the Secretary may terminate such financial assistance if the Secretary determines that the entity involved has substantially failed to comply with the agreements required as a condition of the provision of the assistance.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATE

Clause 2(1)(3)(B) of rule XI requires reports to include an estimate by the Congressional Budget Office [CBO]. The estimate provided by CBO of the bill as ordered reported by the Committee on the Budget (encompassing all the recommendations submitted to the Committee on the Budget) is as follows:

Committee on the Budget
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed federal, state and local, and private sector cost estimates for the Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996, as ordered reported by the House Committee on the Budget on June 18, 1996. Enactment of the bill would affect direct spending and receipts; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would apply.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them.

Sincerely,

FEDERAL COST ESTIMATE

June 26, 1996

1. BILL NUMBER: Not yet assigned.
2. BILL TITLE: Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996
3. BILL STATUS:

As ordered reported by the House Committee on the Budget on June 18, 1996.
4. BILL PURPOSE:

The bill would reform and restructure the welfare and Medicaid programs and provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 201(a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997.
5. ESTIMATED COST TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT:

The bill would reduce outlays by $123 billion and increase revenues by $2 billion over the 1997-2002 period. Because the bill as reported contains two different maintenance-of-effort requirements (MOE) for state child-care spending, two estimates are provided. Tables 1 and 2 display the savings when the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities MOE and Committee on Ways and Means MOE, respectively, are assumed to be binding. Table 3 presents the estimated savings by title, but because of conflicting provisions in Titles III and IV, the title totals cannot be summed together to arrive at a grand total for the bill as a whole.

b/ Food Stamps includes Nutrition Assistance for Puerto Rico under both current law and proposed law, and the Emergency Food Assistance Program under proposed law.

c/ Child Nutrition Program encompasses direct spending authorized by the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act.

d/ Under current law, Foster Care includes Foster Care, Adoption Assistance, Independent Living, and Family Preservation and Support. Under proposed law, Foster Care would include Foster Care, Adoption Assistance, Independent Living, the Child Protection Block Grant, and child welfare studies.

6. BASIS OF ESTIMATE

Title I--Committee on Agriculture

CBO estimates that changes to food stamps in title I of the bill would reduce federal outlays by $1.8 billion in 1997, $5.3 billion in 2002, and $23.3 billion over the 1997-2002 period. The following paragraphs describe the savings attributable to specific provisions, with the estimates of savings displayed in the attached Table I.

For the purposes of these estimates, CBO assumes a October 1, 1996, enactment date. Most provisions in Title I are effective October 1, 1996. CBO assumes the November 1996 allotment would be the first food stamp allotment affected by the changes.

Definition of household. Under current law, members of households who purchase food and prepare meals together must generally participate in the program as part of the same food stamp unit. In addition, certain people, such as spouses who live together, are required to participate in the same unit. The bill would change the definition of household used in the food stamp program in two ways. First, section 1013 would remove the exception in current law that allows persons age 21 and under who are themselves parents or married, and who live with a parent, to participate as a separate household. This change would lower food stamp benefits because income and resources of the household members who are not now in the food stamp unit would be counted. CBO estimates that the change would affect about 150,000 current food stamp households and would reduce food stamp outlays by $115 million in 1997 and $290 million in 2002.

Second, section 1014 would allow states to require any other people who live together to participate together, without regard to whether they purchase food and prepare meals together. Based on a telephone survey of state food stamp staff, CBO estimates that states with 20 percent of the caseload would eventually choose to change the definition of household, and that the changes would reduce spending on food stamps by $10 million in 1997 and $85 million in 2002.

Index maximum benefits to 100 percent of the thrifty food plan. Section 1015 of the bill would reduce the maximum food stamp benefit relative to current law. Under current law, maximum benefits are set each October at 103 percent of the cost of the thrifty food plan--a specific low-cost diet for a family of four. For fiscal year 1996, maximum benefits are $397 a month for a family of four. The bill would set maximum benefits at 100 percent of the thrifty food plan beginning with the October 1996 adjustment, but would not allow the nominal maximum benefit to decline from fiscal year 1996 to fiscal year 1997. The change would lower average food stamp benefits (compared with current law) by about $3 per person a month. CBO estimates that food stamp outlays would decrease by $855 million in 1997 and $1.2 billion in 2002 as a result of this change.

Earnings of older students. Under current law, earned income of household members who are elementary or secondary students and are 21 years old or younger is disregarded in the consideration of income for food stamps. Section 1018 would lower the cutoff to age 19. CBO estimates that this change would lower spending for food stamps by $1 million in each fiscal year.

Energy assistance. Under proposed law, energy assistance would be counted as income in the food stamp benefit determination; currently, no energy assistance is counted as income. Food stamp households could receive three major types of energy assistance—benefits from the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), utility reimbursements from public housing authorities, and, in some states, energy assistance through Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) or General Assistance.

The first two types of energy assistance—LIHEAP payments and Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) utility reimbursements—are subject to annual congressional appropriation. Because there is no certainty that appropriations will occur for future fiscal years, CBO does not estimate savings for counting these types of payments as income in food stamps unless an appropriation is already in place for a fiscal year.

A handful of states currently provide part of their AFDC or General Assistance (GA) benefit as a separate energy assistance payment, which is disregarded in the food stamp benefit calculation. CBO estimates that a $1 increase in countable income to a food stamp household results in about a 30-cent reduction in food stamp benefits. In the 9 states that currently make separate energy assistance payments, the payments range from about $15 a month to $120 a month. Based on these states, CBO estimates that counting state energy assistance payments as income would save $125 million in food stamp benefits in 1997 and $180 million in 2002.

Deductions from income. Section 1020 of the bill would freeze the standard deduction in most states at $134. Under current law, the standard deduction is to be adjusted annually to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index (CPI). CBO estimates that the level of the standard deduction would be $8 below current law in fiscal year 1997 and $30 below current law in 2002. The corresponding savings from the reduction in the standard deduction would be $315 million in 1997 rising to $1.5 billion in 2002. This amount corresponds to an average decrease in monthly benefits, relative to current law, of about $1 per person in 1997 and more than $4 per person by 2002.

The bill further changes income deductions to allow states to require the use of a standard utility allowance for determining utility costs counted toward the shelter deduction, rather than allowing recipients to use actual utility costs, if higher, as under current law. In states that do not require the use of a standard utility allowance, households would be allowed to change between the standard utility allowance and actual costs only at recertification, rather than one additional time during a certification period. CBO estimates that states representing half of total food stamp outlays would choose the mandatory standard utility allowance option, and that together with the change in removing the option to switch between the standard utility allowance and actual costs, the provisions would lower food stamp outlays by $35 million in 1997 and $85 million in 2002.

The bill also would require states to establish a standard homeless shelter deduction of $143 or less per month for homeless households that do not receive free shelter throughout the month. Currently, homeless households claim a standard shelter expense amount set by the state, or actual shelter expenses, if higher. CBO estimates that the provision would save up to $5 million each year.

Finally, the bill would retain the cap on the excess shelter expense deduction at $247 beginning on January 1, 1997. In the food stamp benefit determination households deduct their shelter costs to the extent that such costs exceed 50 percent of their net income after all other deductions. Under current law the excess shelter deduction is capped at $247 until December 1996 at which time the cap expires. This bill would extend the cap at $247, resulting in estimated savings of $360 million in 1997 and $915 million in 2002.

Vehicle allowance. Section 1021 would freeze the vehicle allowance at the 1996 level, $4,600, for fiscal years beginning with fiscal year 1997. Under current food stamp law, the fair market value of vehicles is counted as an asset in determining food stamp eligibility when the value is more than $4,600. This figure is scheduled to increase to an estimated $5,150 for fiscal year 1997 and to increase in each succeeding year for inflation. CBO estimates that lowering the vehicle allowance would reduce food stamp outlays by $60 million in 1997 and $260 million in 2002.

Vendor payments for transitional housing counted as income. Housing assistance payments made to a third party on behalf of a household that resides in transitional housing for the homeless are not now counted as income. Section 1022 would delete this exclusion. CBO estimates savings of $10 million in each fiscal year as a result of the change.

Disqualification, comparable treatment for disqualification, permanent disqualification for participating in two or more states, and failure to comply with other welfare and public assistance programs. Four sections of the bill would change the penalties associated with noncompliance with public assistance requirements. Section 1025 of the bill increases the penalties and revises sanctions for individuals and households that fail to comply with work rules. CBO estimates the longer periods of disqualification for people found to have not complied with work requirements would save $5 million a year.

Section 1028 of the bill would allow states to disqualify an individual from food stamps if the individual is disqualified from another public assistance program for failing to perform a required action under that program. For example, if an individual is disqualified from AFDC for failure to have a child immunized under a state's welfare reform initiative, the individual could also be disqualified from food stamps. CBO estimates that this provision would save $20 million a year from 1997 through 2001, and $25 million in 2002.

Section 1029 would permanently disqualify from food stamps any individual who is found to have participated fraudulently in the food stamp program simultaneously in two or more states. Under current law, an individual is disqualified from food stamps permanently only after the third violation and faces periods of ineligibility for the first and second violation. CBO estimates that the provision would save approximately $5 million each fiscal year after 1996.

Section 1038 would prohibit food stamp benefits from increasing if benefits are reduced under another public assistance program for the failure to perform an action required under that program. In addition, the state agency could reduce the food stamp allotment by up to 25 percent. CBO estimates the provision would save $25 million in each of fiscal years 1997 through 2002.

Employment and training. The 1996 farm bill (P.L. 104-127) provided funding for grants to states for food stamp employment and training at $75 million for each fiscal year through 2002. Section 1027 would fund the program at somewhat higher levels. CBO estimates costs of $56 million over the period from this change.

Cooperation with child support agencies. Two sections of the bill would address the relationship between the child support enforcement system and individuals who receive food stamps. Section 1031 would allow states to require custodial parents to cooperate with child support enforcement as a condition for food stamp eligibility. Requiring custodial parents to participate in child support enforcement affects only custodial parents who receive food stamps but not AFDC because AFDC recipients are already required to comply with child support enforcement. Based on a recent study published by the Food and Consumer Service, CBO estimates that the Food Stamp program would save money because some recipients would receive more income from child support, a few additional people would choose not to participate in the program, and some participants would have their benefits reduced for noncompliance. Much of the food stamp savings would be offset by costs in the child support enforcement system. In 2000, when the provision would be fully implemented, CBO estimates that states with 25 percent of the food stamp caseload would opt to implement the provision, outlays for food stamps would be $20 million lower, and federal outlays for child support enforcement would be $15 million higher.

Section 1032 would allow states to eliminate food stamp eligibility for noncustodial parents who are delinquent in payment of child support. CBO estimates that states with 50 percent of the caseload would choose to deny food stamp eligibility to individuals in arrears on child support enforcement payments. This change would eliminate 25,000 people from the program and save $30 million in 2002.

Work requirement. Section 1033 would limit receipt of food stamp benefits to a period of four months in any twelve-month period for able-bodied individuals who do not have dependent children and who are not working or participating in an appropriate training or work activity. Based on the Food Stamp Quality Control (QC) data, the Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP), and studies of caseload dynamics, CBO estimates that approximately 900,000 people would potentially be subject to disqualification in an average month. The bill allows for waivers from the requirement if the Secretary of Agriculture determines that an area has an unemployment rate greater than 10 percent or has insufficient jobs. CBO estimates that 2 percent of people who would otherwise be disqualified because of the provision would live in areas under a waiver. Furthermore, CBO assumes that states would dedicate their food stamp employment and training efforts toward people who would otherwise be disqualified and would serve over 100,000 individuals in an average month. Finally, an individual could reestablish eligibility for another four month period after a month of working or participating in an allowable employment or training program. After these exclusions, CBO estimates that the provision would remove about 700,000 individuals from the rolls in an average month once the provision is implemented fully, resulting in savings of $130 million in food stamp benefits in 1997 and $820 million in 2002.

Minimum benefit. Food stamp households with one or two persons who are eligible for less than $10 receive a minimum allotment of $10. This minimum allotment is currently adjusted each October to reflect the change in the cost of the thrifty food plan, with the result rounded to the nearest $5. Section 1035 would remove the inflation adjustment and keep the minimum benefit at $10. Under CBO's economic forecast, the minimum benefit would rise to $15 in 1998. CBO estimates that retaining a $10 minimum benefit would save $30 million in each of fiscal years 1998 to 2000 and $35 million in 2001 and 2002.

Benefits on recertification. Current law allows for food stamp households that fail to complete recertification requirements in the last month of a certification period to receive full benefits in the following month if they are certified eligible by the end of the first month of the subsequent certification period. Section 1036 would pro-rate benefits for the first month of the new certification period to the date the household is determined eligible. CBO estimates this change would save $25 million a year in 1997 through 2000, and $30 million in 2001 and 2002.

Income, eligibility, and immigration status verification systems. Section 1049 would grant states a greater degree of flexibility in the types of verification systems they use, resulting in $5 million a year in estimated savings.

Collection of overissuances. Section 1052 would amend the procedures for collecting claims and would save money in four ways. First, CBO estimates savings of $5 million a year from mandating states to use the Internal Revenue Service tax offset procedures. Second, allowing states to recoup benefits to collect overpayments resulting from state agency error would save another $5 million a year. Third, allowing for garnishing of federal pay in instances of food stamp overissuance would save $1 million a year once it is fully implemented but $5 million in fiscal years 1998 and 1999 because the provision would affect a backlog of overissuances.

Fourth, the bill would change claims retention rates to allow states to retain 25 percent of all claims collected, except for claims resulting from state agency error. Under this policy the federal government would receive a larger portion of claims collections and states would retain less. This change would result in additional estimated savings to the federal government of about $15 million in 1997 through 2001 and $20 million in 2002.

Termination of federal match for optional information activities. Section 1055 would end the federal match of administrative funds spent on informational activities. Based on information from the Food and Consumer Service, CBO estimates that $2 million a year would be spent on these activities.

Work supplementation or support program. Section 1057 would allow states to use the amount of food stamp benefits to subsidize employers in hiring and employing public assistance recipients for up to a year for any given recipient. CBO estimates costs to the federal government from this provision, because research has demonstrated that persons participating in grant diversion programs have longer spells of receiving public assistance. Based on the interest of states in work supplementation programs in the JOBS program, CBO assumes that about 20,000 additional people would participate in a work supplementation program in any given month once the provision is implemented fully. CBO estimates that food stamp outlays would be higher by $30 million in 2000, when the programs would be fully implemented.

Private sector employment initiatives. Section 1060 would allow states where half or more of the food stamp households in the summer of 1993 were also AFDC recipients to pay benefits in cash to households that also receive AFDC and have a member who is employed. Based on recent studies of cash-out demonstrations, CBO estimates that issuing food stamps as cash saves about a dollar a month relative to coupon issuance. Furthermore, based on QC data, CBO estimates that 10 states would be eligible to participate based on the proportion of their caseload that was also receiving AFDC in the summer of 1993, and that these states would have about 300,000 households eligible for cash benefits under the policy. CBO anticipates that states with half of the households eligible for cash benefits would choose to provide benefits in cash, and that total savings would be $2 million a year once the provision is phased in.

Simplified Food Stamp program. Section 1062 would give states the option of simplifying food stamp program rules within certain limits. The bill stipulates that the Secretary of Agriculture could approve a state plan for a simplified program only if the state documents that the plan would not increase federal costs. CBO cannot determine how many states would apply to use simplified rules or what the Secretary's criteria for approving such plans would be. Because there is no mechanism for states to reimburse the federal government if costs are higher than under current rules, and because there is a lag between the time such costs occur and corrective action is taken, CBO estimates that the provision would entail some costs. CBO estimates higher food stamp outlays of $10 million in fiscal year 1998 rising to $30 million in fiscal year 2002.

Optional state food assistance block grant. Section 1063 would allow a state to choose to participate in a block grant program for food assistance instead of the Food Stamp program if (1) it has implemented statewide an electronic benefit transfer (EBT) system, or (2) its most recent payment error rate is less than 6 percent, or (3) it agrees to pay a calculated amount representing the cost of food stamps in the state in excess of the 6 percent payment error rate. Under this program states would receive, for any fiscal year, the higher of the amount the state received in fiscal year 1994 for benefits and administration or the average of these amounts over fiscal years 1992, 1993, and 1994. If a state elected to participate in the block grant, it would be allowed to switch back to the Food Stamp program one time. CBO estimates that states with 2.5 percent of the food stamp caseload would take a block grant in fiscal year 1997, states with 5 percent of the food stamp caseload would take a block grant in 1998, and states with 7.5 percent of the food stamp caseload would opt for the block grant in 1999-2002. Because, on average, the block grant amount would be lower than what the states would have received under current law, CBO estimates that the provision would save $75 million in fiscal year 1997 and $705 million in 2002.

This estimate is highly sensitive to the number of states that would opt for the block grant and the amount of food stamp benefits in those states. If, in fiscal year 2000, 30 percent of the caseload were in states choosing a block grant, rather than the 7.5 percent CBO estimates, the savings in that fiscal year would be $2.3 billion rather than the $510 million that CBO now estimates.

Food stamp eligibility. Under current law, if a household has a member who is not eligible for food stamps on the basis of his or her citizenship status, the income of that person is pro-rated and only a portion of it is counted toward the food stamp benefit. Section 1066 would give states the option to count all of the ineligible person's income toward the food stamp unit. CBO assumes that one quarter of the states would elect this option and that food stamp spending would be lowered by $15 million in 1997 and $25 million in 2002.

Emergency Food Assistance program. The Emergency Food Assistance program is currently subject to annual appropriation. Section 1071 of the bill creates an entitlement to states for their portion of the program and funds it at $300 million a year.

Interactions among provisions. The estimates of individual provisions shown in the table for Title I do not reflect the effects of other provisions in the title. If the bill were enacted, total savings would be less than the sum of the estimates of individual provisions. For example, states that elected a block grant would receive a fixed amount each year and would not participate in the Food Stamp program as currently structured. Thus, estimated savings for every other provision in the bill would not be achieved in states that chose a block grant. Also, savings attributed to lower maximum benefits, a lower standard deduction, and the reinstatement of the cap on the excess shelter deduction—which are estimated based on food stamp participation under current law--would not be achieved for people who would lose their benefits because of the work requirements. CBO estimates that the interactions among overlapping provisions in the food stamp chapter would reduce savings relative to the sum of the independent estimates by $72 million in 1997 and $540 million in 2002.

Title II--Committee on Commerce

Title II of the bill contains the changes in the Medicaid program approved by the Committee on Commerce. The estimated budgetary effects assume that the reconciliation bill will be enacted by October 1, 1996; the estimate could change if the bill is enacted later. More detail on the budget estimates appears in Table II.

The Medicaid Restructuring Act would repeal Title XIX of the Social Security Act (Grants to States for Medical Assistance) and replace it with a new program that would provide funds to states to pay for medical assistance for low-income individuals. The bill would limit the amount of federal funds available to states as matching grants for their medical assistance programs while requiring that state plans guarantee coverage for certain individuals. It would also increase states' flexibility to administer their programs. The bill would authorize supplemental payments to states with changes in enrollment that exceed thresholds set in the bill as well as supplemental payments for illegal aliens and Native Americans. In addition, the bill includes changes to the formula that determines the federal matching share. Finally, this title, as well as Title IV, contains provisions limiting Medicaid benefits for legal aliens. Because of the limits in this title on federal Medicaid spending, however, the provisions regarding aliens would have no budgetary effects. The estimated federal savings in Medicaid from these changes total $71.7 billion over the 1997-2002 period; the bill would increase federal spending by an estimated $0.5 billion in 1997.

Funding limits and state allocation. The bill would limit federal Medicaid obligations in total and for each state, with the aim of achieving specified outlay targets (called pool amounts). The proposal would authorize a pool of funds to be distributed among states for the purpose of providing medical assistance to low-income individuals. The bill specifies the pool amounts for 1997 through 2002. After 2002, the pool amounts would be increased by the lesser of 4.82 percent or the annual percentage increase in the gross domestic product. The bill also establishes a procedure for computing the obligation limitations for each year based on the specified limits on outlays.

States would continue to pay for medical assistance for eligible individuals and would collect the federal share of those payments from the federal government. The federal government would pay each state at the federal matching rate up to a limit determined by an allocation formula in the bill. The allocation formula would distribute the pool of funds by inflating the specified 1996 Medicaid payments for each state, adjusting for case-mix, medical costs, and the number of individuals in poverty in each state, and calibrating each state's amount so that the sum of all the allocations did not exceed the total in the pool. After 1997, a state's needs-based allocation would be modified through the use of minimum and maximum growth rates for federal expenditures. These limits create ceilings and floors for payments to a particular state.

Even with the constraints imposed by the ceilings and floors, states would experience significantly different growth rates in federal contributions, both absolutely and relative to their projected federal contributions under current law. Two features of the resulting allocation among the states are worthy of note. First, because the size of a state's poverty population is a component of the needs formula, states with rapidly growing poverty populations would probably increase their share of federal Medicaid expenditures over time. Second, because states would be sharing a limited pool of federal Medicaid funds, increases in allocations for some states would result in reductions in allocations for others.

Guarantees and supplemental payments. Under the proposal, states would be required to make medical assistance available for certain guaranteed benefits to the following groups: children under age 6 and pregnant women with family incomes below the 133 percent of the poverty level; children ages 6 through 18 born after September 30, 1983, in families with incomes below 100 percent of the poverty level; certain low-income disabled and elderly individuals; children receiving foster care or adoption assistance under title IV of the Social Security Act; and certain other low-income families.

The bill would provide supplemental umbrella allotments for states with excess growth in certain population groups with guaranteed coverage. States with enrollment above a specified threshold would be eligible to receive a per beneficiary payment for all beneficiaries over the threshold. The threshold measures the increase in beneficiaries by population group over the previous year. The payment would equal 1995 per capita expenditures for each group, inflated by the Consumer Price Index. Total payments would be adjusted to reflect slower than anticipated growth in a particular population group. Excess beneficiaries in one year would be included in the base against which enrollment growth is measured to determine whether a state qualified for a supplemental payment in subsequent years. CBO estimates that the umbrella allotments will cost $26 billion over the seven-year period. Some states would also be eligible for supplemental payments for treatment of illegal aliens and/or Native Americans. The bill provides for $3.5 billion for illegal aliens and $500 million for Native Americans.

Increased flexibility and changes in state matching requirements. The Medicaid Restructuring Act would provide states with greater flexibility to administer their medical assistance programs. States would no longer be constrained to provide the same level of medical assistance statewide, nor would comparability of coverage among beneficiaries be required. In addition, unlike current Medicaid policy, they would be able to determine (without a federal waiver) the delivery mode of health care to beneficiaries including, for example, mandatory enrollment in risk-based managed care plans. States would also have greater flexibility in determining provider reimbursement levels, because the proposal would repeal the Boren Amendment. The proposal would maintain several aspects of the current Medicaid program including regulations to prevent spousal and family impoverishment and restrictions on the use of donations from providers and provider-specific taxes to generate state matching funds.

States might need to change their programs or increase state spending to adapt to the new federal spending limits; however, the guarantees in the proposal would place some constraints on the extent to which benefits and enrollment could be reduced. Some potential changes might include: forgoing extensions of coverage to new groups of beneficiaries; curtailing expansions of benefits; and reducing payments to providers. If those measures did not achieve enough savings, states might turn to increasing cost-sharing for beneficiaries and scaling back eligibility and services. In addition, some states might reduce spending for such activities as quality assurance, database development, and program oversight.

Under the current Medicaid program, every dollar that a state spends produces at least a dollar in federal support, providing a strong incentive for states to expand their programs. The proposal would reduce that incentive in two ways. Federal support would end once a state had reached its cap, eliminating, at the margin, the financial incentive for states to continue spending their own funds. In addition, the proposal would raise the minimum federal matching rate from its current level of 50 percent to 60 percent, an increase that would benefit almost half the states. (In 1995, 22 states had federal matching rates of less than 60 percent.) With higher federal matching rates, states would draw down federal funds more quickly, and would reach their allocation caps with lower state expenditures.

Transitional issues. Although the proposal would become effective in October 1996, the federal government and the states would remain liable for claims resulting from Medicaid obligations incurred prior to the enactment of the proposal. The formula for allocating Medicaid obligations in 1997 would reflect the estimated payment of claims under the old Title XIX. The proposal specifies the total estimated amount of Medicaid outlays in 1997, and the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) would allocate the total among the states. Providers and states would have until April 1, 1997, to submit claims incurred under Title XIX prior to enactment of the proposal, and the federal government would pay all valid claims submitted, whether they exceeded or fell short of the Secretary's estimate. Benefits under Title XIX would cease to be an individual entitlement upon the enactment of the proposal, and obligations under Title XIX after enactment would be included in the obligation limit under the new title for 1997.

To participate in the new Medicaid program, state plans would have to be submitted to, and approved by the Secretary of HHS. States would have the option to submit plans that had been approved under Title XIX if those plans met the new requirements. States choosing to develop new plans might also need to develop new systems for establishing eligibility, delivering medical services, reimbursing providers, and collecting program data. Such changes might require state legislative action, and could therefore take time to put in place.

Title III--Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities

Subtitle A--Work Requirements

Title III includes provisions that require states to provide work and training activities for an increasing percentage of recipients of Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) or face penalties of up to 5 percent of the state's share of the block grant. States would face two separate requirements, both becoming increasingly difficult to satisfy over time.

First, the bill requires that, in 1997, states have 25 percent of certain families receiving cash assistance in work activities. The participation rates rise by 5 percentage points a year through 2002. Participants would be required to work 20 hours a week through 1998, 25 hours in 1999, 30 hours in 2000 and 2001, and 35 hours in 2002 and after. Families with no adult recipient or with a recipient experiencing a sanction for non-participation (for up to 3 months) are not included in the participation calculation. Families in which the youngest child is less than one year old would be exempt at state option.

States would have to show on a monthly basis that individuals in 50 percent of all non-exempt families are participating in work activities in 2002. CBO estimates that this would require participation of 1.7 million families. By contrast, program data for 1994 indicate that, in an average month, approximately 450,000 individuals participated in the JOBS program. (The bill limits the number of individuals in education and training programs that could be counted as participants, so many of these individuals would not qualify as participants under the new program.) Most states would be unlikely to satisfy this requirement for several reasons. The costs of administering such a large scale work and training program would be high, and federal funding would be frozen at historic levels. Because the pay-off for such programs has been shown to be low in terms of reductions in the welfare caseload, states may be reluctant to commit their own funds to employment programs. Moreover, although states may succeed in reducing their caseloads through other measures, which would in turn free up federal funds for training, the requirements would still be difficult to meet because the remaining caseload would likely consist of individuals who would be the most difficult and expensive to train.

Second, while tracking the work requirement for all families, states simultaneously would track a separate guideline for the smaller number of non-exempt families with two parents participating in the AFDC-Unemployed Parent (AFDC-UP) program. By 2002, the bill would require that 90 percent of such families participate in work-related activities. In 1994, states attempted to implement a requirement that 40 percent of AFDC-UP families participate, and roughly 40 states failed the requirement.

In sum, each work requirement would represent a significant challenge to states. Given the costs and administrative complexities involved, CBO assumes that most states would simply accept penalties rather than implement the requirements. Although the bill would authorize penalties of up to 5 percent of the block grant amount, CBO assumes--consistent with current practice--that the Secretary of Health and Human Services would impose small penalties (less than one-half of one percent of the block grant) on non-complying states.

Subtitle C--Child Care

The recommendations of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities and the Committee on Ways and Means would both create a new mandatory block grant to states for the provision of child care to low-income individuals. The Opportunities Committee's child care provisions are contained in Subtitle C of Title III. This subtitle would repeal the current AFDC Work-Related and Transitional Child Care programs, which are open-ended entitlements that provide child care to welfare recipients, as well as the At-Risk Child Care program, a mandatory block grant to states that assists individuals who are at risk of joining the welfare rolls if they do not receive assistance in paying for child care. Repealing these programs would reduce outlays by $1.3 billion in fiscal year 1997 and $9.3 billion from 1997 through 2002.

This subtitle would replace these programs with a mandatory child care block grant to states. Individual states would be entitled to what they received for AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care in 1994, 1995, or the average of 1992-94, whichever is greatest. States that maintain the higher of their 1994 or 1995 spending on these programs would be able to draw down an additional amount at the Medicaid match rate. Further, the subtitle contains a provision that would allow funds to be redistributed to states that have higher child care needs.

The budget authority for this block grant, as stated in the bill, would be $1.967 billion in fiscal year 1997 and would total $13.9 billion over the 1997-2002 period. CBO estimates that states would not draw down all of this money, and that outlays for the 1997-2002 period would be $12.8 billion.

CBO assumes that the block grant would not be completely drawn down for several reasons. The block grant levels are over $4 billion, or nearly 50 percent, higher than what CBO estimates would be spent on the child care programs it is replacing. The six-year total funding would be higher than the sum of what would be needed if states were to meet the work requirements of the welfare provisions of the bill (and in any case, CBO assumes that not all states would meet the work requirements) and what would be spent on the Transitional and At-Risk Child Care programs under current law. Further, discussions with state officials and national experts in the field, as well as an examination of how much states would be able to increase spending on working poor families, pointed to CBO's conclusion that states would not be able to use all of the child care money.

The net impact of repealing current law child care programs and the creation of a new block grant under this subtitle would be to increase federal outlays by $0.3 billion in 1997 and $3.5 billion over the 1997-2002 period.

Subtitle D—Child Nutrition Programs

CBO estimates that provisions proposed by the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities that affect child nutrition programs would lower federal outlays by $147 million in fiscal year 1997, $700 million in fiscal year 2002, and $3.0 billion over the 1997-2002 period.

Special Assistance. The bill would allow all schools that participate in the School Lunch and Breakfast programs under a provision which allows them to offer all meals free in exchange for collecting applications less frequently to participate for five years at a time without a redetermination rather than three years at a time. Currently only schools that were participating at the time of the 1994 reauthorization of the programs can participate under these terms. CBO assumes that this change would make participation under such terms slightly more attractive to schools and would cost $1 million a year in each of fiscal years 1999 through 2002.

Summer food service program for children. Section 3406 would reduce reimbursement rates for the summer food service program to $1.82 for lunches, $1.13 for breakfasts, and $0.46 for supplements. These rates would be adjusted for inflation on January 1, 1997 and become effective in the summer of 1997. Under current law, CBO projects the summer 1997 rates would be $2.22 for lunches, $1.24 for breakfasts, and $0.58 for supplements. In addition, rates would be rounded to the lower cent, rather than the nearest quarter cent, in the calculation of the annual adjustment for inflation. CBO estimates these provisions would save $34 million in 1997 and $59 million in 2002.

Child and Adult Care Food Program. Section 3408 would restructure the family day care home component of the Child and Adult Care Food program and would save $90 million in 1997 and $590 million in 2002. Currently, meals served in family day care homes all receive the same reimbursement rates: $1.5375 for lunches, $0.8450 for breakfasts, and $0.4575 for supplements, during the July 1995 to June 1996 period. The bill would create two tiers of reimbursement rates. The first tier would apply to homes that are located in an area in which at least 50 percent of the children are from households whose incomes are below 130 percent of poverty, or are operated by a provider whose household income is less than 130 percent of poverty. Rates for tier I homes would be the same as current law rates, except the rates would be rounded down each year to the lower cent, rather than to the nearest quarter cent. All other homes would receive a lower, tier II rate--$0.90 for lunch, $0.25 for breakfast, and $0.10 for supplements. These rates would be adjusted annually (beginning July 1, 1997) and rounded down to the lower cent. Homes in tier II would be able to claim the tier I rates for any children who are from families with incomes below 130 percent of poverty. CBO estimates that 35 percent of meals would be reimbursed at the higher, tier I rates, and that somewhat fewer meals would be served in the program because of the reduction in rates for most meals. In addition, the bill would provide $5 million in 1997 for grants to states for assistance to sponsoring organizations and homes in implementing the new provisions.

The bill would also limit to three the number of meals that can be reimbursed in a given day in eligible child care centers. CBO estimates savings of $10 million in 1997 and $20 million in 2002 from this change. With these changes taken together, CBO estimates savings of $95 million in 1997 and $610 million in 2002 from changes in the Child Care Food Program.

School breakfast program authorization. Section 3423 of the bill would eliminate funding for school breakfast startup grants under the Child Nutrition Act starting in fiscal year 1997. Startup grants are currently funded at $5 million a year through fiscal year 1997, $6 million in fiscal year 1998, and $7 million in fiscal year 1999. Funds are to be used for assisting schools and other institutions in initiating and expanding school breakfast programs and summer food service programs. In addition, CBO estimates that repealing the money for startup grants would result in fewer meals served over the period. The savings from fewer meals would be $3 million in 1997 and $22 million in 2002.

Nutrition education and training. Section 3430 would shift funding for nutrition education and training to be a discretionary appropriation rather than mandatory spending. CBO estimates $10 million each year in direct spending savings, starting in fiscal year 1997.

Title IV--Committee on Ways and Means

The legislative changes in Title IV of the bill would result in estimated budget savings of $435 million in 1997 and $26.8 billion over the 1997-2002 period. Detailed estimates by subtitle are displayed in Tables IV-A through IV-H.

Subtitle A--Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant

Subtitle A of Title IV of the reconciliation bill would alter the method by which the federal government shares in the cost of providing cash and training assistance to low-income families with children. It would combine current entitlement programs--Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Emergency Assistance, and the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training program (JOBS)--into a single block grant with a fixed funding level.

Effect of the block grant on cash and training assistance. The new Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant (TANF) would replace federal participation for AFDC benefit payments, AFDC administrative costs, AFDC emergency assistance benefits, and the JOBS program. The bill would fix the base level of the block grant at $16.4 billion annually through 2001. CBO assumes the block grant would continue at the same level in 2002, although the level is not specified in the bill. Each state would be entitled to a portion of the grant based on its recent spending in the AFDC and JOBS programs. States could operate under the current law AFDC and JOBS programs until July 1, 1997, but would be subject to the financing limitations of the block grant as of October 1, 1996.

A state could qualify to receive more than the basic block grant amount in four ways. First, a state that meets specified criteria related to its poverty level and population growth would receive a supplemental grant in 1997 equal to 2.5 percent of federal 1994 payments to the state for AFDC, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS. In each successive year that the state meets the criteria, the supplemental grant would increase. However, the total amount of additional funding for these supplemental grants would be capped at $800 million. Supplemental grants would be available from 1997 through 2000. A state that did not meet the qualifying criteria in 1997 would not be eligible to qualify in any later year. CBO estimates that eighteen states would receive supplemental grants of nearly $85 million in 1997 growing to about $300 million by 2000.

Second, a state's block grant could increase by up to 10 percent of the block grant amount if the state experiences a decline in its illegitimacy ratio. The illegitimacy ratio is defined as the number of out-of-wedlock births divided by the total number of births. A state would not be eligible for such a grant in a year that its abortion rate is higher than its 1995 rate. CBO estimates that only a few states would qualify and that extra funds would amount to $25 million in each fiscal year 1998-2002.

Third, a state that meets criteria set by the Secretary for high performing states could receive a bonus of up to 5 percent of its block grant each year. High Performance bonuses are capped at $200 million each year for 1999-2003.

Fourth, the bill would establish a fund (called the Contingency Fund for State Welfare Programs) of $2.0 billion for use in fiscal years 1997-2001 by states with high and increasing unemployment rates or growth in food stamp caseloads.¹ A state

1. A state that experiences an unemployment rate for the most recent quarter greater than or equal to 6.5 percent and 10 percent or more higher than the unemployment rate for either of the corresponding quarters in the two previous years would be eligible to draw from the contingency fund. Also, a state that experiences an increase in participation in the Food Stamp program of could receive an annual maximum of 20 percent of its block grant amount if it was an eligible state in each month of the year. States would be required to match federal payments at the current-law federal medical assistance percentage. CBO estimates that states would draw down about $100 million from the contingency fund in 1997 and would use about $1.5 billion from the fund over the 1997-2001 period.

The bill would authorize the Secretary of HHS to make loans to states to use for welfare programs. States could borrow up to 10 percent of their family assistance grant and would have to repay borrowed amounts, with interest, within three years. Any state could borrow from the loan fund in any year regardless of particular economic circumstances. CBO estimates the creation of the loan authority would not generate additional outlays. Although up to $1.7 billion would be made available to states for loans, CBO assumes that every state borrowing funds would repay its loans with interest. Therefore, the program would involve no long-run loss to the federal government, and under the credit reform provisions of the Congressional Budget Act, it would have no cost.

Subtitle A also establishes mandatory work requirements in TANF that are much stricter than those in the current AFDC program. These requirements are similar to those described earlier under Title III, except the Ways and Means Committee version has lower required participation rates and hours of required participation. Despite the less strict provisions of Title IV, CBO still concludes that most states would fail to meet these requirements. States would also face an additional requirement under the Ways and Means Committee provision. States would have to ensure that all parents who have received cash assistance for more than two years would engage in work activities. CBO estimates that approximately 70 percent of all parents on the cash assistance rolls in 2002 would have received such assistance for two years or more since the bill's effective date. The experience of the JOBS program to date suggests that such a requirement is well outside the states' abilities to implement.

The bill would provide additional federal funds for a study by the Census Bureau ($10 million a year), research, evaluations, and national studies ($15 million per year), and grants for Indian tribes that received JOBS funds in 1995 ($7.6 million a year over the 1997-2000 period). Also, the bill would allow states that are operating demonstration projects under waivers to discontinue those projects. The states would not be required to pay the federal government for any accrued federal costs of those waivers. CBO estimates this would cost the federal government $50 at least 10 percent over the 1994 or 1995 participation (adjusted for the impact of this bill had it been in effect in those years) would be eligible. A state would be eligible in any month it meets these criteria and in the following month.

million in 1997. In addition, CBO has estimated that penalties of $50 million for failure to meet the bill's work participation requirements would be applied in each fiscal year 1999-2002. (This estimate is identical to the savings from the same provisions in Title III.) Finally, the bill would raise the amounts of money available to territories for assistance programs and provide greater flexibility in how the money is spent. The new $115 million cap on payments to the territories represents an increase of about $10 million over current-law amounts.

CBO estimates federal savings in Subtitle A by comparing current law projections of AFDC and JOBS with the block grant levels. In 1997, CBO projects that under current law the federal government would spend $15.9 billion on AFDC benefits, AFDC administration, AFDC emergency assistance and the JOBS program, or $0.7 billion less than the federal government would spend under Subtitle A (not including the repeal of child care). By 2002, projected spending under current law ($18.3 billion) would exceed projected spending under Subtitle A (not including the repeal of child care) by $1.0 billion.

Criteria for state participation in the block grant. To participate in the block grant program, states would present an assistance plan to the Department of Health and Human Services and would ensure that block grant funds would be spent only on needy families with minor children. States would be required to continue to spend some of their own resources in order to receive their full block grant allotment. The federal grant would be reduced one dollar for every dollar that state spending fell below 75 percent of historical state spending levels. In addition, states would have to satisfy other conditions. Notably, states would be prohibited from providing federal dollars to most families who have received cash assistance for more than 5 years since the effective date of the block grant program (July 1, 1997, or earlier at state option). At their option, states could choose a shorter time limit and could grant hardship exemptions for up to 20 percent of all families. Although no family could encounter a 5-year time limit until October 1, 2001, the limit's effect on welfare participation could be noticed sooner if recipients shortened their stays on welfare or delayed childbearing in order to preserve access to the system in future years. CBO estimates that the full effect of such a limit would not be realized until 2004 or later. Eventually, under current demographic assumptions, this provision could reduce cash assistance rolls by 30 percent to 40 percent. The actual effect of the time limit on families is uncertain, however, because the bill would permit states and localities to provide cash assistance to such groups using their own resources. The inclusion of the time limit in the legislation does not affect the CBO estimate of federal costs because it would not directly change the amount of block grant funds disbursed to the states.

Subtitle B: Supplemental Security Income

The bulk of the savings in Subtitle B would stem from imposing tighter eligibility criteria for children seeking benefits in the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. Subtitle B would also make a variety of other changes. It would reduce the amount of the benefit in the first month for new SSI applicants, permit the recovery of SSI overpayments from Social Security checks, require the disbursement of large retroactive payments in installments rather than in a single lump, and offer payments to prison officials who help to identify ineligible SSI and Social Security recipients in their institutions. Net savings, which reflect additional food stamp spending, are estimated to equal $2.1 billion in 2002 and $8.7 billion over the 1997-2002 period (see Table IV-B). Of this six-year total, $138 million of the saving occurs in the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance programs, which receive special consideration under budget scorekeeping rules.

Disabled children. The SSI program, run by the Social Security Administration (SSA), pays benefits to certain low-income aged and disabled people. The bill would revamp the SSI program for disabled children. Under current law, low-income children can qualify for the SSI program and its federal cash benefits of up to $470 a month in two ways. Their condition may match one of the medical listings (a catalogue of specific impairments, with accompanying clinical findings), or they may be evaluated under an individualized functional assessment (IFA) that determines whether an unlisted impairment seriously limits a child from performing activities normal for his or her age. Both methods are spelled out in regulation. Until the Supreme Court's decision in the Zebley case in 1990, the medical listings were the sole path to eligibility for children. Adults, in contrast, could receive an assessment of their functional and vocational capacities even if they did not meet the listings. The court ruled that sole reliance on the listings did not comport with the law's requirement to gauge whether children's disorders were of "comparable severity" to impairments that would disable adults.

The bill would eliminate childhood IFAs and their statutory underpinning, the "comparable severity" rule, as a basis for receipt of benefits. Many children on the rolls as a result of an IFA (roughly a quarter of children now on SSI) would be terminated, and future awards based on an IFA would be barred. Thus, the program would be restricted to those who met or equaled the listings. The bill would also remove the reference to maladaptive behavior—behavior that is destructive to oneself, others, property, or animals—from the personal/behavioral domain of the medical regulations, thereby barring its consideration as a basis for award.

Even as it repeals the "comparable severity" language, the bill would create a new statutory definition of childhood disability. It states that a child would be considered disabled if he or she has "a medically determinable physical or mental impairment which results in marked and severe functional limitations [and can be expected to last 12 months or lead to death]." That language is intended to preserve SSI eligibility for some of the most severely impaired children who now qualify by way of an IFA because they do not happen to match one of the medical listings.

CBO estimated the savings from these changes by judging how many present and future child recipients would likely qualify under the new criteria. CBO relied extensively on SSA program data and on analyses conducted by the General Accounting Office and the Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services. Approximately 1.0 million children now collect SSI benefits, and CBO projects that the number would reach 1.4 million in 2002 if policies were unchanged. CBO assumed that most children who qualify through an IFA would be rendered ineligible under the proposed criteria--specifically, those who fail to rate a "marked" or "extreme" impairment in at least two areas of functioning. CBO also assumes that the provisions on maladaptive behavior would bar a small percentage of children from eligibility for benefits. Overall, CBO judges that approximately 22 percent of children who would collect benefits under current law would be rendered ineligible.

CBO estimates the savings in cash benefits relative to current law by multiplying the number of children assumed to lose benefits by the average benefit. That average benefit was about $430 a month in December 1995 and--because it is indexed to inflation--would grow to an estimated $528 in 2002. New awards would be affected immediately. Children already on the rolls would be reviewed under the new criteria within a year of enactment. Total savings in cash benefits would equal $0.1 billion in 1997 and $2.0 billion in 2002.

The proposed cutbacks in children's SSI benefits would affect spending in other programs. Food stamp outlays would automatically increase to replace a portion of the cash income lost by the children's families. The extra food stamp costs exceed $0.2 billion a year after 1998. Effects on two other programs, however, are omitted from CBO's estimate. Under current law, about half of the disabled children losing SSI benefits would be likely to end up on the AFDC program; but because that program would be abolished in Subtitle A and replaced by a fixed block grant to the states, no extra spending would result. (The extra AFDC costs would otherwise total about $60 million a year for the federal government.) Under current law, eligibility for SSI benefits generally confers eligibility for Medicaid as well. However, the bill would also replace Medicaid with a block grant. Therefore, no Medicaid effects are included in CBO's estimate. (If Medicaid were not revised, CBO would estimate savings in Medicaid of roughly $50 million a year from the provisions affecting disabled children. That amount is relatively small, because most of the children dropped from SSI would still qualify for Medicaid based on their participation in AFDC or their poverty status).

The bill would make several other changes to the SSI program for disabled children. One would set the benefit at $30 a month for children who are hospitalized and whose bill is partly or fully covered by private insurance. A similar provision already applies to SSI recipients who are hospitalized and whose care is covered by Medicaid. CBO assumes the proposal would trim benefits for about 10,000 children in a typical month, with savings of $55 to $70 million a year after 1997. The bill would also make a number of changes in the responsibility of representative payees (people who administer benefits for children or other recipients who are incapable of managing funds) and in the SSI program's treatment of trust funds and asset divestitures. CBO does not estimate significant budgetary effects from any of those changes. The bill also mandates several studies of disability issues.

SSA would face very heavy one-time costs for reviewing its current caseload of disabled children under the new, tighter criteria proposed in the bill. CBO estimates that SSA would have to collect detailed medical and functional information for 300,000 to 400,000 disabled children on the rolls at enactment, at a total cost of about $300 million. In addition, under restrictions proposed in Subtitle D, SSA would have to review the continued eligibility of about 1.4 million recipients who are recorded as aliens or whose citizenship is unknown. Most of the cost would be incurred in 1997 and early 1998. For that reason, the bill proposes a special appropriation of $300 million to cover SSA's one-time costs. CBO judges that, without such funding, SSA would be unable to comply with the timetable established by the bill, and benefit savings would be less.

Pro-rated benefits in month of application. More than 800,000 people are newly awarded SSI benefits every year. Under current law, they eventually receive a pro-rated benefit for their month of application. A person who applied on the 15th of the month, for example, could receive two weeks of benefits for that month. (The typical applicant does not get that money immediately, because it may take several months for SSA to process his or her application.) The bill proposes instead to compute benefits beginning on the first day of the month following the date of application. CBO estimated the savings by multiplying the annual volume of awards by an assumed loss of two weeks' benefits for the average person affected. The provision would affect only applications filed after enactment, and savings would equal $150 million a year or more when it is fully effective.

Installment payments of retroactive benefits. Another provision of the bill would change the method for disbursing large amounts of retroactive benefits. Under current law, retroactive benefits—which occasionally amount to thousands of dollars, if the period they cover is a long one—are paid all at once. Under the bill, any retroactive payment that exceeded 12 times the maximum monthly benefit—about $5,600, in 1996 dollars—would be paid in installments at 6-month intervals, with each installment equaling up to 12 times the maximum benefit. Exemptions would be granted to recipients suffering from terminal illnesses or other special hardships. The vast majority of recipients would still get their retroactive benefits in a single check, but a minority (chiefly those whose awards were decided after long appeals) would get them in 2 or 3 installments. The proposal would save money principally in the first year. Based on the relatively small number of people who get very large retroactive payments, CBO estimated that about $200 million of payments would shift from 1997 into 1998. Savings after that would be much smaller.

Recovery of SSI overpayments from Social Security checks. SSI recipients are sometimes found to have been overpaid—generally because their income or living arrangements, or a family member's income, changed without the SSA's immediately becoming aware of it. In those cases, SSA can deduct the overpayment from subsequent SSI checks, or can try to make other repayment arrangements. But SSA cannot deduct the SSI overpayment from a Social Security check. Almost 40 percent of SSI recipients collect Social Security in addition to SSI, and still others have stopped collecting SSI but get Social Security.

This provision would permit SSA to deduct the SSI overpayments from Social Security checks. It does not spell out specific procedures. SSA, which prepared estimates of this proposal as part of President Clinton's 1997 budget, assumed that it would follow procedures already in place for subtracting such debts from subsequent SSI checks. In such cases, to prevent hardship, the reduction cannot exceed 10 percent of the recipient's monthly income; SSA also assumed that the reduction would not exceed $25 a month. The Commissioner of Social Security has authority to waive the recovery of overpayments in some circumstances. Under those assumptions, savings could equal about $45 million in 1997 (as a pool of already-outstanding overpayments is recovered) and gradually settle down to about $25 million a year.

Enforcement of restrictions on prisoners' benefits. Current law sets strict limits on payment of SSI benefits to incarcerated people, and somewhat milder limits on such payments in the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance (OASDI) program. SSI recipients who are in prison for a full month—regardless of whether they are convicted—are to have their benefits suspended. OASDI recipients who have been convicted of an offense carrying a maximum sentence of 1 year or more are to have their benefits suspended. Those who are convicted of lesser crimes, and those who are in jail while awaiting trial, may still collect benefits. Currently, those provisions are enforced chiefly by an exchange of computerized data between the Social Security Administration and the federal Bureau of Prisons, state prisons, and some county jails. According to SSA's Office of the Inspector General, agreements now cover roughly 73 percent of inmates--all federal and state prisoners but only about 15 percent of county prisoners. Those agreements are voluntary and involve no payments to the institutions.

This bill proposes to apply SSI-like restrictions to prisoners receiving OASDI. It also proposes to provide correctional institutions payments equal to as much as $400 if they report information to SSA that leads to identification of an ineligible inmate within 30 days of incarceration, and $200 if they report within 30 to 90 days.

Information on prisoners who collect benefits is poor. Inmates may know or suspect that their benefits are illegal and thus hide them, and may misreport such crucial identifying information as Social Security numbers. For its estimate, CBO assumes that between 4 and 5 percent of inmates are collecting OASDI or SSI when they enter prison. That figure appears in a Justice Department survey of prisoners in 1991 and in a recent report by SSA's Office of Inspector General. CBO assumes that the recipient population consists roughly half-and-half of OASDI and SSI recipients. At any one time, about 70 percent of prisoners are in state or federal prisons and the rest in county jails, where spells of incarceration are much shorter and turnover rates are very high.

CBO assumes that the proposal would have three principal budgetary effects. First, by imposing SSI-like restrictions on Social Security payments, the bill would save money in the OASDI program. Because that change would ban benefits to inmates awaiting trial or convicted for short sentences, CBO assumes that it would chiefly affect inmates of county jails. Second, the payments to prison officials would spark greater participation in matching agreements. CBO assumed that state prison officials--who now often let matching agreements lapse for several months at renewal--would renew them more promptly, that a majority of counties would sign up, and that data would be submitted with a shorter lag. From a budgetary standpoint, those changes would lead to savings in benefit payments and offsetting costs for the payments to penal institutions. Third, the proposal would add to the workload of SSA. Even if data are submitted electronically, SSA must follow up manually when it appears that an inmate may be receiving benefits. In many cases, SSA may find that the Social Security number is inaccurate or the inmate has already left the jail, leading to little or no saving in benefits from that particular investigation.

CBO assumed that the provision would yield little benefit savings in fiscal year 1997 because of the necessary lag in drafting regulations and setting up procedures. Thereafter, benefit savings would take another year or two to be fully realized as word spread among state and local correctional officials and as they became more attuned to the specific information (such as accurate Social Security numbers) they would need to provide. CBO assumes that SSA would start making payments (averaging $300) fairly soon to jurisdictions that already have matching agreements, and later to new jurisdictions that sign up. Over the 1997-2002 period, benefit savings are expected by CBO to equal $270 million and payments to jurisdictions to cost $80 million, for a net savings of $190 million; the OASDI components alone are $185 million, $47 million, and $138 million, respectively. SSA's extra administrative costs—which, in contrast to those two items, would require Congressional appropriation—are estimated at $129 million.

State maintenance of effort requirements. The bill would repeal the requirement (Section 1618 of the Social Security Act) that states which supplement the incomes of SSI recipients keep up that effort. All but a few states now pay such supplements. They go to almost 3 million recipients, and total nearly $4 billion per year.

The principal effect of repealing the state maintenance-of-effort requirement would be on state budgets, with relatively small and indirect effects on the federal budget. If states chose to lower their supplements, for example, the federal government would automatically pay greater food stamp benefits. CBO's best judgment is that those effects on the federal budget would be relatively small, but are too speculative to estimate reliably.

California poses a particularly knotty issue. It pays relatively generous supplements—accounting for nearly half of the $4 billion paid nationwide—and has special permission to offer no food stamps to its SSI recipients. California's supplements are decreed, by law, to include a "cashout" of the relatively small food stamp benefits that SSI recipients could otherwise get. If section 1618 were repealed, the legal basis of that cashout option would become tenuous, and lawsuits would almost surely result. It is not clear if and when California might be required to start giving food stamps to its SSI recipients, and—if it did—what the implications for federal food stamp costs would be. Certainly, many of the 1.0 million or so SSI recipients in California would begin to collect food stamps, but some who live in mixed households that already contain a food stamp recipient might find that the inclusion of their income actually diminishes the household's food stamp benefit. State officials in California have expressed interest in the repeal of the maintenance-of-effort requirement, but also the hope that the state would retain its cashout status in order to avoid the state's 50-percent share of any administrative costs resulting from a possible jump in food stamp caseloads. For the near term, the dollar implications from a federal standpoint appear to be small because California currently contemplates only a modest cutback in its supplements. In the longer term, CBO has great difficulty attaching a dollar figure to the food stamp cashout question, because that requires CBO to speculate about future actions by federal courts, California's governor, and the California legislature.

Administrative costs. Several provisions of the bill would affect the administrative costs of the SSI program. Some of the extra costs would be temporary and others permanent.

As already noted, the bill includes a special appropriation of $300 million to help meet the one-time costs of reviewing disabled children and aliens under new, sterner criteria. That effort would be substantially complete by early 1998, although a trickle of appeals would continue after that. Even after those initial reviews, the bill would require that children be rescreened regularly to see whether their medical condition has improved. CBO estimates that cost at about $100 million a year beginning in 1998. The Contract with America Advancement Act (Public Law 104-121), enacted in March 1996, established a procedure under which the caps on discretionary spending may be adjusted upward in the future to finance Continuing Disability Reviews (CDRs) on recipients of SSI and Social Security disability benefits. The annual cost of about $100 million a year for periodic reviews of disabled children could be accommodated within that cap adjustment, if the Congress chooses.

CBO judges that the studies and commissions called for in the bill would cost approximately $10 million in the 1997-1998 period. And, as mentioned before, CBO estimates the extra administrative costs for SSA of following up reports on prisoners at about $129 million over the 1997-2002 period.

Subtitle C: Child Support Enforcement

Subtitle C would change many aspects of the operation and financing of the federal and state child support enforcement system. CBO estimates that relative to current law the subtitle would cost $26 million in fiscal year 1997 and $138 million in 2002. The key provisions of Subtitle C would mandate the use of new enforcement techniques with a potential to increase collections, eliminate a current $50 payment to welfare recipients for whom child support is collected, allow former public assistance recipients to keep a greater share of their child support collections, and authorize new spending on automated systems.

New enforcement techniques. Based on reports on the performance of various enforcement strategies at the state level, CBO estimates that child support collections received for families on cash assistance in 2002 would increase under the bill by roughly 18 percent over current projections (from $3.6 billion to $4.2 billion). Most of the improvement would result from the creation of a new-hire registry (designed to speed the receipt of earnings information on noncustodial parents) and provisions that would expedite the process by which states seize the assets of noncustodial parents who are delinquent in their child support payments. Some states have already applied the proposed enforcement techniques, thereby reducing the potential of improving collections further. CBO projects that the additional collections would result in savings of roughly $230 million in 2002 to the federal government through shared child support collections, as well as reduced spending in food stamps.

Elimination of the $50 passthrough. Additional federal savings would be generated by eliminating the current $50 passthrough. Under current law, amounts up to the first $50 in monthly child support collected are paid to the family receiving cash assistance without affecting the level of the welfare benefit. Thus, families for whom noncustodial parents contribute child support get as much as $50 more a month than do otherwise identical families for whom such contributions are not made. Under current law, eight states pay families on public assistance on whose behalf the state receives child support payments a supplemental payment ("gap payment") based on the amount of the support collected and a standard of need. The proposal would give these states the option of continuing to provide these additional benefits to families. CBO assumes four of the eight states would exercise the option. Eliminating the $50 child support passthrough beginning in 1997 while excluding gap payments from the distribution rules would save the federal government between $100 million and $165 million annually.

Lost AFDC collections due to reduced cases funded by the block grant. Similar to current law, the bill would require that states share with the federal government child support collected on behalf of families who receive cash assistance through the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant. CBO assumes that by 2002, 20 percent of states would significantly reduce the number of families served under the block grant. CBO estimates that this reduction would result in a lower federal share of child support collections of $224 million by 2002. States that reduce the number of families served under the block grant may still provide benefits to those families out of the state's own resources.

Distribution of additional child support to former AFDC recipients. The provision would require states to share more child support collections with former recipients of public assistance, reducing federal and state recoupment of prior benefit payments. When someone ceases to receive public assistance, states continue to collect and enforce the family's child support order. All amounts of child support collected on time are sent directly to the family. If a state collects past-due child support, however, it may either send the amount to the family or use the collection to reimburse itself and the federal government for past AFDC payments. The proposal would require states to send a larger share of arrearage collections to families, which would reduce recoupment by federal and state governments. The new distribution rules would phase in starting in 1998 and states would have the option of applying the new distribution rules earlier. CBO estimates that this provision would cost the federal government $51 million in 2000 and $150 million in 2002.

Hold states harmless for lower child support collections. A hold-harmless provision guarantees each state that its share of child support collections will not fall below the amount it retained in 1995. CBO assumes that 20 percent of states would make caseload reductions significant enough to trigger the hold-harmless provision at a federal cost of $29 million in 2002.

Additional provisions with budgetary implications. The bill would fund further improvements in states' automated systems at an estimated annual cost of about $100 million. The bill would also provide about $50 million annually to provide technical assistance to states and to operate a computer system designed to locate non-custodial parents.

Subtitle D: Noncitizens

Subtitle D would limit the eligibility of legal aliens for public assistance programs. It would explicitly make most immigrants ineligible for SSI and food stamps. Savings would also materialize in other programs that are not mentioned by name.

Supplemental Security Income. In general, legal aliens are now eligible for SSI and other benefits administered by the federal government. Few aliens, other than refugees, collect SSI during their first few years in the U.S., because administrators must deem a portion of a sponsor's income to the alien during that period when determining the alien's eligibility. The bill would eliminate SSI benefits altogether for most legal aliens. Exceptions would be made for groups that together make up about one-quarter of aliens on the SSI rolls: refugees who have been in the country for less than 5 years, aliens who have a solid work history in the United States (as evidenced by 40 or more quarters of employment covered by Social Security), and veterans or active-duty members of the U.S. military. All other legal aliens now on SSI would be reviewed within a year and removed from the rolls.

CBO bases its estimate of savings on administrative records for the SSI program. Those data suggested that there were about 785,000 non-citizen beneficiaries in December 1995, or 13 percent of all recipients of federal SSI payments in that month, and that their numbers might be expected to climb in the absence of a change in policy. Those records, though, are of uncertain quality. They rarely reflect changes in citizenship status (such as naturalization) that may have occurred since the recipient first began collecting benefits. It has not been important for government agencies to keep citizenship status up-to-date so long as they have verified that the recipient is legally eligible. That problem is thought to be common to all programs but particularly acute for SSI, where some beneficiaries identified as aliens have been on the program for many years. Recognizing this problem, CBO assumes that 15 percent of SSI beneficiaries recorded as aliens are in fact naturalized citizens.

CBO estimates the number of noncitizen recipients who would be removed from the SSI rolls by projecting the future caseload in the absence of policy change and subtracting the groups (chiefly certain refugees and Social Security recipients) exempted under the bill. CBO then assumes that some of the remainder will be spurred to become naturalized. The rest, estimated by CBO at approximately one-half million legal aliens, would be cut from the SSI rolls. Multiplying by the average benefits paid to such aliens—assumed to equal nearly $400 a month in 1997, with subsequent cost-of-living adjustments—yields annual federal budgetary savings of between $2 billion and $3 billion a year.

These estimates, and other CBO estimates concerning legal aliens, are rife with uncertainties. First, administrative data in all programs are of uncertain quality. Citizenship status is not recorded at all for about 8 percent of SSI recipients, and—as previously noted—some persons coded as aliens are certainly naturalized citizens by now. Second, it is hard to judge how many noncitizens would react to the legislation by becoming citizens. At least 80 percent of legal aliens now on the SSI rolls are eligible to become citizens; the fact that they have not been naturalized may be attributable, in part, to the lack of a strong financial incentive. After all, legal immigrants are not now barred from most jobs, from eligibility for benefits, or from most other privileges except voting. Because the naturalization process takes time and effort, CBO assumes that only about one-third of those whose benefits would otherwise be eliminated will become citizens by the year 2000.

Food stamps. The bill proposes the same curbs on food stamp payments to legal aliens as on SSI. Therefore, aliens could not receive food stamps unless they fell in one of the exempted groups—chiefly refugees who have been here for less than 5 years or aliens with substantial work (defined as 40 quarters) in the United States.

CBO assumes that, under current policies, the number of legal aliens receiving food stamps would climb gradually from about 1.8 million now to 2.0 million in 2002. Around 800,000 would fall in one of the exempt categories. The rest would lose benefits unless they became naturalized. Again, CBO assumed that some of the aliens targeted for the cutoff would be spurred to become citizens. Savings of about $0.6 billion a year after 1997 would result.

Earned Income Tax Credit. The bill would deny eligibility for the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) to workers who are not authorized to be employed in the U.S. In practice, that provision would require valid Social Security numbers to be filed for the primary and secondary taxpayers on returns that claim the EITC. A similar provision was contained in President Clinton's 1997 budget proposal and in last fall's reconciliation bill. The Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT) estimates that the provision would reduce the deficit by approximately $0.3 billion a year.

Other programs. Other programs are not mentioned by name in Subtitle D but would be affected by general language governing aliens' eligibility for federal benefit programs.

Although the bill would specifically exempt the child nutrition program from any restrictions on payments to legal aliens, it would subject it to a general ban on benefits to illegal aliens. Currently, schoolchildren who are illegal aliens can participate in the school lunch program. The bill would require that they be denied subsidized lunches. Because the bill provides a period of 18 months for the adoption of regulations and another 24 months for states to comply, CBO estimates no savings in the child nutrition program until 1999, with full implementation in fiscal year 2001. By then, annual savings would be about $0.1 billion. Although the bill is silent on this point, CBO assumes that illegal alien schoolchildren would still count for the purposes of the small cash and commodity subsidy that is paid on behalf of every schoolchild who buys a full-price meal and for which parents need not apply separately. Otherwise, the task of verifying citizenship status for every child could drive some school districts out of the lunch program entirely.

Both the family support program and the Medicaid program would come under general language in the bill, which explicitly gives states the option to decide whether to cover legal aliens under the two programs. That option would be subject to certain exemptions (such as protections for refugees here less than 5 years) and restrictions (such as an outright ban on coverage for future nonrefugee entrants during their first 5 years in the United States). However, both the AFDC and Medicaid programs would be turned into virtually unrestricted grants elsewhere in the bill, and their funding would not depend significantly on the coverage of aliens or any other specific group. The provisions in Subtitle D restricting benefits to aliens would therefore produce no additional savings in these programs.

Subtitle F--Child Protection

Subtitle F of Title IV would repeal the mandatory Family Preservation and Support program, a preventive program designed to intervene in families by teaching improved parenting skills before a child must be removed to a foster care setting. This title would replace this program with a more general child protection block grant to the states, including a mandatory portion that would be funded at the same levels as the current Family Preservation and Support block grant. Since the current foster care and adoption assistance programs would be continued under this subtitle, CBO assumes that states would use this general child protection block grant for family preservation and support services, and therefore would have similar outlay patterns as the current program. Therefore, savings from the repeal of the Family Preservation and Support program and costs of the new child protection block grant would exactly offset each other and hence would have no net budgetary effects.

Subtitle F of Title IV would also fund new mandatory child protection studies. This title would provide $16 million for activities related to a national random sample study of child welfare for fiscal years 1997 through 2002, for a total of $96 million over six years. It would also provide $10 million for both fiscal year 1997 and 1998 for an assessment of state courts' handling of proceedings relating to foster care and adoption.

Finally, Subtitle F of Title IV would extend the enhanced match for the purchase of computer equipment for foster care data collection systems. Under current law, the federal match for these types of purchases is 75 percent through the end of fiscal year 1996, and will decrease to 50 percent beginning in fiscal year 1997. Subtitle F would continue the 75 percent match for one more year through the end of fiscal year 1997. CBO estimates that this change would increase budget authority by $80 million in fiscal year 1997 and outlays by $66 million in 1997 and $14 million in 1998. This estimate was developed in consultation with analysts at the Department of Health and Human Services and is based on states' estimates of their expenditures under current law and expectations of increased spending if the higher match rate were extended.

Subtitle G--Child Care

Subtitle G contains the provisions on child care recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means. This subtitle is identical to Subtitle C of Title III discussed above, with two exceptions. First, the repeal of current child care programs is in Subtitle A of Title IV rather than in this subtitle. Second, Subtitle G of Title IV has lower maintenance-of-effort requirements for states to draw down additional child care money (states would have to maintain 1994 levels) than the Opportunities Committee's subtitle (states would have to maintain the higher of 1994 or 1995 levels). Under Subtitle G, many states would receive the difference between funding from the federal government in fiscal year 1994 and funding in fiscal year 1995 on an unmatched basis and thereby have more funds to draw down a greater share of the block grant. CBO estimates that outlays would total $13.1 billion, about $0.3 billion higher than spending under the block grant in the Subtitle C of Title III.

Subtitle H--Miscellaneous

This subtitle of the bill includes reductions in the Social Services Block Grant and the Earned Income Tax Credit to achieve total budget savings (including the revenue effect) of $262 million in 1997 and $5.1 billion during the 1997-2002 period.

Social Services Block Grant. Under Title XX of the Social Security Act, funds in the form of a block grant are made available to states for them to provide a variety of social services to low-income families and individuals. Among the services covered are home-based services (such as homemaker, home health, and home maintenance), day care for children and adults, special services for the disabled, social support, prevention and intervention services, family planning, as well as many other services. The Social Services Block Grant has a permanent authorization of $2.8 billion. Subtitle H would reduce this amount by 10 percent resulting in outlay savings of $250 million in 1997 and $1.65 billion over six years.

Earned Income Tax Credit. The Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is a refundable tax credit directed toward relatively low-income workers. The refundable portion of the credit has estimated outlays of $18.4 billion in 1996. Under current law, income tax filers with two or more children are eligible for an EITC of 40 percent of earnings in 1996 with a maximum credit of $3,556. The credit is phased out based on the maximum of earnings or adjusted gross income over the range $11,610 to $28,495. The maximum credit for a return with one child is $2,152, and it is phased out at incomes between $11,610 and $25,078. Finally, a maximum credit of $323 is available for filers without children, which is phased out over the $5,280-$9,500 range. Subtitle H contains three changes to the EITC.

Section 4904 would require that the EITC be denied in cases where the tax filer had disqualified income. Under current law, tax filers with more than $2,350 in taxable investment income are disqualified from the use of the EITC. The section of the bill would lower the limit to $2,250 and would expand the definition of investment income to include the positive capital gains and passive income. This change would reduce outlays by $3 million in 1997 and $781 million over the 1997-2002 period. The related revenue increases are $1 million and $125 million, respectively.

Section 4905 would modify the definition of adjusted gross income (AGI) for the calculation of the EITC. Income from tax-exempt interest, Social Security benefits not in AGI, nontaxable distributions from pensions, annuities, and Individual Retirement Accounts, and certain child support payments would be included in modified AGI. Certain losses--such as from rent and royalties, capital losses, and other business or investment losses--would not be allowed in modified AGI for the calculations of the EITC. The refundable component (outlays) for the EITC would be reduced by $2 million in 1997 and $607 million over six years. Revenues would be higher by a negligible amount in 1997 and by $114 million over the 1997-2002 period.

Section 4906 would modify the EITC by changing the way in which the credit is phased out. The JCT estimates that this section would reduce the deficit by $6 million in 1997 and $1.8 billion over six years. In contrast to the other provisions affecting the EITC, the increased revenues account for the bulk of the impact on the deficit, amounting to about five-sixths of the total.

Because of interactions between the various EITC provisions, the total estimated effects of the changes to the EITC differs from the sum of the individual estimates over six years.

7. PAY-AS-YOU-GO CONSIDERATIONS:

Section 252 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 sets up pay-as-you-go procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or receipts through 1998. CBO estimates that enactment of the Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996 would affect direct spending and receipts. Therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would apply to the bill. The pay-as-you-go scorecard excludes costs or savings in the OASDI program.

10. PREVIOUS CBO ESTIMATE:

In many respects, the Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996 is the successor to H.R. 4, the welfare reform bill that was passed by the Congress last December and vetoed by the President. Many provisions of this bill are identical to those in H.R. 4. For those provisions that have not changed materially, CBO now depicts no savings at all in 1996 and generally estimates smaller savings in 1997 because of the delay in enactment. H.R. 4 principally addressed cash welfare programs and nutrition programs and did not focus on Medicaid, although some of its specific provisions (for example, those governing aliens) would have affected Medicaid spending. This new bill proposes a wholesale revamping of Medicaid. Other specific provisions of H.R. 4 have been dropped (for example, a "two-tier" benefit structure that would lower benefits by 25 percent for most disabled children who still met the tighter eligibility criteria), and some new provisions have been added (for example, provisions affecting the Earned Income Tax Credit).

The Medicaid portion of the Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996 is similar to the Medicaid title of H.R. 2491, the Balanced Budget Act of 1995, as passed by the Congress and vetoed by the President. The major structural difference between H.R. 3507 and that bill is the inclusion of supplemental umbrella payments for states with excess growth in certain population groups with guaranteed coverage. In contrast to the total of the state pool amounts, spending on the umbrella payments is not limited. Major differences in the savings estimates of H.R. 3507 and H.R. 2491 stem from a later enactment date, a lower Medicaid baseline, and slightly higher aggregate pool amounts.

On June 17, 1996, CBO sent a letter to the Chairmen and Ranking Minority Members of the House Committee on Budget, Committee on Agriculture, Committee on Commerce, Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, and the Committee on Ways and Means summarizing the estimates described here. The earlier estimate inadvertently excluded $300 million in 1997 from the baseline spending on Medicaid--outlays resulting from Public Law 104-134, the Omnibus Consolidated Rescission and Appropriations Act of 1996. Because the bill sets limits on Medicaid spending, this change in the baseline results in an additional $300 million in savings for 1997. This estimate also includes a revision to the estimated savings from the vehicle allowance provisions in Title I.

Note: CBO's estimates for FY 2002 assume that the level of the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant will remain the same as in FY 2001.

a) Title II of the bill limits the amount of funds provided to states under Medicaid.

b) The bill appropriates funds for FY 1996 for the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant; Grants to Indian Tribes that received JOBS funds; Study by the Census Bureau; and Research, Evaluations, and National Studies. Because we assume an enactment date in FY 1997, we show no costs for these appropriations. If, however, the bill passes sooner than the effective date that CBO has assumed, additional costs in FY 1996 would be scored.

NOTE: The bill would also repeal section 1618 of the Social Security Act, which establishes maintenance-of-effort requirements for state supplementation programs for SSI beneficiaries; CBO judges that provision's principal effect would be on state budgets, with only small and indirect implications for the federal budget. That judgment assumes that California cuts its supplements no more than was contemplated in the Governor's November 1995 budget submission, and that California would thereby be permitted to continue treating a portion of its supplements as a "cashout" of the small food stamp benefits that SSI recipients could otherwise receive. Both of those assumptions are subject to revision if CBO obtains more information about California's intentions or about the legal status of the cashout option, which would be ambiguous if the bill were enacted.

b/ Assumes enactment of other food stamp changes contained in the bill.

c/ Proposed changes in Title II to the Medicaid programs result in these provisions having no effect on federal Medicaid spending.

d/ This appropriation would cover the heavy one-time costs of reviewing about 300,000 to 400,000 disabled child beneficiaries and about 1.4 million SSI recipients who are identified as aliens, or whose citizenship is unknown. Without this funding, CBO would assume that SSA would attempt to comply with the law but could not meet the deadlines set in the bill, and savings in benefits would be smaller. In addition to the one-time costs of about $300 million, the bill would require that most disabled children who qualify even under the tighter eligibility criteria be reviewed every 3 years to see if their medical condition has improved. That cost, which CBO estimates at about $100 million a year beginning in 1998, could be met by raising the caps on discretionary spending as permitted in P.L. 104-121. The cap adjustment in that law, however, was designed to cover periodic reviews and not the heavy volume of one-time reviews that would be mandated in 1997 by this legislation.

3. BILL STATUS:

As ordered reported by the House Committee on the Budget on June 18, 1996.
4. BILL PURPOSE:

The bill would restructure or modify the federal welfare programs and Medicaid by reducing federal spending and granting states greater authority in operating many of these programs.
5. INTERGOVERNMENTAL MANDATES CONTAINED IN BILL:

The bill contains a number of new mandates as defined under the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, Public Law 104-4, and repeals a number of existing mandates.

Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families. The bill would eliminate a mandate by allowing states to lower their payment levels for cash assistance. Current law requires states to maintain their AFDC payment levels at or above their levels on May 1, 1988, as a condition for having their Medicaid plans approved, and at or above their levels on July 1, 1987, as a condition for receiving some Medicaid funds for pregnant women and children. This bill would repeal those requirements but would replace it with another. The bill would require states to maintain their overall level of expenditures for needy families at 75 percent of their historical level.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI). SSI is a federal program, but most states supplement the federal program. Current federal law requires states to either maintain their supplemental payment levels at or above 1983 levels or maintain their annual expenditures at a level at least equal to the level from the previous year. Once a state elects to supplement SSI, federal law requires it to continue in order to remain eligible for Medicaid payments. This bill would eliminate that mandate.

Child Support. The bill would mandate changes in the operation and financing of the state child enforcement system. The primary changes include using new enforcement techniques, eliminating a current $50 payment to welfare recipients for whom child support is collected, and allowing former public assistance recipients to keep a greater share of their child support collections.

Restricting Welfare and Public Benefits for Aliens. Future legal entrants to the United States would be banned, with some exceptions, from receiving federal benefits until they have resided in the country for five years. Thereafter, the bill would require states to use deeming (including a sponsor or spouse's income as part of the alien's) when determining financial eligibility for federal means-tested benefits. The bill would also require states to implement an alien verification system for determining eligibility for federal benefit programs that they administer. The requirements associated with applying deeming in these programs and implementing verification systems could result in costs to some states. However, the flexibility afforded states in determining eligibility and benefit levels reduces the likelihood that these requirements would represent mandates as defined by Public Law 104-4.

Food Stamps. The bill would require state agencies that administer the Food Stamp program to provide information to law enforcement agencies under certain circumstances. States would also be required to implement an electronic benefit transfer (EBT) system before October 1, 2002, unless the Secretary of Agriculture provides a waiver.

6. ESTIMATED DIRECT COSTS OF MANDATES TO STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS:

(a) Is the $50 Million Threshold Exceeded? No.

(b) Total Direct Costs of Mandates:

On balance, spending by state and local governments on federally mandated activities could be reduced by billions of dollars over the next five years as a result of enactment of this bill, although states are not likely to take full advantage of this new flexibility to reduce spending. While the new mandates imposed by the bill would result in additional costs to some states, the repeal of existing mandates and the additional flexibility provided are likely to reduce spending by more than the additional costs. (Other aspects of the bill that do not relate to mandates could be very costly to state and local governments. These impacts are discussed in the "other impacts" section of this estimate.)

Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families. The additional flexibility that the bill would grant states by replacing the current requirement that states maintain their AFDC payment levels at 1987 or 1988 levels with the 75 percent maintenance-of-effort requirement could save states money. At this time CBO is unable to estimate the magnitude of such savings.

Supplemental Security Income. Eliminating the current maintenance of effort requirement on state supplements to SSI could reduce spending for federally mandated activities by nearly $4 billion annually.

Child Support. The mandates in the child support portion of the bill would produce a net saving to states. CBO estimates that the direct savings from increasing child support collections retained by the states and eliminating the $50 pass through would outweigh the additional costs of improving the child support enforcement system and allowing former public assistance recipients to keep a greater share of their child support collections.

The table below summarizes the costs and savings associated with the child support portion of the bill. In total, CBO estimates that states would save over $200 million in 1997 and $1.9 billion over the 1997-2002 period.

a. Net of technical assistance provided by the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

Food Stamps. The estimated direct costs of providing information to law enforcement agencies would be negligible. Because electronic benefit transfer (EBT) systems will be in place in most states by October 1, 2002, enactment of this provision would not result in additional costs.

(c) Estimate of Necessary Budget Authority: None.

7. BASIS OF ESTIMATE:

Supplemental Security Income

States annually supplement federal SSI payments with nearly $4 billion of their own funds. Even though some states supplement SSI beyond what is required by the federally mandated levels, most of the $4 billion can be attributed to the mandate to maintain spending levels. While CBO would not expect states to cut their supplement programs drastically, they would no longer be required by federal law to spend these amounts.

Child Support

Enforcement and Data Processing Costs. The new system for child support enforcement would focus on matching Social Security numbers in the states' registries of child support orders and directories of new hires. The states would track down non-cooperative parents and insure that support payments would be withheld from their pay checks.

A lot of the costs of improving the system would involve automated data processing. The bill would require states to develop computer systems so that information can be processed electronically. The federal government would pay for 80 percent to 90 percent of these costs. Other mandates include suspending a variety of licenses of parents who are not paying child support and providing enforcement services to recipients of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Foster Care, and Medicaid and anyone else who requests assistance. The federal government would pay 66 percent of these costs. The numbers in the table in the previous section reflect only the states' share of these costs.

Direct Savings from Enforcement. Under current law, states can recoup some of the costs of supporting welfare recipients by requiring child support payments to be assigned to the state. As child support enforcement improves, state and federal collections would increase. In addition, by strengthening enforcement and increasing collections, states would achieve other savings, such as a reduction in the number of people eligible for Medicaid.

Elimination of the $50 Pass Through. Under current law, the first $50 in monthly child support collections is paid to welfare families receiving cash assistance. The rest is retained by the state. Because states would be allowed to keep the first $50 if this bill is enacted, they would annually save between $200 million and $300 million.

Modifying Distribution of Payments. Under current law, when someone ceases to receive public assistance, states continue to collect and enforce the family's child support order. All amounts that are collected on time are sent directly to the family. If states collect past-due child support, however, they may either send the amount to the family or use the amount to reimburse themselves and the federal government for past AFDC payments. Under this bill, after a transition period, payments of past-due child support would first be used to pay off arrearages to the family. The bill would thus result in a loss of collections that otherwise would be recouped by the states.

Restricting Welfare and Public Benefits for Aliens

The bill would afford states broad flexibility to offset any additional costs associated with the deeming and verification requirements. States would have the flexibility to make reductions in other parts of the affected programs. (Additional requirements imposed on states as part of large entitlement programs are not considered mandates under Public Law 104-4 if the states have the flexibility under the program to reduce their own programmatic and financial responsibilities.) Consequently, it is not clear that the deeming requirements and verification procedures would constitute mandates. Any additional costs would also be at least partially offset by reduced caseloads in some programs.

Food Stamps

Information to Law Enforcement Agencies. Information that states would be required to provide law enforcement agencies is already collected as part of the process of determining eligibility for benefits. In addition, CBO assumes that law enforcement agencies would make very little use of this new power since this information is available elsewhere. Costs to states would thus be negligible.

Electronic Benefit Transfer Systems. The Department of Agriculture indicates that thirteen states currently have EBT systems in place (five statewide), another twenty-six are in the process of contracting for such systems, and the remaining eleven states are in the planning process. Based upon this information, CBO assumes that all states would have such systems in place by October 1, 2002, or would receive a waiver from the Secretary of Agriculture. Therefore, there would be no additional direct costs associated with this new mandate.

Other provisions in the bill would provide states with additional incentives to meet this requirement. The bill would exempt state and local government EBT programs from a regulation issued by the Federal Reserve Bank, known as Reg E, that determines the liability for lost or stolen electronic cards. States have been concerned about their potential liability for any lost or stolen electronic benefit cards. The bill would also provide states with additional flexibility in implementing an EBT system within certain broad limits.

8. APPROPRIATION OR OTHER FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE PROVIDED IN BILL TO COVER MANDATE COSTS:

The federal government would provide 66 percent to 90 percent of the costs of improving the child support enforcement system. The costs reflected in this estimate are just the share of the costs imposed on the states.

9. OTHER IMPACTS ON STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS:

The bill would have many other impacts on the budgets of state, local, and tribal governments, especially the loss of federal funding to the states or their residents. This loss of funding would not be considered a mandate under Public Law 104-4, however, because states would retain a significant amount of flexibility to offset the loss with reductions in the affected programs. Under Public Law 104-4, an increase in the stringency of conditions of assistance or a reduction in federal funding for an entitlement program under which the federal government spends more than $500 million annually is a mandate only if state, local, or tribal governments lack authority under that program to amend their own financial or programmatic responsibilities.

Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families. The bill would convert Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Emergency Assistance, and Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training (JOBS) into a block grant under which states would have a lot of freedom to develop their own programs for needy families. The bill, however, would impose several requirements and restrictions on states, most importantly work requirements. By fiscal year 2002, the bill would require states to have 50 percent of certain families that are receiving cash assistance in work activities. CBO estimates that the cost of achieving these targets would be $10 billion in fiscal year 2002. CBO assumes that, rather than achieving the targets, most states would opt to pay the penalty for not meeting these requirements. Even though the penalty against a state could be as large as 5 percent of its grant, CBO believes the Secretary of Health and Human Services would impose a far smaller penalty, about $50 million annually for all states.

The federal government's contribution to assistance to needy families would be capped. By fiscal year 2002, annual contributions for assistance (excluding child care) would be about $1 billion less than what is expected under current law. In order to deal with the shrinking federal support and the requirements discussed above, the states would have the option of cutting benefit levels or restricting eligibility. Some state and local governments could decide to offset partially or completely the loss of federal funds with their own funds.

Supplemental Security Income. The bill would reduce SSI benefits (net of increases in food stamp benefits) by about $2 billion by fiscal year 2002. Some state and local governments may choose to step in and provide some or all of these lost benefits.

Child Protection and Foster Care. The bill would consolidate various mandatory and discretionary child protection and child abuse programs into block grants to the states. Funding levels for the new block grants would be similar to that of current programs. These program consolidations would provide states with flexibility in determining funding for specific activities and ease administrative requirements on states. The bill would also maintain the current open-ended entitlement to states for foster care and adoption assistance and the block grant to states for Independent Living. Finally, the bill would extend funding to states for certain computer purchases at an enhanced rate for one year.

Child Care. The bill would authorize the appropriation of $1 billion in each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002 for the Child Care and Development Block Grant. The appropriation for the block grant for fiscal year 1996 is $935 million.

In addition, the bill would provide between $2.0 billion and $2.7 billion between 1997 and 2002 in mandatory funding for child care on top of the $1 billion authorization. This mandatory spending would replace AFDC work-related child care--an open ended entitlement program--Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care. By fiscal year 2002, annual mandatory spending for child care under the bill would be about $800 million higher than federal spending for current child care programs is currently projected to be.

Child Nutrition. The bill would eliminate funding for startup and expansion costs associated with the school breakfast program totaling $10 million to $25 million annually.

Food Stamps. The bill would allow states to receive funding for the Food Stamp program through a State Food Assistance Block Grant. Funding for this block grant would be at the greater of fiscal year 1994 expenditures or the average of fiscal year 1992 to 1994 expenditures. In exchange for accepting funding at this level, states would be given the flexibility to establish eligibility and benefit levels within broad parameters established in the bill. CBO estimates that overall funding to states opting for the block grant would be about $1 billion less than under the current Food Stamp program.

Miscellaneous. This bill would reduce funding of the Social Services Block Grant to States by $280 million annually between fiscal years 1997 and 2002.

Medicaid. The new Medicaid program would be primarily funded by a capped grant rather than an open entitlement to the states as under current law. But the availability of an "umbrella" fund would allow states to receive additional federal funds in the event of certain unanticipated increases in enrollment. In addition, some states would be eligible for supplemental payments for treatment of illegal aliens and Native Americans. Compared to current levels, the annual federal contribution to Medicaid would drop by $29 billion by the fiscal year 2002. Some states may decide to offset the loss of federal funds with additional state funds, rather than by reducing benefits, restricting eligibility, or reducing payments to providers. In addition, to the extent that public hospitals and clinics decide to serve individuals who lose Medicaid benefits state and local government spending would increase.

The bill would restructure the Medicaid program by granting states greater control over the program. For example, the bill would allow states to operate their programs under a managed care structure without receiving a federal waiver. In addition, states would no longer be constrained to provide the same level of medical assistance statewide, nor would comparability of coverage among beneficiaries be required.

States would also have greater flexibility in determining provider reimbursement levels, because the proposal would repeal the Boren amendment.

The bill would also restructure the drug rebate program so that states would keep the entire rebate, rather than share it with the federal government.

ESTIMATE OF COSTS OF PRIVATE SECTOR MANDATES

June 26, 1996

1. BILL NUMBER: Not yet assigned.
2. BILL TITLE: Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996.
3. BILL STATUS:
As ordered reported by the House Committee on the Budget on June 18, 1996.
4. BILL PURPOSE:
The bill would reform and restructure the welfare and Medicaid programs, and provide for reconciliations pursuant to section 201 (a) (1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997.
5. PRIVATE SECTOR MANDATES CONTAINED IN THE BILL:
Title IV contains several private sector mandates as defined in P.L. 104-4. Subtitle C would require employers to provide information on all new employees to new-hire directories maintained by the states, generally within 20 days of hiring the workers. This requirement could be satisfied by submitting a copy of the employee's W-4 form.

Subtitle D would impose new requirements on individuals who sign affidavits of support for legal immigrants. Under current law, any new immigrant who is expected to become a public charge must obtain a financial sponsor who signs an affidavit promising, as necessary, to support the immigrant for up to three years. The affidavit is not legally binding, however. During this three-year period, a portion of the sponsor's income is counted as being available to the immigrant, and is used to reduce the amount of certain welfare benefits for which the immigrant may be eligible. After the three-year period, immigrants are eligible for welfare benefits on the same basis as U.S. citizens.

The bill would make the affidavit of support legally binding on sponsors of new immigrants, either until those immigrants became citizens or until they had worked in the U.S. for at least 10 years. This requirement would impose an enforceable duty on the sponsors to provide, as necessary, at least a minimum amount of assistance to the new immigrants. The bill would also make most new immigrants completely ineligible for welfare benefits for a period of five years. In addition, the bill would require sponsors to report any change in their own address to a state agency.

Subtitle F would require health-care facilities to promptly notify state agencies of any cases of suspected medical neglect of children.

Subtitles D and H include changes in the Earned Income Credit that would raise private-sector costs. Specific changes include modifying the definition of adjusted gross income used for calculation of the credit, altering provisions related to disqualifying income, denying eligibility to workers not authorized to be employed in the U.S., and changing the way in which the credit is phased out.

ESTIMATED DIRECT COST TO THE PRIVATE SECTOR:

CBO estimates that the direct cost of the private sector mandates in the bill would be $39 million in fiscal year 1997 and would total about $2.2 billion over the five-year period from 1997 through 2001, as shown in the following table.

	Fiscal Year (dollars in millions)
	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Requirement on Employers	--	10	10	10	10
Requirements on Sponsors of New Immigrants	5	20	55	195	400
Changes in the Earned Income Credit	34	345	352	372	396

The mandate requiring employers to provide information on new employees to new-hire directories maintained by the states would impose a direct cost on private sector employers of approximately $10 million per year once it becomes effective in 1998. Based on data from the Bureau of the Census, CBO estimates that private employers hire over 30 million new workers each year. Even so, the cost to private employers of complying with this mandate would be expected to be relatively small. Many states already require some or all employers to provide this information, so that a federal mandate would only impose additional costs on a subset of employers. In addition, employers could comply with the mandate by simply mailing or faxing a copy of the worker's W-4 form to the state agency, or by transmitting the information electronically.

The mandate to make future affidavits of support legally binding on sponsors of new immigrants would impose an estimated direct cost on the sponsors of $5 million in 1997, rising to $400 million in 2001. These estimates represent the additional costs to sponsors of providing the support to immigrants that would be required under the bill. The added costs are larger after the first three years because of the new responsibility sponsors would have to provide support after the three-year deeming period.

Based on information from the Joint Committee on Taxation, CBO estimates that the direct mandate cost of the changes in the Earned Income Credit would be $34 million in 1997, rising to $396 million in 2001. These estimates include only the revenue effect of the changes in the credit, and not the effect on federal outlays.

CBO estimates that the other mandates in the bill would impose minimal costs on private sector entities.

MISCELLANEOUS BUDGETARY INFORMATION

Clause 7(a) of rule XIII requires reports to include miscellaneous budgetary information. Although the bill provides for a net reduction in the Federal budget deficit over 6 years of $125 billion, the bill provides for discrete increases in new budget authority for specific welfare programs and increases in revenue related to the Earned Income Tax Credit.

If the net increase in new budget authority is summed by title for each major program, the bill provides for a gross increase in new budget authority of $2.3 billion in fiscal year 1997 and $8.3 billion over 6 years (with no adjustment for overlapping provisions). Most of these increases are concentrated on Child Support Enforcement, Child Care, Foster Care, and in fiscal year 1997, Medicaid. In aggregate, these increases are more than offset by reductions from current law levels in Food Stamps, Child Nutrition, Supplemental Security Income, the Earned Income Tax Credit, and after fiscal year 1997, Medicaid.

Changes in the Earned Income Tax Credit will increase net revenue relative to current law levels by $34 million in fiscal year 1997 and $1.9 billion over 6 years.

Pursuant to clause 7(a)(3), a comparison of the total estimated funding level for each of the major levels with the appropriate levels under current law is displayed in Tables 1, 2, and 3 of the estimate prepared by the Congressional Budget Office. [See consolidated Congressional Budget Office Cost Estimate on page 1940.]

INFLATION IMPACT STATEMENT

Clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI requires each committee report on a bill or joint resolution of a public character to include an analytical statement describing what impact enactment of the measure would have on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy. This bill will have no inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy.

BUDGET COMMITTEE OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

Clause 2(1)(3)(A) of rule XI requires each committee report to contain oversight findings and recommendations required pursuant to clause (2)(b)(1) of rule X. The committee has no oversight findings.

OVERSIGHT FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM AND OVERSIGHT

Clause 2(1)(3)(D) of rule XI requires each committee report to contain a summary of oversight findings and recommendations made by the Government Reform and Oversight Committee pursuant to clause 4(c)(2) of rule X, whenever such findings have been timely submitted. The Committee on Budget has received no such findings or recommendations from the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

COMMITTEE VOTES

Clause 2(1)(2)(B) of House rule XI requires each committee report to accompany any bill or resolution of a public character, ordered to include the total number of votes cast for and against on each rollcall vote on a motion to report and any amendment offered to the measure or matter, together with the names of those voting for and against.

On June 19, 1996, the committee met in open session, a quorum being present. The committee ordered reported the text of the Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996 pursuant to the reconciliation instructions contained in the conference report on H.Con.Res. 178, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 1997.

The following votes were taken by the committee:

1. Mr. Hobson made a motion that the committee order reported with a favorable recommendation the text of the Welfare and Medicaid Reform Act of 1996. The motion was agreed to by voice vote.

2. Mr. Sabo made a motion that the committee direct its chairman to request, on behalf of the committee, that if the rule for floor consideration of this bill provides for adding tax relief, that it be done in a manner that does not cause the bill to produce a budget deficit in any fiscal year that is greater than the deficit in the current fiscal year (according to the most recent CBO estimate). The motion was defeated by a rollcall vote of 15 ayes and 21 noes.

6. Mr. Pomeroy made a motion that the committee direct the chairman to request, on behalf of the committee, that the rule for consideration of this bill provide for an amendment to restore current law with respect to the cap on the excess shelter deduction when calculating food stamp benefits. This amendment would retain current law which provides for the removal of the cap on the excess shelter deduction after December 31, 1996. The additional spending incurred by this amendment would be offset by reductions in expenditures for corporate welfare. The motion was defeated by a rollcall vote of 16 ayes and 21 noes.

8. Mr. Sabo made a motion that the committee direct the chairman to request, on behalf of the committee, that the rule for consideration of this bill allow members to offer substitutes and amendments consistent with the balanced budget substitutes offered during consideration of the budget resolution earlier this year. The motion was withdrawn.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW

Clause 2(1)(3)(D) provides that reports include the text of statutes that are proposed to be repealed and a comparative print of that part of the bill proposed to be amended whenever the bill repeals or amends any statute. The required matter is included in the report language for each title of the legislative recommendations submitted by the appropriate authorization committees and reported to the House by the Committee on the Budget.

UNFUNDED MANDATE STATEMENT

Section 423 of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act requires a statement of whether the provisions of the reported bill include unfunded mandates. The committee received a letter regarding unfunded mandates from the Director of the Congressional Budget Office. [See consolidated Congressional Budget Office Cost Estimate on page 1940.]

VIEWS OF COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Clause (2)(1)(5) of rule XI requires each committee to afford a 3-day opportunity for members of the committee to file additional minority, or dissenting views and to include the view in its report. The views submitted are found at the end of this report. Although not technically required under rule XI, these views include those submitted by the authorizing committees that submitted the reconciliation recommendations that comprise the text of the bill.

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE—MINORITY VIEWS

House Democrats and Republicans, Senate Democrats and Republicans, and President Clinton share a common goal—all agree that welfare reform is urgently needed. Reform is needed not only for the recipients of welfare, who many times are trapped in a cycle of poverty from which they cannot escape, but also for the American taxpayers who deserve a better return on their investment in our future.

Over the last year, the food stamp provisions in the various welfare reform proposals have come to look very much alike. We have reached agreement on dozens of provisions. Yet, there continue to be serious policy differences on several key issues. It is our hope that there will yet be an opportunity to resolve these differences so that we might have real welfare reform that works for both low income families and American taxpayers. We want congressional passage of a bill that the President will sign.

Determining food stamp reform in the context of budget reconciliation causes us to lose sight of the people the Food Stamp Program is intended to serve. We must remember that our goal is to reform welfare in order to move people toward self-sufficiency. Reform by itself is a hollow word. Reform for reform's sake is meaningless. We aren't OMB, CBO, or GAO. We can't work in the vacuum of numbers only. We cannot let the bureaucrats with the green eye shades determine what path reform will take.

We are Members of Congress. It is our responsibility to put faces with these numbers. We must interject the human element into the process in order to ensure that real need is addressed in welfare reform. We must ensure that our children and the aged and disabled are not left unprotected. We must remember that a dollar spent now can actually result in saving thousands of dollars later, if we help produce a future taxpayer.

We must determine the policy that will move people toward self-sufficiency. This must be a policy-driven bill, not one that is driven by empty, faceless numbers that are wrong as many times as they are right.

Our constituents don't want a hand-out. They want jobs. They want economic development. They want the American dream. These are the people we must help. These are the people for whom we must redesign these programs to help them achieve their desire of becoming successful citizens.

That is not to say that significant budget savings cannot be achieved from real welfare reform. Over the years we have achieved significant savings by enacting strong antifraud and other measures. The Democratic substitute continues this effort by contributing to significant deficit reduction without jeopardizing our nutritional safety net. It saves over $18 billion over a 6-year period. The majority's bill last year was intended to achieve $16 billion over 7 years. The minority bill this year goes well beyond that level of savings, and yet we have been accused of not supporting welfare reform.

We are particularly concerned that this bill will jeopardize the nutritional status of millions of poor families because of a basic misunderstanding of how the program works. The perception is that this program is out of control, that hundreds of thousands of families are added to the food stamp rolls every month. The reality is something very different. Over the last year and a half, as the economy has improved, food stamp participation has actually dropped by over 1 million people. This vital program is clearly filling a very real need. If the need isn't there, the program doesn't continue to expand, but if the need is there, the program is there to meet it.

The block grant provisions in this bill will set funding at levels well below that necessary to feed hungry families in times of recession or if food prices increase. If block grants had been chosen by all States in 1990, the Food Stamp Program would have served 8.3 million fewer children.

To assure adequate nutrition and the good health of our poor families, the calculation of food stamp benefits must take into account extremely high housing expenses. This bill limits this calculation, leaving poor families with children who pay more than half of their income for housing with less money to buy food. The provision will result in more hungry children. Additionally, the importance of a car to get to and from work and to look for work should be acknowledged by allowing the allowance for a car used for these purposes to be indexed annually. Work and work search would be encouraged by such a provision.

We all want families on welfare to be self sufficient. They want to be self sufficient. However, the way to make families self sufficient is not to deny them food stamps after 4 months if they are not working or in a training or workfare program while there is no requirement for States to provide a training or workfare slot. Eighty percent of the able-bodied recipients between the ages of 18 and 50 receive food stamps on a temporary basis already; they leave the program within a year. What these people need most is the opportunity to work—job training, or a job slot. This bill simply kicks them off the program, without a helping hand to find a job.

The American people are not mean-spirited. They do not want children to be poor and hungry. This bill will push 1 million children below the poverty line. How can we allow such a thing to happen? We must remember that we are reforming the programs that impact the most vulnerable of our constituents. We must remember the faces of the poor and hungry of our Nation.

Let the record show that the minority strongly supports welfare reform, but not at the cost of the Nation's poor families and children, not at the cost of the Nation's future.

COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE—MINORITY AND ADDITIONAL VIEWS

MINORITY VIEWS OF THE DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE ON TITLE II, SUBTITLE A (MEDICAID)

“When I use a word,” Humpty Dumpty said, in rather a scornful tone, “it means just what I choose it to mean—neither more nor less.”

—Lewis Carroll, Through the Looking Glass (1872)

The portion of this bill reported by the Commerce Committee repeals the Medicaid program less than 4 months from now, and substitutes in its place a block grant of Federal funds to the Governors of the several States. The Majority says their block grant will provide a guarantee of health care to current Medicaid patients. We say it won’t. The central question is: does the word “guarantee” have any real meaning to the Majority?

Medicaid is America’s second largest health care program, covering almost as many Americans as Medicare. According to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO), Medicaid this year will cover 36.8 million poor senior citizens, disabled people, women, and children at a total cost of $168 billion ($80.8 billion Federal, $72.2 billion State). By way of comparison, CBO estimates that Medicare will cover 37.5 million of Americans in fiscal year 1996 at a total cost to the Federal government of $199 billion.

Medicaid is America’s largest single purchaser of nursing home services and other long-term care. The Federal government, through Medicaid, will spend an estimated $30 billion on long-term care this fiscal year, the States another $22.7 billion. Most of the long-term care paid for by Medicaid is delivered in nursing homes; Medicaid pays for more than half the nursing home care provided in this country. Of the 1.5 million nursing home residents nationwide, about two-thirds, or 1 million, are covered by Medicaid, mostly at State option.

This year more than 4 million adults 65 and over will receive services from Medicaid. About one-third of these are eligible because they are receiving cash assistance through the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. Others have lost nearly all their assets to the high medical or long-term care expenses that often accompany illness or disease later in life. An estimated 1.9 million seniors are eligible as Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries; their incomes are below 120 percent of the poverty level, and they receive Medicaid assistance to pay their Medicare premiums, co-insurance, and deductibles (but not nursing home care or prescription drugs).

About 6 million disabled individuals and about 7.4 million low-income women are eligible for Medicaid in 1996. And Medicaid covers about one-fourth of America's children—70 million in number. Under current law, by the year 2001, all American children under 18 who live in families with incomes below the Federal poverty line will be eligible for Medicaid coverage. Early preventive care, diagnosis, and treatment for poor children has traditionally been viewed as a sound investment, because it saves on much more expensive and longer term adult care and treatment later.

The Republicans argue that they can cut $72 billion in Federal spending from Medicaid over 6 years—and as much as $250 billion overall in combined Federal and State spending—and still provide a guarantee of health care in their block grant. They assert that their bill “guarantees” health care coverage for the same poor elderly, disabled, women, and children for whom Medicaid now provides. Can they be right?

Webster's Third New International Dictionary defines a “guarantee” as “an agreement by which one person undertakes to secure another in the possession of something; an expressed or implied assurance of the quality of goods offered for sale or the length of satisfactory use to be expected from a product offered for sale; something given by way of security.” It is, in other words, a contract—a promise made and kept. Where are the guarantees in this bill? Where, for example, does it assure that poor elderly Americans will get medically necessary nursing home coverage as they do now? Nowhere. In fact, the bill's fine print goes out of its way to shred any assurance that such coverage must be provided.

The bill repeals the health care guarantee in current law, found in Title XIX of the Social Security Act. The bill States that effective October 1—less than 4 months from now—neither Title XIX nor the Majority's new block grant may be construed “as providing an entitlement, under Federal law in relation to the Federal government, to an individual or person (including any provider) at the time of provisions or receipt of services.” The bill gives States virtually total discretion to specify the amount, duration, and scope of the benefits they offer to any individual. In short, there is absolutely no assurance that medically necessary physician, hospital, or nursing home care will be covered; there is no assurance, to paraphrase Webster's, that the “quality or the length of use to be expected” is guaranteed. The Republican guarantee, if it exists at all, is entirely illusory.

In case there might be any lingering doubt whether this bill guarantees anything to the elderly or other poor Americans, the bill explicitly prohibits any person from trying to enforce any such guarantee against a State in Federal court. This bill removes the private right of action that our elderly and vulnerable citizens have under current law. This right of action is not a provision of the Medicaid law itself, but rather is codified at 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Passed during the 1870s as a Reconstruction statute, section 1983 provides a private cause of action against anyone who, under color of State law, deprives an individual of “any rights, privileges, or immunities” secured by the Constitution and Federal laws. The Supreme Court has held that in enacting section 1983, Congress intended to override State legislation limiting individual Federal rights, to offer a remedy where State laws were inadequate to protect those rights, and to provide a cause of action “where the remedy, although adequate in theory, was not available in practice.” Private parties have invoked section 1983 to challenge State implementation of a wide variety of Federal statutes. In other words, people who are not receiving a service or protection to which Federal law entitles them have a right of action in Federal court to secure that service or protection. If this bill is enacted, Medicaid beneficiaries will be denied that right.

The committee’s mark-up provides ample evidence that the Republicans have no intention of guaranteeing medical care to anyone. We offered several amendments that would have clarified the Republicans’ bill and put them on record as promising a real guarantee for Medicaid patients—a real Contract with America, for America’s most vulnerable citizens and their families. Over and over, we asked the Republicans simply to “put it in writing.” Over and over, they refused. We asked them to provide:

(A) A real guarantee of coverage for the elderly needing nursing home care.—The Republican bill repeals the current Federal guarantee of coverage for medically necessary nursing home services for eligible elderly individuals. The amendment would have fully restored the current law guarantee for elderly individuals who (1) require nursing home services and (2) meet the Medicaid eligibility standards in effect in the State as of June 1, 1996. It was defeated on a party-line vote.

(B) A real guarantee of coverage for elderly Alzheimer’s victims.—It was defeated on a party-line vote.

(C) A real guarantee of coverage for veterans needing nursing home care.—It was defeated on a party-line vote.

(D) A real guarantee of coverage at least for those elderly beneficiaries now living in nursing homes.—It was defeated on a party-line vote.

(E) A real guarantee that the elderly can choose their own nursing home, so long as the home is Medicaid-eligible, rather than having the Governor of a State make that decision for them. Even this amendment was defeated on a party-line vote.

(F) A real guarantee of coverage for children.—The Republican bill repeals the current law Federal guarantee of coverage for medically necessary physician, hospital, and related basic health services for poor children, including the guarantee of treatment services necessary to correct a condition identified during a medical screening under the Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT) program. The amendment would have fully restored the current law guarantee for eligible children, especially by putting the “T” for Treatment back in EPSDT. It was defeated on a party-line vote.

(G) A real guarantee of coverage for pregnant women and infants.—It was defeated on a party-line vote.

(H) A real guarantee of coverage for Native Americans, to whom the Nation owes special obligations and responsibilities. This amendment, too, was defeated on a party-line vote.

And there were more amendments, including continuation of coverage for breast and cervical cancer services; continuation of parity in benefits for residents of rural areas; continuation of the current section 1115 waiver program to allow States continued flexibility in trying new approaches to providing health care; restoration of current law minimum payment standards for hospitals, nursing homes, rural health centers, Federally qualified health centers, and managed care plans. These were all defeated along party lines.

The Republicans even defeated an amendment that would have curtailed fraud and abuse in at least two respects. The amendment restored existing limitations on States treating provider “donations” and taxes as State Medicaid funds for purposes of increasing their Federal dollar match, and it extended to State officials handling Federal block grant funds the same conflict of interest and ethics rules that now govern Federal officials. Instead, the Majority voted to order yet another 2-year study of these fraudulent State financing schemes. They ignored the conflict of interest problem altogether. Then, they “compromised” with themselves and chose to adopt an amendment that would allow the Secretary after the 2-year study is complete to waive the prohibition on these ripoffs. Governors will soon be returning to the Federal trough for health care money that they will use not for health care but to pave roads, build prisons, reduce State taxes, and make State deficits look smaller while the Federal deficit grows larger.

Our Republican colleagues last year proudly touted their “Contract with America.” This year’s Medicaid legislation, like their bill last year, clearly illustrates their unwillingness to maintain Medicaid’s 30-year old contract with the 36 million elderly and vulnerable Americans who depend on it. The Majority talks a good game about “guarantees,” but their bill provides none. There is an empty promise, a contract full of loopholes. It does not fulfill a single promise—no real guarantee of long-term care for senior citizens; no real guarantee of health care for poor women and children, or disabled people; no assurance that health services will be provided fairly and equally throughout each State, or across the country. Instead of providing health security to people in desperate need, the Republicans want to provide money with few if any meaningful strings attached to the Governors in a block grant and let them spend it as they please.

At the same time, they are saying to middle-class families with elderly parents or grandparents in nursing homes, and to the other Americans served by Medicaid, that Congress has reneged on its commitment to help them. The Majority is saying, “You’re on your own.” Today approximately 40 million Americans have no health care coverage. The Republican plan will inevitably increase this number by taking away the real guarantee of health security for 36 million of America’s senior, disabled people, women, and children.

“Impenetrability! That’s what I say!”

“Would you tell me please,” said Alice, “what that means?”

“Now you talk like a reasonable child,” said Humpty Dumpty, looking very much pleased. “I meant by ‘impenetrability’ that we’ve had enough of that subject, and it would be just as well if you’d mention what you meant to do next, as I suppose you don’t mean to stop here all the rest of your life.”

“That’s a great deal to make one word mean,” Alice said in a thoughtful tone.

“When I make a word do a lot of work like that,” said Humpty Dumpty, “I always pay it extra.”

“Oh!” said Alice. She was too much puzzled to make any other remark.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF REPRESENTATIVE ELIZABETH
FURSE TO H.R. 3507, MEDICAID RESTRUCTURING ACT

For a Congress which believes so strongly in innovation at the State level, I am disappointed the majority voted down an amendment in full committee to H.R. 3507 which would have preserved and protected the health care innovation that is already taking place in States all across America. My amendment would have given States which currently have a Section 1115 waiver the option of participating in the system created by H.R. 3507 or continuing to operate under the Section 1115 waiver program.

Oregon spent 4 years carefully constructing the Oregon Health Plan. The results have been startling. We have provided health care coverage to over 130,000 hardworking people. Our per capita health care costs are among the very lowest in the country. Access to medical care is keeping people healthier, improving the quality of life and saving thousands of dollars.

Consider the fact that the Oregon Health Plan has:

Expanded coverage and controlled costs by emphasizing comprehensive care and early intervention using pre-paid health plans.

Reduced welfare caseloads. Twenty percent of people who got off welfare returned to it in order to get health care coverage for their families. Oregon has enjoyed declining caseloads since the waivers were granted in 1993.

Expanded health coverage to over 130,000 people who previously had no coverage, and fell through the cracks in eligibility criteria.

Reduced cost shifting. During its first 12 months, Oregon hospitals reported a 30 percent decline in charity care.

Created a health care delivery system that is remarkably efficient, providing comprehensive care at a cost per beneficiary that is 10 percent below the national average.

In their rush to reach budget targets in the Medicaid program, the bill before our committee would turn its back on States which have formulated their own health reforms. It would subject States that have already created efficient health care delivery systems to the same funding mechanisms as States which have done nothing to reduce their costs. In effect, H.R. 3507 punishes the States who couldn't wait to reform their health care systems.

I am gravely concerned that this bill would seriously jeopardize the health of the Oregon Health Plan. For example, according to my own Governor's office, this bill would punish Oregon for being at the forefront of health care reform. Under this bill:

The Oregon Health Plan would start losing money in 1999, less than 3 years away.

Oregon will face a $400 million shortfall over the next 7 years.

Oregon will be helpless to respond following a natural disaster (like the floods which devastated Oregon in February of 1996) or an economic recession because the umbrella fund provides no real protection for the States.

When we last considered Medicaid reform in this committee, my Governor wrote to me and said "This bill would have immediate and disastrous consequences for Oregon." While the majority has attempted to make changes to many of the more glaring problems with Medicaid reform in general, such as backing off on their original proposal to repeal nursing home standards, H.R. 3507 continues to ignore the fact that a number of States in America have already reformed their Medicaid system. In many ways, the more things change, the more they stay the same.

In Oregon, we didn't ask for Medicaid waivers to do less (which is exactly what the Republican bill proposes to do); we asked for waivers to do more. In fact, our waiver has allowed Oregon to construct a plan which covers many things that basic Medicaid doesn't cover: dental services, hospice care, many diagnostic and screening services for adults, physical and occupational therapy, prescribed drugs, and most transplants. Unlike the Republican proposals, the comprehensiveness of care for people getting health coverage under Medicaid was assured before the plan could go forward.

My amendment would simply have given any State which has enacted health care reform under the Section 1115 waiver program the option of continuing their current program. Currently, there are nine States which operate a Medicaid reform plan under a section 1115 waiver program: Arizona, Delaware, Hawaii, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, and Vermont. In addition, there are four States which have section 1115 waivers but are awaiting action by their State legislature: Massachusetts, Florida, Ohio (implementing July 1, 1996), and Kentucky.

I am disappointed that my amendment, which would have rectified this glaring oversight in H.R. 3507, was defeated on a party-line vote. States which have already reduced their costs, in partnership with a waiver from the Federal Government, should be able to continue their program if they so desire. We shouldn't turn the lights out on the health care innovation which has already taken place in America.

ELIZABETH FURSE.

COMMITTEE ON ECONOMIC AND EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES—MINORITY AND ADDITIONAL VIEWS

MINORITY VIEWS ON COMMITTEE REPORT TO ACCOMPANY OPPORTUNITIES COMMITTEE WELFARE REFORM RECOMMENDATIONS

I. INTRODUCTION

Fifteen months ago, this committee first considered welfare within the legislative vise grip of the first hundred days of the new Republican Majority. Since it was a central feature of the Republican "Contract With America," the bill was considered by this committee with virtually no opportunity for careful deliberation or bipartisan agreement. From the outset, the bill took a sharply partisan turn, in virtually every detail. No matter how sensible and balanced Democratic amendments were, they were summarily rejected by the Republicans during markup. Here are some examples of those amendments:

- An amendment to reverse massive cuts in the school lunch and school breakfast programs;

- An amendment to maintain current minimal safety and health standards for child care facilities;

- An amendment to require States to match Federal funds to pay for child care;

- An amendment to guarantee free school lunch for poor children;

- An amendment to restore the Abandoned Infants Assistance program;

- An amendment to apply welfare savings to pay for deficit reduction;

- An amendment to oblige the States to provide child care for parents required to go to work.

In the end, this committee reported out a partisan welfare bill with weak work requirements and punitive measures against the poor and against needy children. And, in the end President Clinton justifiably vetoed a harsh Republican welfare reform bill, citing, among other reasons, its grossly inadequate level of funding for work and child care, its end of the guarantee of foster care, and its abandonment of Federal child nutrition programs.

We appreciate the fact that, this time around, the committee's Majority has taken a more moderate and bipartisan approach with regard to its responsibility for welfare reform. Nevertheless, despite adoption of a bill that includes more temperate base provisions and remedial amendments, we remain opposed to the committee's final product. Once again, programs for the poorest in this country are being targeted to meet Republican budget priorities. Policy judgement about how best to improve welfare services are still not the driving force behind Republican welfare reform; the primary motive is to achieve more than $50 billion in budget cuts.

Republican welfare reform continues to be “weak on work.” Without adequate funding for education, training, and employment, most of our Nation’s poor will be unable to avoid the welfare trap. Even before the adoption of amendments increasing work participation rates, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) had already estimated that the new Republican proposal (H.R. 3507) is some $9 billion short of what would be needed in fiscal years 1999 through 2002 to provide adequate money for States to carry out the work program. Moreover, the increase in the minimum work hours requirement, without a commensurate increase in child care funding, further deepens our apprehension about the viability of the work title.

While H.R. 3507 is far different from its predecessor, it contains many changes in child care, child nutrition, and child protection laws that were never fully aired in the normal deliberative process. No hearing was held in this committee on this dramatically different proposal. And, we are very much concerned that the committee completely ignored issues relevant to the eligibility of immigrants for programs under our jurisdiction. We cannot countenance such surrender of the committee’s jurisdiction.

We commend our Republican colleagues for steps taken to moderate this legislation and to encourage bipartisan give-and-take. By their about-face, they have validated the decision made by President Clinton to veto last year’s Republican version of welfare reform. The new bill’s increased funding for child care, preservation of child nutrition programs, and additional funding for work support the wisdom of the President’s earlier judgment.

We oppose this new version of welfare reform for many reasons. For instance, the committee’s product is still weak on work; funding levels for the work programs remain well below what will be necessary, notwithstanding the Castle Amendment that provides a $3 billion authorization for supplemental work funding in fiscal year 1999.

In addition, this revised proposal fails to adequately address child care needs of parents who may face having to leave their children home alone or in dangerous and unsuitable child care settings. Welfare reform need not produce such untenable choices. The failure of the committee to adopt the Mink amendment, which would have prevented States from penalizing parents of children under the age of 1 who cannot secure child care, further weakens the work requirements.

Finally, the upheaval of child protection systems caused by creation of the Child and Family Services Block Grant will cause insecurity for providers and recipients of current Federal child protection services. Along with other Federal programs, the Abandoned Infants Assistance Act and the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) provide invaluable protection and support services for the most vulnerable children. We fail to understand what restructuring these programs has to do with welfare reform, and note that neither the bipartisan Castle/Tanner bill, the Democratic “Deal” substitute, nor the administration’s welfare reform plan proposed this kind of drastic overhaul.

True welfare reform can never be achieved, and welfare dependency will never be broken, unless we provide adequate education, training, and child care, and jobs that pay a livable wage. Anything short of that does great disservice to our national sense of compassion and our moral responsibility to help the poor help themselves.

II. WORK REQUIREMENTS

Essential to the success of welfare reform is the delivery of job training and employment opportunities in jobs that pay a livable wage. It is indeed ironic that our Republican colleagues insist on “tough” work requirements, and yet they fail to adequately finance the true cost of that objective. The folly of the original Republican work requirements in H.R. 3507 has been exacerbated by the adoption of the Talent amendment to increase the work participation rates. In the end, States will face substantial unfunded mandates as they struggle to meet new, federally mandated work participation requirements imposed by the Republican proposal. Contrary to the statement in the Majority’s views suggesting that they have met the National Governors Association’s concerns regarding realistic work goals, we fail to see how the Nation’s Governors could be at all pleased with the committee’s shift toward even more unrealistic work requirements. The CBO had already calculated a multi-billion dollar short fall in H.R. 3507, as introduced. The Castle amendment authorizing $3 billion more work funding for fiscal year 1999 offers some relief. However, the current attitude of Republican House appropriators with respect to training America’s workforce leaves us to question whether the Castle amendment will ever be financed.

In their views, the committee’s Majority correctly notes the critical role of preparing welfare recipients for work, in particular, with respect to the importance of job search activities. And, yet strangely, the committee adopted an amendment slashing the number of weeks that job search can be credited as a permissible work activity from 12 weeks to 4 weeks. The Martinez amendment, providing that 12 weeks of job search activities can count where unemployment is above the national average, restores some value to the import of job search efforts under the committee’s plan. Still, it should not have been necessary to reverse the deviation from the original bill’s coverage for 12 weeks, and the Martinez amendment only partially corrects a glaring mistake.

We commend our colleague Tim Roemer (D-IN) for the amendment regarding individual responsibility plans. We are mystified that 10 committee Republicans opposed an amendment that codifies the sensible notion that both individuals and the government (Federal and State) have reciprocal obligations. Individuals should clearly understand their duty to choose work over welfare (and the consequences of their intentional failure to make the right choice). And, the State should clearly define and meet its obligations to help those individuals who desire to stay off welfare. We think it all the more necessary that such a plan be reduced to writing. And, we think the State’s “sole discretion” to exercise authority over these plans concerns how, not whether, the State shall carry out such “contracts.” In their effort to maximize State “flexibility” over welfare, Republican committee members resisted such clarifications, and the Majority report skirts these issues altogether. Individual responsibility plans should be clear, enforceable agreements; otherwise, their value is dubious and they will be subject to the vagaries of oral representations, vague memories, and State welfare personnel changes.

We are disappointed that our Republican colleagues rejected amendments to the work title of the bill which would have ameliorated hardships posed by the bill for young parents facing entry (or re-entry) into the job market. States should not have the option of terminating benefits for a parent of a child younger than 1 year old. Our Republican colleagues also should have supported Democratic amendments to guarantee health care and minimum wage protections for recipients who engage in work activities. Without such protections, the viability of the work requirements is undermined. The amendments offered by Representatives Mink (D-HA) and Becerra (D-CA) on these issues, respectively, would have strengthened the bill.

III. CHILD PROTECTION

Child protection systems across the country are overwhelmed by the crisis facing families and their children. Despite Federal programs, State and local efforts, increased media attention, and public awareness, child abuse and neglect continues to be a significant problem in the United States. The number of substantiated cases of child abuse and neglect rose from 798,318 in 1990 to 1,011,626 in 1994—an increase of almost 27 percent during that 5-year period. In its April 1995 report on child abuse and neglect fatalities, the U.S. Advisory Board on Child Abuse and Neglect reported that almost 2,000 infants and young children die from abuse and neglect at the hands of parents and caretakers each year. The vast majority of these children were under the age of 5 when they died, and 45 percent were under the age of 1. It is critically important that child protection agencies increase their efforts to help children earlier in their lives and to move them into new permanent families when they cannot safely remain at home or be reunited with their families.

We welcome the decision by the Majority to abandon their earlier proposal to eliminate the Federal guarantee of foster care and adoption assistance for children who cannot live safely at home. We continue to be concerned, however, that the remaining block grants in their welfare bill also jeopardize children's safety by eliminating any Federal assurance of prevention and by abdicating Federal leadership in combating abuse and neglect.

Traditionally, this committee has authorized funds for important research and demonstration initiatives on behalf of maltreated children that have helped advance the protection of children in States across the Nation. This important role would be undercut by the Child and Family Services Block Grant which would reduce, from 50 percent to 12 percent, the percentage of child abuse and neglect funds currently available for research and demonstration activities (assuming funding for the programs replaced by the block grant would be retained at their fiscal year 1997 levels). These research and demonstration activities help to provide new approaches to solving child welfare problems. The Majority proposes relinquishing the important Federal leadership role in funding research, program demonstrations, technical assistance, and training that serves as an efficient means of enabling all States to improve their practices in preventing and treating child abuse and neglect.

We strenuously object to the Majority's attempt to justify its overhaul to child protection laws, particularly its rewrite of the Child Abuse and Prevention Treatment Act (CAPTA), by placing blame on the Federal Government for the current crisis in many State child protection systems. While we readily acknowledge that millions of children are left woefully unprotected and unaccounted for, no credible evidence exists to support the assertion that Federal attention and "micro-management" interfere with State protection of abused and neglected children. Nearly two dozen States and the District of Columbia have been found by various courts to be in violation of Federal and State child protection laws. Shifting greater overall responsibility to the States and greatly dismantling Federal responsibility is both illogical and irresponsible. Staggering increases in the number of abused and neglected children, sharp increases in the number of children in foster care, and disturbing rises in the levels of child runaways and homeless children have not been caused by Federal programs. Giving greater responsibility to the States simply defies logic. Obviously, many courts, by appointing receivers to oversee child protection systems in many States, have reached a far different conclusion than our Republican colleagues. For the committee's Majority to play the blame game is counter-productive.

Proposed Republican cuts in a myriad of safety nets that are designed to protect poor families and their children increase the likelihood of further strains within those families. While child abuse, neglect, and domestic violence transcend economic status, there is little reason to doubt that increased financial pressures on already struggling families further jeopardize the condition of our Nation's children.

The block grants proposed in the new Republican welfare plan would eliminate any assurance of Federal funding for prevention. Demands for crisis services will continue to strain available resources, and families are likely to continue to get no help until their problems bring them to the attention of the child protection system. Efforts made in the past several years to consolidate and streamline programs to direct attention and resources on family-focused, community-based approaches to preventing child abuse and neglect will be undercut.

Recent data suggest that 24 percent of the families where abuse has occurred receive no services at all. Thus, it is likely that families who could benefit from prevention services will once again be told that the system can only help them once their children's safety has been jeopardized. Preventive services that help fathers reconnect with their children, offer parent education initiatives, and provide special services for children with disabilities, will again take a back seat to the immediate crisis at hand.

We are relieved that the Majority supported amendments offered by committee Democrats to remedy apparently inadvertent errors in the original chairman's mark, including (1) omission of the Abandoned Infants Assistant Act from the transitional protections for current grantees and recipients of child protection services under programs otherwise targeted for repeal, and (2) restoration of the Federal requirement under CAPTA that States provide legal guardians (guardian ad litem) for abused and neglected children in court proceedings.

In the final analysis, new approaches to the serious problem of child abuse should not be tacked on a welfare bill. In fact, other changes in the welfare bill will jeopardize the safety and health of large numbers of poor children. The risks are too severe for Congress to alter the child protection systems at the same time. The complex and long-standing protections for abused and neglected children are far too important to be rewritten without separate consideration. A welfare reform bill should reform welfare, not try to fix the child protection system.

IV. CHILD CARE

In 1994, 60 percent of women with children younger than 6, and 57 percent of women with children younger than 3 were in the labor force. In 1991, more than 7 million children younger than 5 whose mothers were employed were cared for by someone other than a parent. In 1994, 36 States reported keeping child care waiting lists. Eight of those States reported lists of at least 10,000 waiting children.

Last year's version of Republican welfare reform provided extraordinarily inadequate funds to support child care. Fortunately, the new committee bill sharply breaks from that embarrassing legislative legacy by providing greater funds for child care. It restores the critical Federal mandate that States establish and enforce health and safety standards at child care centers. In light of the additional pressures this bill will have on already overburdened child care systems, welfare reform will collapse unless welfare recipients on the road to work have access to safe and readily available child care.

We are deeply worried that the Talent amendment to increase the minimum average number of work hours will destabilize child care funding and, in particular, threaten funding for at-risk and transitional child care for poor working families not on welfare. Our concerns are most warranted. According to a recent report by the Children's Defense Fund, States already experimenting with welfare reform are shifting significant parts of child care assistance budgets away from the working poor, to give more to welfare families. The plan adopted by the committee's Majority carries with it the same likely shift in child care funding priorities as States strive to meet new Federal participation rates to avoid incurring non-compliance penalties.

Finally, we note that H.R. 3507 contains a 20 percent cut in the Title XX Social Services Block Grant. Because most States use Title XX funds to help finance child care, this cut negates the increased child care funding in the new Republican proposal.

V. CHILD NUTRITION

The Majority's views on the changes it proposes in child nutrition programs is disturbing insofar as it fails to acknowledge the tremendous benefits achieved by the school lunch, school breakfast, summer feeding, child care and food programs in reducing hunger among our Nation's children, and by the WIC program in improving maternal and infant health and nutrition. Sadly, once again, the Majority's views blame the Federal Government for impeding State progress.

Last year, the committee Majority entertained rather extreme approaches to these nutrition issues. Fortunately, they have abandoned their proposed elimination of the Federal school lunch program. And, they no longer are fighting to grant broad power to States to transfer funds from child nutrition programs to other State priorities. Nevertheless, we continue to have objections to elements of this year's nutrition changes.

The proposed cuts in the Summer Food Program are far too deep and would seriously jeopardize the continued viability of this program. The current plan would reduce the Federal reimbursement for summer lunches by 35 cents, per meal. The Majority contends that the reimbursement for lunches in the Summer Food Program is higher than that for lunches served during the school year. However, the Majority fails to consider the fact that sponsors and other organizations that operate the Summer program incur higher per-meal costs in operating this program. The summer lunches cost more because the number of lunches served is lower than the number of lunches served during the regular school year (there is no benefit derived from the same economies-of-scale). Moreover, sponsors of the summer program may have to pay custodial costs to open school buildings during the summer. Rather than bring the cost of the Summer Food Program in line with the regular school year, the cuts imposed by the Majority necessarily come at the expense of children who rely on these summer meals.

A survey of summer food sponsors across the country by the Food Research and Action Center (FRAC) indicates that reductions in meal reimbursement rates will cause a 30 to 35 percent drop in the number of sponsors. We support increasing the participation rate in the Summer Food Program, not diluting it. Currently, many low-income areas have no Summer Food Program because no school or nonprofit organization has stepped forward to operate one. While 12 million low-income children receive free school lunches during the school year, only 2 million low-income children receive meals through the Summer Food Program. The Summer Food Program continues the school lunch program for poor children in many poor urban and rural areas during summer months when school is out. This program is as critical to the health of children as the school lunch program.

The committee Majority has developed a two-tier reimbursement structure for the Child and Adult Care Food Program. The new structure provides lower reimbursements for meals served to children in family day care homes operated in middle and upper income areas. While the Majority would like to believe that this cut will have no adverse affect on low-income children, that is simply not the case. To participate in this nutrition program, family day care homes must apply through a sponsoring organization. The sponsoring organizations apply to the States for the meal reimbursements on behalf of the homes and receive a Federal payment to defray their administrative costs. This payment is based on the number of family day care homes a sponsoring organization serves. If cuts proposed by the committee's plan cause a substantial drop in the number of day care homes that participate in this program, sponsoring organizations will be forced to discontinue participation, as well. And if sponsoring organizations drop out, many homes in poor areas will be shut out of the program because they will not have a sponsoring organization through which to work.

VI. IMMIGRATION

Starkly absent from the Majority action (and in its committee views) is any attempt whatsoever to address the grave problems in the immigration provisions of H.R. 3507. As stated in our introduction, we object to the "waiver" of committee jurisdiction over consideration of the eligibility of immigrants for the child nutrition and education programs long under the committee's jurisdiction. It is our responsibility, because it is within our expertise and authority, to make the difficult policy decisions concerning such matters.

Most disturbingly, H.R. 3507 dangerously proposes to deny subsistence benefits for poor immigrants; nearly all of the savings achieved would come from denying benefits to legal immigrants. Perversely, H.R. 3507 would pose harm to U.S. citizen children by denying WIC benefits to illegal immigrant mothers. This kind of policy is unconscionable and pernicious. The committee should have debated these critical policy concerns in the context of our markup, rather than punting the issue to others to carry the ball.

The child nutrition proposals in H.R. 3507 relative to the eligibility of undocumented immigrant children for school lunch and school breakfast will turn teachers and administrators into quasi-immigration officers as they try to enforce prohibitions and restrictions on food assistance for these children. An enormous unfunded mandate would be shifted to the States and their public schools. We remain hopeful that the final Republican welfare plan will include immigration provisions much closer to what was in the Democratic "Deal" alternative concerning such eligibility issues. But, this committee should be making those policy decisions.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF MR. REED

In the Spirit of bipartisanship, coupled with the positive amendments adopted in committee and the hope that the House Majority actually wants a welfare plan that the President will sign, I supported the committee's limited welfare reform bill. However, if the committee's agreements are weakened, or this legislation is combined with $72 billion in Medicaid cuts, or this legislation fails to protect children, or the Majority refuses to work in a bipartisan manner, the bill will not have my support on the House floor.

I offered an amendment during consideration of the bill similar to the work requirement provisions included in last year's Democratic alternative on welfare reform. At first, the committee Majority rejected my amendment on procedural grounds. However, after minor changes to address the Majority's concerns, I was permitted to offer my comprehensive workfare amendment.

Individual responsibility and real work requirements are at the heart of my amendment. Under my amendment, recipients must sign an individualized responsibility plan which requires them to begin a job search immediately and prohibits them from refusing a job. In addition, unlike the Republican bill, my amendment creates a workfare program, which provides recipients with a job or requires them to engage in community service when no private sector job is available. Unfortunately, my amendment lost by a close 17 to 22 vote.

During committee consideration of the bill, however, a number of important improvements were made to the committee's original proposal, which bespoke a willingness to compromise and improve the bill.

Indeed, the individual responsibility contract provision of my amendment was adopted by the committee. My Democratic colleague, Mr. Roemer, offered an amendment which would require recipients of assistance to sign an individual responsibility contract stating the steps that individual will take to find a job. This is a positive step forward.

In addition, an amendment was adopted that would provide $3 billion in supplemental funding to help States operate work programs. This amendment takes into account the fact that jobs are not readily available across this Nation. While this amendment was not connected to a workfare program, as I would prefer, it was a movement in the proper direction.

Furthermore, the bill contains $14 billion for child care, an increase over current law by $3.6 billion over 6 years. The committee also adopted an amendment to ensure that children up to age 11 have either direct parental care or other child care. I wish the committee had also provided better access to child care for people trying to make the transition to work, and I want the bill to include such language when it is considered on the House floor.

I also remain strongly concerned with the level of resources for work and child care in the bill, and I believe that the Majority must address this shortfall in order to actually enact real welfare reform.

Lastly, the bill presented to the Opportunities Committee was a vast improvement over last year's monstrosity which block granted the school lunch program. While there are changes made to child nutrition programs, it is within the Majority's power to work in a bipartisan manner to address this and other issues.

Based on these amendments and my hope that the bill itself will be improved before it comes to the floor, I voted for the bill.

While it is an arcane matter that many citizens are unaware of, the bill considered by this committee is only a limited portion of a welfare reform package. The bulk of welfare reform, including changes to the AFDC program and Food Stamps, is under the jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee and the Agriculture Committee, respectively. In addition, at present, it is the Majority's intent to tie welfare reform to $72 billion in Medicaid cuts and the elimination of the guarantee of health coverage for our Nation's disabled population. This means that the Opportunities Committee and hence this bill is not the complete nor final say on welfare reform. It could also portend that the Majority may not continue to work in a bipartisan fashion.

It is vital that we reform the welfare system. We must pass a responsible reform package that instills individual responsibility and moves people off welfare and into work. However, we must provide support for the disabled, ensure that children do not suffer for the shortcomings, real or imagined, of their parents, and provide child care for those with young children. A welfare reform bill must also take into account the fact that jobs are not readily available in many parts of this Nation, including Rhode Island, by providing a workfare structure and adequate funding for work programs. I believe that this is the type of welfare reform that the American taxpayers want.

JACK REED.

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS—DISSENTING VIEWS

The budget resolution for fiscal year 1997 adopted on June 12, 1996, by the Republican majority in the House of Representatives calls for passage of three budget reconciliation bills before Congress adjourns in the fall. The first of these measures is to be a bill that pairs $53 billion in welfare spending reductions with $72 billion in Medicaid reductions.

On June 12, working from the text of the new Republican welfare reform bill (H.R. 3507), the Committee on Ways and Means considered and ordered reported to the Budget Committee its welfare reform recommendations. These recommendations have since been incorporated into a budget reconciliation bill by the Committee on the Budget, for which this report has been written.

Sadly, we are forced to conclude that the Republican bill is still too tough on kids, sets up a work program that just won't work, and lets the States raid the Federal Treasury without delivering much in return.

Ironcially, much of today's welfare news is good:

There are fewer welfare and food stamp recipients today than when President Clinton took office. Welfare rolls are down by nearly 10 percent—that's 1.3 million fewer welfare recipients today than when President Bush left office. And, there are more than one million fewer food stamp recipients, too.

The poverty rate is down. Although still unacceptably high (14.5 percent of all Americans and 21.8 percent of all children lived in poverty in 1994), the number of Americans in poverty went down between 1993 and 1994 by 1.2 million people—after four straight years of increases.

Teen pregnancy rates are lower in most States. In 30 of the 41 States that report statistics teen pregnancy rates are down. Teen birth rates have dropped as well.

Child support collections have grown. Collections grew by 40 percent from 1992 to 1995, a million more families were served, and paternity establishments are up.

And, welfare reform is alive and well in the States. Forty States are conducting welfare reform demonstrations approved by President Clinton. No President has been as responsive as Bill Clinton to the Governors' desire to test new ideas. As a former Governor, he knows the problems they face and has cut through Federal red tape to help them—regardless of political party.

That's all good news for the President. It's even better news for American families.

But, unfortunately, we haven't made much progress on national welfare reform. Partisan politics seems to have gotten in the way. That's a shame.

President Clinton has twice sent Congress welfare reform proposals. He has sent clear signals about the kind of reform he will sign into law. He wants a bill that requires work, promotes responsibility, and protects children. He would impose tough time limits and work requirements, provide more funding for child care, require teen parents to live at home and stay in school, and crack down on child support enforcement. That's real welfare reform.

He vetoed the Republican bill (H.R. 4) because it was not real welfare reform. He rejected H.R. 4 because:

It was weak on work.—It did too little to move people from welfare to work, did not guarantee child care, and gutted the earned income tax credit.

It was tough on children.—It made unacceptably deep cuts that undermined child welfare, school lunches, and aid for disabled children.

It was a step backward in our efforts to get health care coverage to all Americans.—It eliminated the guaranteed medical coverage that single parents need to move from welfare to entry-level jobs.

Rather than work with the President to resolve these problems, the Republicans chose to spend 6 months criticizing his veto and insisting that the Republican conference agreement was the only way to reform welfare. Thanks to the Nation's Governors, a debate that seemed to have reached a stalemate revived, and we are trying again. President Clinton has welcomed the bipartisan National Governors' Association proposal. He has set only two conditions. He said:

Don't link welfare to Medicaid changes that cut coverage to children, to pregnant women, to the elderly, and to disabled adults.

Don't raise taxes on the working poor by cutting the earned income tax credit.

We remain skeptical about whether our Republican colleagues want true bipartisan compromise. Admittedly, this new Republican bill corrects some of the worst mistakes of the vetoed bill—confirming that the President was right to say NO to the last Republican welfare plan.

But it looks to us like the Republicans want to make certain that this bill is also unacceptable to the President and to Democratic Governors. Despite President Clinton's warning, our Republican colleagues plan to link welfare reform to deep Medicaid cuts, have retained the EITC cuts, and have refused to guarantee child care for parents going to work. They also cut welfare spending by $10 billion more than the Governors' had agreed to. That doesn't sound hopeful to us.

We want one point to be clear. We support welfare reform. So does President Clinton. But we also want to make sure that needy children aren't the victims of excessive election-year posturing.

Real welfare reform gives poor children a safety net on which to rely. It makes certain that children are not punished for the mistakes of their parents.

Real welfare reform also makes certain that States deliver on their commitment to protecting children—that kids aren't left holding an empty bag when powerful interests pressure State governments to spend limited resources on nursing homes—or roads—or schools—or prisons.

Real welfare reform also means tough, but fair, work requirements. It means making sure everyone who is able to work does work, even if the government has to supply the job.

But most important, real welfare reform means helping some very desperate families—and their children—have a vision about the future, a sense that they are worth something and can do something with their lives, and that it matters to us that they have that chance.

If all this talk about welfare reform is more than election-year posturing, then Democrats and Republicans will have to work together as partners to accomplish welfare reform. So far, our Republican colleagues have chosen to go it alone. That's a shame—and a disappointment to the American people.

During deliberations by the Committee on Ways and Means, Democrats were not content to simply sit back and criticize. Hour after hour we offered constructive amendments designed to correct the most egregious flaws in the Republican bill. Time and again our ideas were rejected. As a result we must reject this bill. It is too tough on families and children; it sets up a welfare-to-work program that just won't work; and it lets the States raid the Federal Treasury without delivering much in return.

THE REPUBLICAN BILL IS STILL TOO TOUGH ON KIDS AND FAMILIES.

1. The Republican majority insisted on raising taxes on 4.3 million working families who earn less than $30,000 per year

Republicans bristle at suggestions that they favor the rich and claim that they are looking out for the average working family. Yet, at Chairman Archer's insistence, the welfare reform plan adopted by the Committee on Ways and Means will increase taxes on millions of Americans who work to support their families rather than accept welfare. That's because the bill phases out the earned income tax credit (EITC) for working families with children more quickly than under present law, increasing taxes on 4.3 million families earning between $17,000 and $29,000 per year.

To correct this, Rep. Barbara Kennelly (D-CT) proposed striking the tax increase on the working poor. Despite unanimous Democratic support, the Kennelly amendment failed on a voice vote.

The committee's recommendations regarding the EITC include yet another example of the callousness the Republican majority has consistently exhibited toward low-income working families.

Under current law, 20 million working families are bolstered by the tax credit in their daily struggle to make ends meet. These families earn no more than $28,000 a year, and many make significantly less than that. Three-quarters of these workers—16 million families—have children. Twenty percent of these families—4.3 million of them—will experience a tax increase because of the Republican's inability or unwillingness to put themselves in these workers' shoes.

An earlier version of this welfare bill excluded the EITC provision that represents a tax increase for these families. But, not long before the committee markup, the Republican majority received work that their cuts in the welfare program, drastic though they are, did not create sufficient budget savings to meet their budget reconciliation target. Their solution was to increase taxes on families earning between $17,000 and $29,000 per year. Why are these working families the target when the Republican majority needs to raise money because their welfare cutbacks have fallen short of the budget goal?

The Republican majority could have increased taxes on wealthier Americans better able to afford it. They could have proposed smaller tax cuts in their budget resolution, thus necessitating smaller cuts elsewhere to offset the tax cuts. They could have shaved tax breaks they have created and preserved for various business interests, such as the oil and gas industry. They could have reduced the defense budget. They could have identified some of the “unnecessary government spending” they rail against so often. They could have done any number of things instead. But, the Republican majority chose to make life more difficult for hard-working parents.

Democrats are not uncritical proponents of the EITC. It should be monitored carefully, administered properly, and targeted effectively. We are delighted that the anti-fraud measures that President Clinton initiated in 1994 have yielded impressive results. We are prepared to support the EITC provisions of this bill that build on those initiatives by enacting President Clinton’s further suggestions to increase EITC effectiveness. The provisions to improve EITC compliance by extending the application of the math-error procedures and to focus EITC benefits on wage earners by disallowing the use of capital income and various types of losses are appropriate.

But, the element of the recommendations that would create a second tier in the phasedown range in order to eliminate the EITC more quickly is unnecessary. Indeed, it is worse than that. It is hardhearted. Insensitive. Callous. It is an unadulterated tax increase—something Republicans supposedly stand against.

The taxpayers who will bear the brunt of this tax increase are parents who have one child and incomes between $17,300 and $25,700 and those with two or more children and incomes between $21,300 and $29,000. Those tax increases would total $1.8 billion—as much as $150 per family. And 360,000 families would lose their EITC entirely because the phasedown range would be reduced.

And, this is just the beginning.

Republicans will defend their proposal to phase down the EITC more quickly by claiming that families will receive the $500-per-child tax credit that they promise to enact later this year in the budget reconciliation bill.

This is a fiction. And, it is no consolation to families who will have their existing tax credit cut by up to $150.

The budget resolution calls for EITC cuts of $18.5 billion in addition to the welfare savings that these committee recommendations achieve. The budget resolution also anticipates that a nonrefundable $500-per-child tax credit will be enacted.

Millions of EITC recipients will get no child credit at all because their incomes are too low. If the child is not refundable, they won’t get any benefit.

Millions more will get a partial credit because they don't owe enough income tax to use their full child credit. For example, a family with income of $20,000 and two children should receive $1000 in child credits, if enacted. But they would not because they could not take more in the credit than they would own in tax. They would get only $458 instead of $1000.

In order to come up with the additional $18.5 billion in EITC cuts, the Republican majority has said they intend to enact policy cuts quite similar to those in last year's balanced budget bill. That would result in additional EITC cuts of $356 for that $20,000 family with 2 children.

So, it is disingenuous of the Republican majority to try to lull low-income working families into accepting major cuts in the EITC by promising $500-per-child credits that most of those families will never receive.

Republican Director of the Office of Management and Budget under President Bush, Dick Darman, coined a memorable phrase about unacknowledged tax increases. It went something like this: "If it looks like a duck and walks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck." The Republicans' so-called second-tier phase-down of the EITC looks and walks and quacks like a duck, alright. It is an unambiguous tax increase on 4.3 million low-income families, a downpayment on the much larger tax increases the Republicans intend to inflict on them later this year. The Republicans may use soundbites like "welfare reform," "improved targeting," "personal responsibility," "moving from welfare to work," but none of these phrases mask the reality of a tax increase.

2. The Republican majority insisted on putting at least 1 million American children and 2 million parents at risk of losing their health insurance

Lack of health coverage is a prime reason many parents are forced to choose welfare over work. Over the past decade, this committee—under Democratic leadership—has taken steps to correct this problem by making certain that when a welfare recipient goes off welfare and goes to work, health coverage continues. After all, a productive employee is one that does not have to worry about whether her child will get needed health care.

The Republican welfare reform philosophy is to leave questions about health coverage entirely to State Governors. Time and again they will ask us to trust the Governors. Be careful to read the fine print of the Republican plan. What "trusting the Governors" really means is eliminating the guarantee of health coverage for parents and children. It means that millions of Americans will be at risk of losing the health coverage that gives them peace of mind.

Republicans were embarrassed to learn from the Democrats that their plan would not guarantee Medicaid even for those families who would continue to be eligible for cash welfare. They were equally stunned to learn that their plan eliminated the assurance of health coverage for families who leave welfare for work. They corrected these flaws but refused Democratic attempts to assure health coverage for at least 3 million other families who have it now but may lose it if the Republican bill becomes law.

Rep. Sander Levin (D–MI) offered an amendment to make certain that all those families who are now eligible for Medicaid retain that eligibility—so that welfare reform does not increase the number of uninsured Americans. The Republican majority said no.

Rep. Pete Stark (D–CA) offered an amendment to require that Medicaid be continued for any family that loses welfare eligibility because of a time limit on benefits. Despite unanimous Democratic support, the Republican majority said, no, and the Stark amendment was rejected.

Without the Stark and Levin amendments, at least one million children may lose their Medicaid coverage. Even more children could suffer if the States choose to narrow eligibility for cash welfare, as they are encouraged to do under the new block grant.

3. The Republican majority insisted on punishing children for the mistakes of their parents

Three times the Democrats tried to get the Republicans to soften the punishments that extend to children if their parents cannot find work to support the family. Three times the Republicans voted no, insisting on punishing children for the mistakes of their parents.

Rep. Charles Rangel (D–NY) offered an amendment to assure that an arbitrary time limit is not imposed on a parent who “plays by the rules” but still cannot find a job. Under the Rangel amendment if the parent does all that the State asks in terms of training, education, and work but there is still no job available, the time limit on benefits would not apply. The Republican majority said no to the Rangel amendment, choosing instead to punish the children.

Rep. Sander Levin (D–MI) proposed to require that vouchers be paid to help children in any States that limit welfare payments to less than 60 months; after 5 years, States would have the option to pay vouchers. This policy is a feature of the bipartisan “Tanner-Castle” welfare reform bill (H.R. 3266). The Republican majority said no to the Levin amendment.

As a last resort, Rep. Sander Levin (D–MI) asked his Republican colleagues to support the voucher policy that they had all endorsed in H.R. 4, the welfare reform bill that President Clinton vetoed. H.R. 4 would have permitted vouchers to support just the children after both parent and child have received welfare for 60 months. The Republicans flip-flopped, rejecting their own policy, and again chose not to protect the children.

4. The Republican majority insisted on denying benefits to virtually all legal immigrants regardless of their circumstances

The Republican bill bars legal immigrants from receiving supplemental security income (SSI) and food stamps and authorizes States to bar immigrants from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant (AFDC), the Title XX Social Services Block Grant, and Medicaid. The bill would impose these bans retroactively on those already receiving benefits, cutting off over one million legal immigrants regardless of their circumstances. Among those denied benefits are over half a million elderly and disabled SSI recipients, including 10,000 disabled children.

Rep. Charles Rangel (D–NY) offered an amendment which would have prospectively deemed the income of a sponsor to the legal immigrant until citizenship for purposes of applications for SSI and family assistance, assuring protection for people whose sponsor's have died or lost their income. Democrats would have continued eligibility to Medicaid coverage, thus protecting small children who fall ill. Democrats would also have protected abused children by exempting them from the impact of the provision. By continuing the current-law exemption for applicants who became disabled after they enter the country, Democrats would have assured that a legal immigrant who gets hit by a truck, for example, and is unable to work would not have been left without help. Moreover, Democrats would have assured that an immigrant who has worked hard and paid taxes for 20 quarters would be eligible for benefits. The Democrats are interested in fair and humane treatment of legal immigrants. The Republican majority rejected the Rangel amendment by voice vote.

5. Democrats protected emergency assistance for low-income elderly and disabled people affected by the Republican cut in SSI

The Republican welfare bill eliminates the first month of benefits for all future SSI applicants. As a result, nearly one million low-income elderly and disabled people who apply for SSI benefits each year all will receive reduced benefits.

Rep. John Lewis (D–GA) successfully amended to bill to assure that where an individual faces a financial emergency that individual may receive an advance on his or her first month's payment. The payment would have to be repaid through deductions in the recipient's check over the next 6 months.

It is a small comfort that at least a portion of the hundreds of thousands of elderly and disabled people who will be hurt by this provision will get emergency relief, thanks to the Lewis amendment.

6. The Democrats protected low-income elderly women from cuts in SSI

The Republican welfare bill vetoed by the President and the bill offered by Republicans in the Subcommittee on Human Resources included a provision increasing the retirement age for low-income elderly under the SSI program from age 65 to age 67. The Republican bill would have driven a hole through the safety net for low-income senior citizens, especially women. When fully implemented, the provision would have denied assistance to more than 100,000 poor elderly in any month. Many of those affected would have been women who have only modest Social Security benefits.

As a result of an amendment offered by Rep. Sander Levin (D–MI), Democrats successfully altered the Subcommittee bill to delete the provision and maintain SSI protection for the aged. This will assure that women who stay home to raise their children and workers who spend an entire lifetime in the work force at low wages will not be unfairly deprived of the most minimal SSI payments in their old age.

7. The Democrats kept Republicans from making the most drastic cuts in SSI benefits to disabled children

Under the Republican bill vetoed by the President, Republicans would have denied or reduced SSI benefits to nearly one million disabled children. Under pressure from the Democrats and the bipartisan National Governors' Association, the Republicans backed off of much of their extreme position. Democrats were successful in offering an amendment to assure that, in applying the new definition of childhood disability, the Commissioner of Social Security take into account the combined effects of all physical and mental impairments. In addition, the Commissioner would be required to provide for the evaluation of children who are too young to test.

Democrats believe that the SSI disabled children's program needs to remain abuse-free, but they do not believe that hundreds of thousands of severely disabled children should be made to suffer. The Democrats have consistently favored targeting and eliminating abuse while protecting vulnerable disabled children.

THE REPUBLICAN WORK PROGRAM JUST WON'T WORK

1. The Republican majority rejected every Democratic attempt to craft a welfare-to-work program that will work

Work, training and child care are the cornerstones of any successfully welfare reform strategy. Four times, Democrats tried to correct fundamental flaws in the Republican bill. All were rejected.

Rep. Richard Neal (D-MA) proposed a comprehensive amendment to fix the Republican work program, using provisions of the bi-partisan "Castle-Tanner" bill. Mr. Neal's amendment would have increased funding for the work-related elements of the bill, tightened the rules used to measure whether a State succeeds with its work program, and required an individual responsibility contract between the State and the welfare recipient. Despite unanimous Democratic support, the Neal amendment was rejected by voice vote.

Rep. Bill Coyne (D-PA) offered an amendment that would make certain that work pays better than welfare. The Coyne amendment simply would have required that the earned income tax credit—which is paid to low-income taxpayers as an incentive to work—not be counted against the family when determining welfare eligibility. Without this correction, the family won't get ahead—every dollar of EITC the family earns will reduce its cash assistance. The Republican majority said no.

Reps. Phil English (R-PA) and Gerald Kleczka (D-WI) tried to make certain that States may not allow welfare recipients to displace current workers, replace workers terminated just to fill the vacancy with a welfare recipient, or replace someone laid off. Two versions of the amendment were offered. Both were rejected by the Republican majority.

Finally, yet another attempt at bipartisan cooperation was rejected when Reps. Nancy Johnson (R-CT) and Barbara Kennelly (D-CT) offered an amendment to prohibit States from penalizing the parents of a child who is under 10 years of age if they cannot work because no child care is available, noting that in many communities it is simply not safe to leave young children to fend for themselves while mom is at work. The amendment was rejected.

THE REPUBLICAN BILL LETS STATES RAID THE FEDERAL TREASURY
WITHOUT DELIVERING MUCH IN RETURN

1. The Republican majority refused to hold States accountable for the promises they make to America's children

The battle cry of Republican welfare reform initiatives is State flexibility. In their myopic view of the world, the only way to achieve that goal is block grants to the States with no strings attached. Democrats share the desire to give States more flexibility but as long as the Federal Government plays “banker” to the States for welfare programs, Democrats will insist that smart business sense prevail. No blank checks will be written, no sweetheart deals tolerated, and no empty State promises permitted.

Democrats made three significant attempts to hold States accountable in the new Republican world of block grants. Republicans rejected each amendment.

Rep. Harold Ford (D–TN) offered a straight-forward amendment to extend certain basic protections to families under the block grant. The Ford amendment would have required objective eligibility and benefit decisions, made certain that States treat similar families alike, and mandated prompt impartial hearings when disputes arise between the State and the family. Republicans said no to a level playing field for families. Instead, they stacked the deck against families and in favor of State governments.

Similarly, Rep. Richard Neal (D–MA) offered an amendment that would have granted the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) the authority to enforce the promises made in the State plan. The Republican bill specifically prohibits HHS from doing anything more than reviewing the paperwork to see if the plan includes everything required by law. The Republicans intentionally bar the Secretary from making certain that the State actually does what it says in its plan. Once again, the Republican majority said no to families, insisting on a stacked deck in favor of States.

And, Rep. Sander Levin (D–MI) offered an amendment to modify the contingency fund that is available to States in the event of a severe recession. In the Republican plan a contingency fund is supposed to be triggered in times of economic difficulty—but, as proposed, the fund is too small to weather even a modest recession. The Republicans said no to the Levin amendment, promising to reconsider later if problems arise. Unfortunately, it is poor children who will pay the price if action is delayed.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

Our Republican colleagues have used the opening pages of this legislation to make rhetorical arguments about the need for this bill. Presented as “findings” some are actual facts. Others are interpretations of facts, written to support just one point of view in the welfare debate. Left unchallenged, the future reader of this important legislation would have to conclude that there was universal agreement with each of these statements. Simply stated, there is not. And we wish to supply this additional information to complete the record.

First, if we were to write our own statement of findings—mixing fact with rhetoric as the Republicans have done—about the Republican welfare reform measure, we would choose a list something like the following:

The number of individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children (AFDC)—what most people think of as welfare—has remained relatively steady since 1971.

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) projects that only 10.2 million children will receive AFDC benefits by fiscal year 2006.

The policies contained within the new Republican bill could push millions of additional children into poverty.

Research indicates that the associations between welfare-benefit levels and out-of-wedlock pregnancy generally are small and apply only to whites.

Evidence linking welfare benefits with rising nonmarital fertility is not consistent and does not suggest that welfare represents an important factor in recent increases in childbearing outside of marriage.

Despite the rise in the birth rate for teen mothers that occurred in the late 1980s, the teen birth rate is lower now than it was in the 1950s and 1960s.

The number of welfare recipients has dropped by 1.3 million since January 1993.

We note, for the record that data about nonmarital births are particularly tricky to understand. The large increase in the number of nonmarital births, particularly among teens, has contributed to the perception that the provision of welfare benefits encourages nonmarital births in general and teen births in particular.

There has also been growing research which indicates that out-of-wedlock and teen birth negatively impact the health, educational attainment, and long term adulthood success of children born under these circumstances. Some conclude, then, that by simply eliminating welfare benefits and/or putting conditions for receipt of welfare benefits upon teens and children born out-of-wedlock, the rate of nonmarital and teen births will decrease, thus decreasing negative impacts upon children. The association between welfare receipt and behavior, however, is not clearly documented.

The new Republican bill focuses specifically on this connection between welfare dependency and out-of-wedlock pregnancy and birth, whereas Democrats focus on eliminating obstacles to self-sufficiency, such as providing real work opportunities and reliable child care, while at the same time, encouraging and reinforcing responsible parenting. There is no evidence that the unfavorable economic, social, and educational outcomes often attributed to out-of-wedlock and teen births are actually the result of the birth, rather than the result of preexisting circumstances, such as growing up in poverty, having limited educational opportunities, and access to prenatal and child care.

Again for the record, we take issue with the following six “findings” in the Republican welfare reform bill:

“* * * it is the sense of Congress that prevention of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and reduction in out-of-wedlock birth are very important Government interests and the policy contained in part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 103(a) of this Act) is intended to address the crisis.” (H.R. 3507, Section 101(9), p. 15)

Title IV–A of the Social Security Act was designed to protect the well-being poor families with dependent children in times of crisis. There is bipartisan agreement that conditions for poor people in the country have deteriorated, that there are increasing numbers of poor children (from 1979 to 1994 the number of poor children increased from 8.6 million to 13.2 million), and that the current welfare system discourages work and responsibility, breaks up families, and fails to move people from poverty to independence.

However, there is no evidence that the policies contained in the new Republican bill, which would amend Title IV–A of the Social Security Act, will successfully address these crises. The Republicans have not proven that the current welfare system is to blame for the conditions they cite. Furthermore, it is unclear which provisions in the new Republican bill would remedy the problems.

For example, State flexibility is a central tenant of the Republican bill. But, there is no evidence that the lack of State flexibility in current law has prohibited States from addressing these problems and that increasing State flexibility would enable States to be more successful in decreasing problems.

Similarly, the Republican majority contends that implementing a family cap on welfare benefits would lead to decreased nonmarital birth and increased self-sufficiency. New research findings on the impact of the New Jersey cap on AFDC births do not support the contention that the family cap policy has an effect on the number of AFDC births.

Finally, the Republicans majority proposes to reduce out-of-wedlock births by paying States that reduce rates of illegitimacy a bonus. It is unlikely that the small amount of bonus money that is offered to States to reduce out-of-wedlock births will enable them to implement programs that will actually change the trends in out-of-wedlock births.

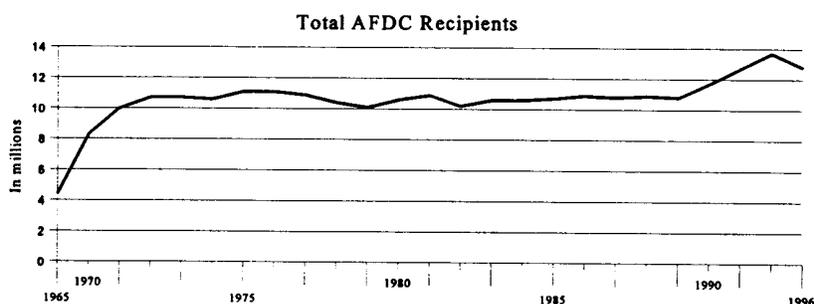

The reform effort contained within the new Republican bill is not guaranteed to address the problems, and may only exacerbate the problems of poor children and their families. Analysis of bills similar to this one found that more—not fewer—children could be made poor. We await a similar of this bill by the Clinton administration and would be alarmed if the probability of this reform effort was more poor children.

“The number of individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children has more than tripled since 1965.” (H.R. 3507, Section 101(5), p. 10)

The number of recipients receiving AFDC has, in fact, remained relatively steady since 1971. The number of recipients more than doubled from 1965 to 1971 (from 4.4 billion to 10.0 billion), and then has remained relatively consistent since that time. Why are we enacting legislation in 1996 to address the increase in recipients which occurred in the 1960s? Most recent data from March 1996 indicates that there are 12.8 billion recipients, as compared to the 10.0 billion recipients in 1971,¹ only a 27 percent increase over these 25 years. In fact, caseloads have been decreasing since President Clinton's policy to enact State waivers. After the increase in recipients from 1989 to 1992, a result of policies enacted by the previous administration, caseloads have fallen from 13.6 million to 12.8 million.

Republican claim No. 3

“The Department of Health and Human Services has estimated that 12,000,000 children will receive AFDC benefits within 10 years.” (H.R. 3507, Section 101(5)(B), pp. 9–10)

Most current HHS caseload projections estimate only 10.2 million children will receive benefits by fiscal year 2006. This recalculation is based upon recent and projected decreases in the overall caseload of AFDC recipients, as reported in the President's fiscal year 1997 budget.

Republican claim No. 4

“The increase in the number of children receiving public assistance is closely related to the increase in births to unmarried women.” (H.R. 3507, Section 101(5)(C), page 11)

Research has been conducted to assess whether the generosity of welfare benefits over time and among States has contributed to the growth in the incidence of out-of-wedlock birth. While there is inconsistency in results, associations between welfare benefit levels and out-of-wedlock pregnancy generally are small and apply only to whites. “In sum, the evidence linking welfare benefits with rising nonmarried fertility is not consistent and does not suggest that welfare represents an important factor in recent increases in childbearing outside of marriage.”²

Another argument that cannot be substantiated is that an increase in benefits over time would encourage out-of-wedlock births.

²“Report to Congress on Out-of-Wedlock Childbearing,” U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, September 1995, p.xiv.

Welfare benefits have increased, but inflation has eroded the value of these benefits. The real value of AFDC and food stamps has decreased by 25 percent since 1970.³

If welfare benefits influence childbearing decisions, it is likely that out-of-wedlock births would be higher in States where higher benefits are provided. In fact, nonmarital births are more common in States with lower benefit levels.⁴

There has been an increase in the nonmarital birth rate, but it is also much smaller than its increased share of the total birth rate. The principal causes of the growth in the share of births attributable to nonmarital births are not based simply upon an increase in out-of-wedlock births, but on declining marriage rates and declining birth rates among married women. Between 1960 and 1990 the percentage of women of childbearing age who were married at any point in time declined from 71 percent to 55 percent; the annual birth rate for married women dropped from 16 percent to 9 percent.⁵

NOTE.—Reductions in the number of total births, especially the number of wedlock births, can increase the out-of-wedlock birth ratio without any change in out-of-wedlock births. The simultaneous drop in wedlock births, combined with the rise in out-of-wedlock births, has led to an inflation of the perceived increase in out-of-wedlock births. The out-of-wedlock birth rate, the number of out-of-wedlock births per 1,000 women, is a more accurate measure of the rise of out-of-wedlock births.

Despite the rise in the teen birth rate that occurred in the late 1980s, the teen birth rate is lower now than it was in the 1950s and 1960s. Most recently, from 1991 to 1993, the birth rate for teens aged 15–19 declined 4 percent. In 1960, there were 586,966 births to teens aged 15–19, as compared to 501,093 in 1993.

Nonmarital births have increased among teens, but there have also been significant increases among women of all ages. From 1970 to 1990, nonmarital birth among teen increased from 2.2 percent to 4.2 percent. The birth rate for single women in their early 20's is higher than the rate for single teens, increasing from 3.8 percent to 6.5 percent from 1970 to 1990.

COMMITTEE ON THE BUDGET—MINORITY VIEWS ON THE FIRST REPUBLICAN RECONCILIATION PACKAGE

On June 19, 1996, the Budget Committee considered the first of a three-step reconciliation process required by the conference report on the 1997 budget resolution. As we know, that budget increases the Federal deficit next year for the first time in 4 years. It does this because the new Republican majority insists on passing large tax cuts before it deals with the level of spending needed to meet the commitments it makes. In fact, under this new Republican budget the deficit will increase from $130 billion this year to $153 billion next year—a whopping 1-year increase of $23 billion.

Over the last year the new Republican majority has learned a great deal about the Federal budget and it has made some improvements upon the proposals that were before us in the Contract With America budget of a year ago. The mean-spirited attacks on school lunch and child nutrition programs have been dropped. Some of the ignorant and misguided attacks on student aid and Head Start have been dropped. The outrageous rip-offs that comprised most of the Contract With America's tax package have been somewhat reduced. Nevertheless, the policy proposals contained in this year's budget remain dangerously radical and out of touch with the American populace and should be rejected.

The new Republican budget is little changed from the package rejected last year by the President. Repackaging it in a three-part reconciliation process does not alleviate its fundamental flaws. And, by choosing to include welfare reform, Medicaid, and the child tax credit in the first reconciliation bill, the new majority exposes its basic cynicism about the budget.

Because the Ways and Means Committee failed to act on the tax cut, the first reconciliation bill reported by the Budget Committee is limited to only welfare reform and Medicaid changes. It is unclear, however, whether this is the package that will ultimately be considered on the floor. Not only do we not know if or when we are going to see a tax package, we don't know what will be in a tax package. We also don't know if this first reconciliation bill will remain as a welfare/Medicaid package or if it will be split into two separate bills. If split into two separate bills, it is not clear that each of those bills would be governed by the terms of a reconciliation process.

WELFARE REFORM

There is almost universal agreement that the present welfare system needs reform. Most people agree that any serious effort at welfare reform must be designed to help move people who are able to work off the welfare rolls and onto the work rolls.

The first reconciliation bill incorporates much of last year's Republican welfare plan that passed Congress and was vetoed by the President. This year's package contains $48 billion of cuts in welfare-related programs, predominately hitting food stamp and SSI recipients and legal immigrants. It also includes $5 billion of cuts in the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), for total cuts of $53 billion. These reductions, when combined with the additional EITC cuts of $18.5 billion that are reconciled for the third part of this process, remain too steep. The structural changes proposed contain serious flaws.

The package eliminates all individual guarantees for assistance to needy families and replaces them with a series of block grants to States. The States are then allowed to make deep cuts in their share of funding for welfare benefits, thereby producing a double hit on the most vulnerable among us. While the budget purports to help people move from "welfare to work," it simply does not contain the resources needed to sustain a serious effort to encourage work. And its grants of wide scale flexibility for States when combined with its reductions in State maintenance of effort will most certainly exacerbate pressures among States to "race to the bottom."

MEDICAID

The Republican plan for Medicaid has the potential to cause as much or more harm than the welfare reform package. Medicaid is the basic program whereby the Federal Government helps States provide health care for the poorest and most vulnerable people in our Nation. This reconciliation bill cuts Federal Medicaid funding by $72 billion. To make matters worse, the Republican proposal allows States to drain large amounts of money out of the system by significantly reducing the States' "maintenance of effort" and "match" requirements. By so weakening the State's share of the program, the Republican plan will allow more than $250 billion to be siphoned off from health care services for the poor.

The majority's plan would send a loosely defined block grant back to the States without the current guarantees of care for low-income children, pregnant women, disabled people, or senior citizens. By relying heavily on the Republican Governors for the design of their new Medicaid package, the Republican Congress has proposed a program that allows States to reduce their financial commitment to the program without any guarantee that poor people and seniors will receive the health care taxpayers are paying for. Clearly, the Medicaid program could benefit from large-scale regulatory reform, but this is just plain ridiculous.

TAX CUTS

Perhaps the most interesting feature of this reconciliation package is its deliberate failure to meet the revenue directive which allowed for the now famous $500 per child tax credit. It is not clear whether this tax cut will appear magically in the Rules Committee, on the floor, in conference, in a later reconciliation bill, as a separate bill, or not at all. Clearly, the presence of a tax cut at this stage of the reconciliation process complicates all attempts to bring the deficit down in the near future.

WHITHER THE PROCESS

Normally, the budget resolution would require an omnibus reconciliation bill that combines all of the entitlement and tax changes into a single piece of legislation. This year the majority chose not to do an omnibus bill, but rather to break reconciliation into three separate bills. This procedure is not only highly unusual, but it begs the question: Why these three bills? Achieving more deficit reduction is certainly not the answer to this question. The first reconciliation bill was designed to include the tax cuts. Thus the first bill out of the starting block would dramatically increase the deficit. This stands in stark contrast to the Republican budget-balancing concerns of last year, when the Congressional Budget Office was required to certify that the budget would reach balance before tax cuts could be considered.

The future of this year's process is not yet clear. The final form of the first reconciliation bill has not yet been decided. And while the budget resolution spells out what should be in reconciliation bills two and three, it is difficult to have confidence that the majority will follow the resolution's guidance. Reconciliation is normally a complicated and difficult legislative process. But this year the majority has turned it into a tortured dance that is spinning out of control. Even their leaders don't know where it will end.

One thing is clear—it is not possible to make credible reforms in welfare, Medicaid, Medicare and other spending programs and pass a large tax cut without increasing the Federal budget deficit.

DISSENTING VIEWS FROM REPRESENTATIVE CARRIE P.
MEEK

I am dismayed that part of the majority's bill designed to move people from welfare to work contains a tax increase on more than 4 million Americans who have already chosen work over welfare. But I am not surprised that the majority is now raising taxes on these working families to help pay for a tax cut for the wealthy later this year.

The bill reported by the Committee on the Budget, H.R. 3507, cuts the earned income tax credit by $5 billion over 6 years. Later this year the Republicans will offer us the final $15 billion in cuts in the EITC in order to meet their reconciliation target of a $20-billion cut over 6 years.

H.R. 3507 increases taxes on working families. It raises taxes on families with one child who have annual incomes between $17,340 and $25,750, and it also increases taxes for other working families who have annual incomes between $21,360 and $29,261.

H.R. 3507—unlike last year's reconciliation bill—does not contain the $500 child tax credit to help offset these tax hikes on working Americans.

The Department of the Treasury estimates that H.R. 3507 will raise taxes on 4.3 million working families.

Rule XXI(5)(c) of the House of Representatives says that no bill "carrying a Federal income tax rate increase shall be considered as passed or agreed to unless so determined by a vote of not less than three-fifths of the Members voting."

The Republican majority inserted this provision in the House's rules with great pride at the beginning of this Congress. Then they claimed they were protecting working Americans from a tax increase.

However, 9 months later the Republican majority waived this three-fifths rule when the House approved, last October, a $23 billion cut in the EITC as part of last year's reconciliation bill.

Now we are again considering a reconciliation bill. On a party line vote, the Committee on the Budget rejected a motion instructing the chairman to ask the Committee on Rules to not again waive this three-fifths provision when H.R. 3507 is brought to the floor.

The Republican majority is so eager to raise taxes on more than 4 million people who have chosen work over welfare that it will deliberately ignore its own procedural rules.

CARRIE P. MEEK.
